Aside from the usual problems connected with a new job, Mr. Farrow had a unique obstacle to overcome. He was a youthful-looking man whose clean-shaven boyishness belied his age and experience. One subscriber confided to Mr. Stringer before he left that "they had always got along very well in the old ways and did not see why a boy should come along and try to teach them new tricks." "At this time," recalled Mr. Farrow, "I was about 40 years old."

Mr. Farrow remained in Belleville until 1905 when Carroll Dyke became local manager.

Within three years of Mr. Dyke's appointment, the telephone directory was advising that long distance calls could be made with in a 1,000-mile radius. Two years later, in 1910, increased facilities to handle the rapidly expanding long distance traffic were proposed and construction was begun on the carrying of more than 250 miles of wire between Toronto and Belleville.

By September 1910 sub-offices had been set up at Shannonville, Wallbridge, Roanmore, Mountain View, Belleville Junction and Ameliasburg. There were more than 500 subscribers in Belleville and 250 in Trenton. Serving the Belleville office at this time was one standard magneto switchboard with 10 local positions, as well as two dummy boards. An operator at the first board answered subscribers one to 50. The second operator answered subscribers 51 to 100 and so on, to the 500th subscriber. The operating room was a noisy place because when subscriber number one asked for subscriber number 451, the operator on board one shouted to the operator on board 10 "give me number 451 on line 9" and both operators would connect the two switchboards on line 9. When the call was completed the two operators would shout to each other to disconnect subscribers one and 451.

A report in the Telephone Gazette, a magazine published by the Bell Telephone Company from 1909 to 1911 indicates that the next year was one of growth and expansion in the Belleville area. System names were added to the list of subscribers; work was begun on long distance circuits between Belleville and Trenton, and Belleville and Stirling, and Foxboro became a sub office of Belleville. Another sub office was opened in the fall of 1911 at Point Anne.

A change in managers occurred the following year when Harry B. Stock took over from Mr. Dyke. He was succeeded in 1919 by James A. Cokers, who in 1924 became district manager with headquarters at Belleville.

During 1914 the office staff moved into new quarters on Pinnacle Street and prepared for the next major change in telephone service, the change to the common battery system. On May 22 of that year, Belleville's telephone users joined the many others in Bell exchanges to be equipped with what was then the latest innovation in telephone service. The common battery system enabled subscribers to reach the operator without a hand-cranking and made for more efficient and faster service, because on the new multiple common battery switchboards every subscriber's line was within reach of any one operator.

2,500 Customers

An interview with Mr. Cokers in 1928 shows the rapid rate of growth in the district. Mr. Cokers then informed the press that there were more than 2,500 subscribers in Belleville with some 40 employees of the Bell serving them and Harry Bell, Belleville district had by this time grown to include the area from Napanee on the east, all Prince Edward County and Bancroft to the north. The growing needs of Trenton necessitated the laying of a cable across the Trent River, and the replacement of its old magneto type switchboard with common battery equipment in a new exchange in the Weddell building on Dundas Street.

By 1931, as Ontario, and in fact, all of Canada, was coming out of the depression years and progress was again beginning to be made locally and nationally, Belleville's population had topped 15,000. More than a third of the total population were listed as telephone users; and the exchange was headed by a new manager, G. W. Proctor had taken over when Mr. Cokers retired after more than 49 years of service with the telephone company.

Expansion was the byword from the mid thirties on. A 1937 item in the Belleville Ontario - Intelligencer indicates that a direct circuit from Belleville to Montreal was under construction, thereby bringing the total number of long distance circuits out of Belleville to 36. Belleville telephone users were taking advantage of the improved facilities to put through some 530 out-of-town calls a day.

The war years again called a halt to many expansion plans. But by September 1943, work was progressing on the Toronto-Montreal cable. In October 1943 a contract had been awarded for construction of a proposed repeater station at the corner of Bridge and Church streets in Belleville.

With the completion of the repeater station in 1944, Belleville became a vital link in cross-country communication. For it was here that fading voice currents were re energized on calls between Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal. This long distance talk traffic had mushroomed since the opening of the Trans-Canada Telephone System in 1932. With the opening of this system all long distance calls to other Canadian points were routed over Canadian lines, instead of United States lines as they had been before.

By 1949 Bell was using dial switching to house administrative offices and switchboard facilities had been erected on Front Street in Belleville. Sixteen switchboards, operating at the exchange were busy handling more than 37,000 local and almost 2,000 long distance calls daily.

A grand opening was held November 24, 1950 when the Bridge and Church Street extensions were completed and the business office in this up to date building was opened to the public. The new business office replaced the temporary one on Front Street. The following year a new long distance centre in the same building went into operation, thus bringing the operating staff to 165 and providing for increased long distance facilities for Belleville's subscribers. The expanded Bridge Street facilities also provided more room in the Pinnacle Street building for expanded local service. In the same year, construction got under way for a new dial building on Trenton's Middle Street, and vast quantities of cable and wire were installed to provide facilities for dial.

First major step in providing up to date service was the change to dial service which went into effect in 1951 in Trenton and in 1955 in Belleville.

Still further advancement was made in 1956 when direct distance dialing was inaugurated between Roanmore and Belleville.

Seven digit telephone numbers were introduced in Belleville in 1963.

Touch-Tone Bonus

In May 1970 construction began on a three-floor extension to the Bell building at the corner of Bridge and Church streets to house additional crossbar switching equipment necessary to provide future direct distance dialing for Belleville area.

By the time work is completed, 200,000 feet of wire, 158,000 feet of wire and 400,000 terminals will have been put in.

The total cost of conversion will no more than $2 million. And as an extra bonus with DDD, Belleville phone subscribers will have Touch-Tone service — where buttons replace the customer digit dialing.

Whey Disposal Problem May Close Selby Plant

Inability of the owner to purchase needed land for whey disposal and what are considered high property taxes may force a century-old cheese industry at Selby to close down.

Factory owner Harold Kingston of Harrowsmith says he has been unable to purchase the necessary 100 to 200 acres of land within pipeline distance of the Selby factory.

"No one around the (Selby) area will sell," said Mr. Kingston. "Unless we can acquire the land we will have to close."

He said that a representative of the Ontario Water Resources Commission visited the Selby plant and made it plain that something had to be done before the coming winter about the disposal of waste products.

At the present time whey and "wash water" is being hauled by tank truck and dumped in a swamp area.

Municipal taxes at the Selby cheese factory are $3,600, which Mr. Kingston says is three times that of a plant of similar capacity north of Belleville. A factory at Stirling with the same production pays $700.

The Selby cheese plant has an annual production of 1,500,000 pounds of cheddar cheese and an annual milk quota of 16,387,000 pounds, assigned by the Ontario Milk Marketing Board.

If the plant is closed, 10 or 11 employees would be affected. Should the factory close the milk quota would go to a factory at Harrowsmith north of Kingston, which is also owned by Mr. Kingston.

Pileup Damage $1,000

TWEED (Special) — A three-vehicle pileup south of Tweed Thursday resulted in a total of $1,000 damages to two of the cars involved.

The accident occurred at 9:15 a.m. Thursday one mile south of Tweed at the junction of Hastings road 13 and the Stoco Lake Road.

A car driven by Alexander D. Fraser of Ottawa sustained $500 damages, as did another car driven by Donald James Enoch of Tweed.

The third vehicle in the collision, a tank truck owned by LeSage Fuels in Tweed and driven by a former Hungerford reeve, William S. McCrea, was undamaged.

Mr. McCrea has been charged by Madoc OPP with making an improper turn.

CAHA President Waits for Rest of World to Change Stance

CALGARY, (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has not placed itself in an impossible situation with its stand on reinstated professionals, says president Joe Krycska.

"We're not out on a limb as far as some people think we are. We've taken a stand and maintained it. . . . Some Europeans may have thought we were bluffing, but we're not and sooner or later their stand may have to change."

Krycska said in an interview Thursday that he won't attend an International Ice Hockey Federation meeting in Prague next Tuesday.

Because the 36-year-old lawyer isn't a council member of the federation, he plans to pass up the meeting which also will drew up the schedule for the Olympic hockey tournament in Sapporo, Japan, next February.

"I'm not expecting anything to happen. We've been invited to participate in the make-up of the world and Olympic hockey schedules, and we're going just for that purpose," Krycska said.

Commenting on a report that Bunny Ahearne of London, president of the IIHF, has threatened to expel Canada from the world hockey body, Krycska says, "There's no way."

About the only thing Ahearne might try, he said, is "to work his politics and pressures to relieve Mr. Page from his position as president of the North American Federation in charge of the Olympic hockey program."

As Canada's hockey governing body, the CAHA withdrew from all phases of international hockey after Ahearne refused to allow Canadian teams in world competition to us professionals.

British Take Early Lead

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Youth and the prospect of continued cool weather stood in Britain's immediate favor as Ryder Cup golf matches resumed with four-ball competition over Old Warson Country Club's course today.

But a leader in an American try for a comeback, Jack Nicklaus, hinted strongly his team's best may be saved for the last in the international series.

"I think traditionally we never seem to do as well in foursomes," Nicklaus said in reference to Thursday's lasts resulting in a 4½-3½ deficit the Americans carried into today's eight matches.

"We just don't seem to play it enough," he added. "Where we should do better and where we always have is the past is with singles."

At least the first part of Nicklaus' consolation was borne out when Britain, paced by brilliant shots off the clubs of young Tony Jacklin, ran up a 3-1 lead in Thursday's Scotch foursomes.

The brash Britishers continued to pour it on with a 4-and-3 victory by youngsters Harry Bannerman and Bernard Gallacher before a second victory by Arnold Palmer and Gardner Dickinson stemmed the assault.

Nicklaus, rallying from what he termed an "incredibly poor" morning round, teamed with J. C. Snead to trim Britain's lead to 4-3.

America's best in the biendal tests appeared to have earned a 4-4 deadlock until the muscular Jacklin, uncanny with his wedges, chipped in from 30 feet on the 18th hole of the final match to forge a tie for himself and Brian Huggett against Lee Trevino and Mason Rudolph.

Trevino and Rudolph were to take the course again this morning in leading off best-ball matches, and the weather was of no small concern to the non-playing captain of their team.

"This certainly is the kind of weather our players favor," said Eric Brown, whose team gained the lead through opening-day matches for the first time on American soil.

Steady rain early Thursday delayed play 75 minutes and kept morning temperatures below 60 degrees. Today's forecast was for continued unseasonably cool temperatures and more rain.

"It's just like home," said a smiling Gallacher, a 22-year-old who teamed with fellow Scotsman Bannerman to upset veterans Billy Casper and Miller Barber 2 and 1.

The defeat was the second of the day for Casper and Barber, who were over par alone in losing by the same score to British Cup veterans Neil Coles and Christy O'Connor in the morning.

Casper, nursing a broken toe, and Barber were forced to a 4-and-3 victory in the morning's matches, which were scored on the basis of the better all hit by each two-man team.

Rhodesia Must Fly 'Jack'

LUXEMBOURG (AP) — The International Olympic Committee swept politics aside Thursday and got ready to welcome Rhodesian athletics at next year's Games, along with the old-style Rhodesian flag incorporating the Union Jack. If a Rhodesian should win a gold medal, God Save the Queen would be played at the presentation ceremony. Whatever the rebel Rhodesian government might think about this, leaders of the Rhodesian National Olympic committee have told the IOC president Avery Brundage they are happy with it, an IOC spokesman said. The Rhodesian IOC members — Grant Stuart, president, and Ossie Plaskett, secretary general — reportedly told Brundage in Munich last week: "We are sportsmen and are not interested in politics, and we are willing to compete under any flag." It was reported that about half of the 2.1 million tickets for next year's games scheduled to start Aug. 26, have already been sold.

TORONTO (CP) — Jim Gregory, Toronto Maple Leaf general manager, said Thursday he expected to meet today with goaltender Bernie Parent and his lawyer, Howard Casper of Philadelphia, in an effort to settle their contract dispute. Parent was traded to the Leafs last season by Philadelphia Flyers, while on the second year of a three-year contract with the National Hockey League club. He has missed the first five days of training camp. Although Parent has not been suspended by the club, coach Johnny McLellan said the goaltender would not accompany the team for exhibition games against Minnesota North Stars in Bloomington, Minn., Saturday and in Winnipeg Sunday.

EDMONTON (CP) — Dave Gasser, one of the key men in Edmonton Eskimos' defensive lineup, did not turn up for practice Wednesday and coach Ray Jauch said Thursday the line-backer could be suspended. "I don't know where Gasser is," Jauch said. GaGaser is a four-year veteran of the Eskimos and was a WFC All-Star last season.

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — The United States will not be represented in the World amateur baseball championships next month in Havana, Cuba. "We made this decision at our meeting in Houston and Omaha," Jim Fehring, U.S. Baseball Federation president, said Thursday. Fehring said the federation had decided it was not practical to play in the world tournament in the same year as the Olympics or Pan-American Games.

Warrior Shots Count

BRANTFORD, (CP) — New Westminster Salmonbellies outskated Brantford Warriors Thursday night but suffered a 12-10 loss in the third game of the Mann Cup final senior A Canadian championship.

"We're checking a lot better, but we're still missing out chances," said New Westminster playing coach Paul Parnell, whose team now must win four in a row to come out champions.

The Salmonbellies had a 48-30 edge in shots. The Warriors were never headed after Al Gordanier shot them into the lead at the 17-second mark of the first half, but they were ahead only 4-3 at the end of the first period and 9-7 at the end of the second.

Gaylord Fowless led the Brantford attack with four goals. Gordanier, Paul Suggate and Ted Howe scored two each. Single goals scorers were Jerry McKenna and Ron MacNeil.

Brantford took 11 minor penalties and New Westminster seven.

Attendance of 1,563 was the lowest of the series.

Lowly Padres Playing Spoiler

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

San Diego Padres, last in the National League West Division with the worst record in baseball, beat Los Angeles 4-1 Thursday night and halted the Dodgers' drive toward the top of the division.

The loss prevented Los Angeles from moving into a tie with San Francisco after the slumping Giants lost 8-1 earlier in the day to Cincinnati Reds.

In other National League games, Chicago Cubs nipped New York Mets 1-0, Montreal Expos stopped Philadelphia Phillies 6-2, Atlanta Braves trimmed Houston Astros 4-3 and Pittsburgh Pirates bombed St. Louis Cardinals 9-1.

"The only thing we can do is knock off some of the contenders," said manager Preston Gomez, whose Padres also won the opener of the two-game set at Dodger Stadium Wednesday night. "At least we can get some people talking about the Padres."

"You've got to help yourself to get the breaks," said a disappointed Walt Alston, the Dodger manager. "We just haven't been helping ourselves the last two games."

While the Giants maintained a one-game lead despite themselves in the West, Pittsburgh Pirates neared an easy clinching in the East by stopping second-place St. Louis. The Pirates pushed their lead to 9½ games over the Cardinals and any combination of three Pittsburgh victories or three St. Louis defeats will clinch the pennant.

Fred Norman, a former Dodger who pitched a seven-hitter for San Diego, called the victory "the biggest of my career."

Not All Baseball Races for Pennant

One American League divisional race is already over and the other is all but decided.

But there was plenty of squabbles going on—fights to gain at least a small share of the post-season money and to avoid the ignominy, of a last-place finish.

Like Cleveland Indians, battling with Washington to stay out of the East Division cellar. Manager Alvin Dark would have moved the tribe within half a game of the fifth-place Senators but after taking several leads against Boston, the Indians wound up on the short end of a 10-7 final score.

In other American League games, Minnesota Twins beat Milwaukee Brewers 7-3, California Angels edged Kansas City Royals 3-1, Detroit Tigers defeated Washington Senators 5-1 and Baltimore Orioles bested New York Yankees 6-3. Western Division champion Oakland Athletics and Chicago White Sox were idle.

Indiana manager Johnny Lipon, who took over July 30 when Alvin Dark was fired and his agent all but one day at the bottom of the heap since then, was succinct when asked if his team is just playing out the season.

Detroit's two-run, tie-breaking double ignited the three-run eighth inning that carried the Red Sox past Cleveland.

Clyde Wright pitched six no-hit innings and finished with a three-hitter to beat the Royals.

The Orioles, retaining their eight-game East Division lead over the Tigers, reduced to eight the magic number which will lock up that race. Any combination of Baltimore victories and Detroit losses totalling eight will do it.

He had lost his first four decisions to his former team-mates.

Cincinnati's Ross Grimsley extended San Francisco's September slide with a three-hitter as the Reds cut down the Giants. It was San Francisco's 11th loss in 12 games, a nosedive which shaved most of its 9½-game lead in two weeks.

George Foster, traded by San Francisco to Cincinnati earlier this year, crashed a grand slam home run as the Reds sealed the victory with a five-run eighth inning.

A combined seven-hitter by Luke Walker and Ramon Hernandez led Pittsburgh over St. Louis. The Pirates scored two runs in the third and two in the fourth, all off Cardinal starter Jerry Reuss.

Juan Pizarro pitched a six-hitter and drove in the game's only run with a homer as Chicago beat New York.

Steve Renko stopped Philadelphia on five hits for Montreal and Sonny Jackson stroked a tie-breaking single in the eighth for Atlanta.

Mavety Given Good Chance

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

LARRY MAVETY was considered a talented enough defenceman for the National Hockey League's Buffalo Sabres to buy him and protected him in the June player draft.

But for those who were still curious about his chances of sticking with Punch Imlach's second-year expansionists the word from the Sabres' St. Catharines training camp is "good".

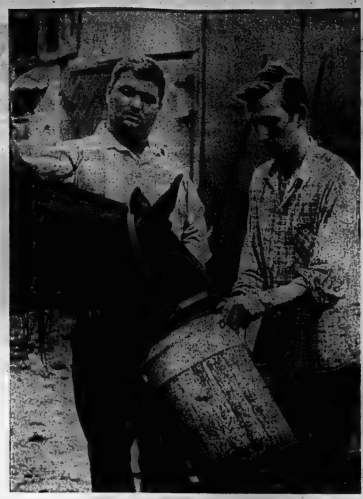
"They're pretty high on him", said newsman Jack Gatecliff, who devoted a goodly portion of a Thursday's column to the 29-year-old Woodstock native who played his junior hockey and makes his home in Belleville.

According to Gatecliff, hardnosed Sabre coach Punch Imlach isn't considering anyone untouchable. "As far as he's concerned, every position is open," the Garden City newsman informed. "Altogether, there are about 24 defencemen in camp. But a lot of them are only being consigned for the Cincinnati and Salt Lake City farm clubs."

LARRY MAVETY

"I'd say Mavety's chances of starting the season with the Sabres were pretty good. If they didn't think a lot of him, they wouldn't have protected him in the draft."

Mavety attracted Buffalo's attention with his rugged play with the Western League's Denver Spurs the past two seasons, in which he was selected to berths on the league's second all-star team.



His offensive credentials were also impressive. Mavety picked up 57 points the season before last, and his 63 points last winter made him the second highest producer in the Denver lineup.

MAVETY'S PURCHASE by Imlach was just one of the many shrewd moves that have helped the Buffalo coach convince skeptics that the Sabres are a hockey team, after all.

That point was debatable by anyone who had the dubious privilege of watching the Sabres struggle through their first NHL training camp at Peterborough one year ago. Buffalo management had paid the $6,000,000 expansion price for the opportunity of selecting 20 rejects from establish-

Manicure for Minado

Owner-driver Larry Zebedee straightens the mane of his five-year-old pacer Minado, while trainer Don Kellar mans the water bucket. Minado, after recording three wins this season to go with six victories in 1970, will not be entered in Saturday night's card at the Quinte Raceway because of a virus. However, Zebedee will be attempting to add to his impressive total of nine Belleville wins this season when he guides Resin Bow to the post in the sixth race of the night.

Zebedee Only Posing One Threat for Rivals

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

Rival drivers in Saturday night's Quinte Raceway Harness Card will be thankful that they don't have to face double trouble from Larry Zebedee this week.

The Belleville driver has been one of the top men on the Quinte cards this season, mainly because of the performances of Minado and Resin Bow. Each pacer has accounted for three wins this season to provide the lion's share of Zebedee's nine wins.

The Belleville owner-driver will not have Minado entered in this week's event because of a virus that forced him to be scratched from last Saturday's card, as well. The brown five - year - old horse, raised by Zebedee himself, has come on with the years and a second in five starts this season for his owner.

All of the victories have been on the Belleville track. We race here because it costs down the 'travelling costs," says Larry, a Sidney Street resident. "We'll probably be racing him in Kingston later in the year. They're going to operate all winter."

The Zebedee stable includes 12 horses, although Minado is the only one currently competing. "Living close to the fairground . it was pretty easy to get interested in it." is how the driver explains his interest in harness racing. He has been participating in the sport for 11 years.

With Minado out of action, Zebedee's hopes for a win will be riding with Resin Bow, a four - year -old bay gelding owned by Keith and Ruth Ferguson of Bloomfield. Resin Bow who has recorded three wins at Quinte and another victory at Kingston's Frontenac Downs this season will be attempting to add to the total in the sixth race of Saturday night's card.

One of the challengers in the sixth heat will be Ben Wemp-reining Chanda C, one of a quartet of horses making their first appearance on the Belleville track this season.

Rollins Had Best Contacts

Batters in last night's Commercial Softball League final weren't making contact with the ball too often, as they made the most of the opportunity when they did connect.

Rollins Construction took advantage of long blasts by Wayne McTaggart and Steve Ling to bang a 2-1 loss on Point Anne's Jamie Hunter, despite a five-hit effort by the Cementman right hander.

The deliveries of Wayne McConnell were even tougher to solve as he recorded his third win of the series by checking Point Anne on just four hits.

The losers drew first blood as Eric Maher opened the game with a triple and rode home on Bruce Stickle's single for the only Point Anne run. A fourth-inning single by Tom MacDonald and a similar safety by Jim Horwood in the sixth were the only other hits off McConnell. He set down 11 batters on strikes, while walking only one.

WAYNE McTAGGART

Wayne McTaggart tied the game for Rollins in the fourth frame crashing a solo homer over centre field fence. The winning tally came two innings later as Steve Ling belted a lead-off triple and consequently scored on Cliff Scott's sacrifice fly.

Ling added a single to his blast, while McConnell, McTaggart and Carl Boomhower had the other hits off Hunter.

The win gave Rollins a 3-2 lead in the series with the sixth game scheduled for Sunday, 8 p.m. at the Alemite.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

I saw an interesting cartoon recently. A husband is sitting dejectedly on a couch, and his wife stands over him saying, "You need a hobby — something to relax you after a golf game." There is your picture which represents more than 10,000 words. Hobbies can be overdone.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband is always tired. Actually exhausted. He is a hard worker, but that is not the reason. He has become a golf addict. Gets up as early as 4:30 or 5 a.m. so he can tee off at the public golf links. At least four times during the week he plays golf, as well as on weekends.

Is there any wonder he is always tired? He gets very little sleep, walks with a heavy golf bag in early morning and walks a great deal at work. When he arrives home he is too tired to eat. We never go out.

Don't you think that is overdoing it? He claims it is relaxation and promotes fitness. — Mrs. M.

* * *

COMMENT: My guess is that your husband is riding his hobby to the hilt, Dear. One of these days it may throw him. He may get hurt. You have got to see how old he is. If he is in his 40s or 50s or over he may be taxing his circulatory system. If he is younger, then he is not being responsible to the social needs of his family.

I believe in golf — taken in moderate doses. But if the results are as indicated in the cartoon (by Kaz) in Modern Medicine — so that you "need something to relax you after a golf game" — then better get off the hobby horse.

Undoubtedly you have heard of the patient who took the entire bottle of medicine at one time and told his doctor, "If a teaspoonful three times a day is helpful, I thought I would take the whole bottle to get well faster."

It's just as ridiculous to overdo any hobby — however good. Some people read too late into the night and lose necessary sleep. Some ride a bike for many miles when they are fit to ride only shorter distances. Some men work too hard at tennis, jogging, woodworking in the basement, painting the house, keeping the lawn neat.

I am not talking, of course, of giving up hobbies that give satisfaction and relaxation. Only saying that you pace yourself — not ride at break-neck speed day after day.

* * *

For Mrs. G.: Yes, it is possible for a man to be married for 10 years to one woman and not have children and then remarry and become a father. Whether or not a man is sterile can usually be determined easily by a physician.

For Mrs. T.: My 18-month-old son is pigeon-toed. He stumbles and falls all over himself. Does this require any special treatment? Shall I see his pediatrician?—Mrs. F.

COMMENT: Why not mention it to him at your baby's next checkup? Often mothers forget to mention walking problems in the excitement of the office visit.

Usually pigeon-toes straighten themselves out. Normal rotation of bones takes place in time. But often practical devices help mother nature: special shoes, night splints — or even plaster casts for more serious cases of pigeon-toe.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Adult Blind Neglected

Of the hundreds of charitable requests that pour across my desk during the year, the most impassioned and the most appealing are for "the blind". For most sighted persons, there is a particular poignancy about blindness that brings out most philanthropic instincts.

Recently, I received an appeal from a group called "Keren Or," an institute for the blind in Jerusalem, which accommodates more than 150 blind children and provides "rehabilitation, education and adjustment, and job training". What could be a worthier charitable project than this?

Well, I know nothing about Keren Or, except what the literature chooses to tell me; but I have been alerted that many such welfare agencies in the U.S. at least are more concerned with taking care of their own needs than in providing for the people they claim to serve.

In the case of aid to the blind, especially, Robert A. Scott of Princeton a few years ago found that there is little correlation between the kind of help agencies offer and the actual demographic traits of the blind population. Blind children — largely because of their emotional impact upon the charitable impulses — are suffocated with attention, while the rest of the blind population gets only the skim.

Writing in the professional journal, "Social Problems," Scott makes the point that most of the nearly one million blind people in the U.S. are between 55 and 80 years old; 70 per cent are women; and only 1 per cent are children under 15 — but almost all services to the blind are offered to children and young employable adults.

There are about 800 separate agencies serving the blind, in addition to hundreds having programs aimed chiefly for children and young adults, and less than 10 per cent exclusively for the elderly blind. But with more people growing older every year, this proportion should probably be reversed, so that the great majority of blind people might be helped.

In New York City, for instance, where there are big agencies and six smaller ones serve only an estimated 1,000 blind children — while the agencies often compete for "clients" in this crowded field. As the magazine "Transaction" summarizes Scott's findings: "once a client is new he is cherished, encouraged to organize his life around the agency, to work in its shelter, to live in its residence."

As a result, the surgeon concludes, the agency has succeeded in cutting the blind client off from the rest of the community, which is the very force from proclaimed objective of making blind persons "independent". He wonders unseenly how widespread this condition is.

For September 18

Your birthday today: All upcoming year are toward simplification of your daily life. A program should be devised for clearing off bad habits, disposing of material possessions which no longer contribute to your welfare and progress. Today's natives serve their world gently with propriety.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): A swarm of helpful friends and acquaintances arrive. Sound actions which will not stand their getting mixed in; enjoy doing other things together.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Clear off bothersome items first leave some time and space available for the unexpected.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Begin early with serious concern over what you would like to bring about. Pace your efforts to avoid both rush and fatigue, and to reconsider important details.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Sometimes you must toot your own horn but this isn't such a time. Trading compliments adds very little help, either.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Practical jokes are out of fashion but still occur at scattered times and places. It pays to read everything that happens as entertainment and a learning process.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Explore all social encounters seeking clues to your lasting romantic and sentimental concerns and riddles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): A chance to improve earnings pops up suddenly. You have little time for consideration — take it or leave it. Your normal chores and duties must carry an usual too.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Put in your own ideas, forthrightly, with some consideration of the context and other peoples' schemes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Use your best search patterns to find workable ventures. Realize you may be idealizing others. Get an outside opinion.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Much, if not most, of what comes to you now comes from sources beyond your reach or control. Be considerate and willing to work around imposed limitations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Family demands, the needs of your neighborhood and community lend to override other interests. Something has to yield.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Either your immediate environment changes abruptly and for the better, or your reaction to it develops a definite pattern and fresh direction with equivalent result.

Trudeau Admits Job Situation 'Very Serious'

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau acknowledged Thursday that the Canadian unemployment situation is "very serious," but said his government isn't sure what's causing it.

The prime minister faced a barrage of opposition attacks in the Commons following the release of Statistics Canada figures earlier in the day that showed the seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate climbed in August to 6.5 per cent of the labor force.

For months, Finance Minister Benson has been predicting a decline in the unemployment rate.

But although the rate gradually declined last winter from its 6.8 per cent peak last September, it jumped to 6.7 per cent in April, dropped to 6.3 per cent in May, climbed again to 6.4 per cent in June and fell again to 6.3 per cent in July before rising again.

Mr. Trudeau said the August figures are "significantly impressive." He wasn't in a position to say why they were so high—that would take "a considerable study" by the government.

The prime minister said the reason the unemployment figure in June was because fewer young people had withdrawn from the labor force than they usually do in August.

"We are trying to understand the significance of it. Does it mean that our young people are less interested in furthering their education than in previous times, or is it is just a temporary situation?

"Does it have to do with rejection of the work ethic or study ethic or acceptance of the work ethic?"

Unemployment actually declined in August by 38,000 to 455,000, but that drop was smaller than usual for the month. It subsequently left the seasonally-adjusted rate, which is used to determine the trend, at a higher figure.

The rise was due entirely to persons under 25, among whom the jobless rate rose to 11.9 per cent in August from 10.8 per cent in July. The seasonally-adjusted rate for persons over 25 declined to 4.4 per cent from 4.5 per cent.

Unemployment dominated the Commons' day, even though the opposition had other issues to jump on.

The morning figures from Statistics Canada also showed the consumer price index for August up dramatically to 135 points, a jump from 134.1 in July and carrying within it the largest July-to-August increase in food prices in more than a decade.

And Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North), after several attempts in the week, finally came up with a motion acceptable to Speaker Lucien Lamoureux attacking the government for discontinuing payments to Western farmers under the Temporary Wheat Reserves Act while the act is still law.

The debate permitted by the motion took up the evening. In between question period and the wheat debate, members continued second-reading consideration of the government's tax change bill—and used it to assail economic policies again.

Discomfort Index Up

OTTAWA (CP) — The rate of inflation quickened last month, and while the number of people actually unemployed was cut, the long-term trend of unemployment also rose, government statistics showed Thursday.

The combined effect of higher prices and the long-term unemployment trend was to push the so-called economic discomfort index to a record 9.7.

The discomfort index, conceived by Arthur Okun, a former member of the American council of economic advisers, combines the year's average rate of unemployment with the latest 12-month increase in consumer prices.

Its previous record was set in Canada in 1958, when it was 9.6.

Benson Asks U.S. to Avoid More Curbs

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has appealed to the United States to refrain from imposing additional trade restrictions in response to a proposed program to provide federal subsidies to Canadian exporters.

A letter to U.S Treasury Secretary John Connally from Finance Minister E. J. Benson asks him to regard the subsidy program as a measure to maintain employment, not as a form of retaliation against U.S. import surcharges imposed Aug. 15.

At the same time, Canadian authorities are asking Japan and European trading partners to guard against permitting a heavy increase of exports to Canada.

Officials are particularly worried that shipments of steel, automobiles and textile products originally intended for the U.S. market may be diverted into Canada, disrupting markets here.

The government's actions were disclosed Thursday by Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin at a session of the Commons finance committee.

The finance committee is studying emergency government legislation that would provide grants to factories that normally export at least one-fifth of production to the United States and whose output and employment are jeopardized by the new U.S surcharge of up to 10 per cent.

Canada has appealed unsuccessfully for exemption from the U.S. surcharges. At the same time, it is attempting to persuade Japan and Western Europe to co-operate in developing a new system of currency exchange that would benefit U.S. trade—a condition set by the United States before it would consider repealing the import surcharges

In the meantime, there are fears in Ottawa that the program to help Canadian exporters—carrying grants that would cover up to two-thirds of the U.S surcharges—will trigger U.S. countervailing duties against the entry of Canadian goods.

Toronto Telegram Owners Decide to Stop Publishing

Not A Normal Parking Spot

Firemen examine the situation which ensued when a truck lost its brakes, rammed through a protective railing and ended up wedged against the rooftop of a house on a hillside in Sao Paolo. Both the driver and occupant of the house were injured, neither seriously. (AP Photo)

Heavy Losses Force Closing

TORONTO (CP) — John Bassett, publisher of The Telegram, told employees today a decision has been taken to cease publication of the 95-year-old paper, Canada's fourth largest daily.

His announcement on the front page of the paper gave no definite date, but said "the decision has been taken."

About 1,200 employees will be affected.

Mr. Bassett, in a front-page statement in The Telegram, said he had decided to cease publication because of continuing financial losses.

"In the past two years, the Toronto Telegram has lost about $2,000,000 and a loss of a further $1,000,000 is estimated for 1971," he said.

First word of the decision was in the posting of a notice on bulletin boards at the newspaper.

Printed in the same words as the announcement on the front page of The Telegram's first edition today, it said many details still must be completed and "hopefully, the newspaper will continue to appear for a time, but the decision has been taken."

The Telegram has been involved in labor contract negotiations with 900 editorial and mechanical employees.

Unions representing employees of The Telegram issued a joint statement saying they remain willing to work with Mr. Bassett or "any responsible individual or group" in an effort to keep the paper alive.

The Council of Toronto Newspaper Unions said Mr. Bassett had been a "forthright but firm negotiator" but "regretted a unilateral proposal for a one-year deferment of wage increases had not been given more consideration.

The afternoon newspaper has an average daily circulation of 238,000. Toronto has two other English-language dailies—the afternoon Star, and the morning Globe and Mail.

Mr. Bassett's announcement said the newspaper has been losing money steadily in recent years.

"Attempts have been made to sell the newspaper as a 'going concern.' For obvious financial reasons no buyer was prepared to accept the responsibility of continuing to publish."

He said The Telegram has lost about $2 million in the last two years and a further loss of $1 million is estimated for 1971.

In recent years, a total of $2,300,000 had been acquired from other sources to keep the newspaper alive.

"Most recently, $5 million was acquired through the sale of shares held in the Maple Leaf Gardens and the Toronto Argonauts. The entire amount was used to reduce the corporate debt of The Toronto Telegram."

Mr. Bassett said he has sold some unspecified assets of The Telegram and is negotiating for the sale of others.

"The purchase price will be used to liquidate the newspaper's commitments to employees, suppliers and financial institutions who have extended credit.

"All commitments will, of course, be met."

Mr. Bassett noted that "rising costs of production and a shrinking share of the advertising dollar" have forced closure of many publications in the United States and Britain in the years.

FORMER PRIME MINISTER... John Diefenbaker smiles at well-wishers on his return to Ottawa Friday. He arrived back after 10 days in hospital in Wales. (CP Photo)

The Chief Is Home

OTTAWA (CP) — After 11 days in a Welsh hospital, a spry John Diefenbaker arrived home Friday night, ready to pounce on the government over inflation and hinting he might jump into the Assiniboia bylection campaign.

"It's unbelievable how I feel when you consider how I was 10 days ago.

"I am in fighting trim."

Mr. Diefenbaker and his wife arrived at Ottawa in an armed forces plane after a seven-hour flight from Manchester and, on the eve of his 76th birthday, he didn't waste any time in getting after the government.

"Last December the prime minister said that inflation had ended . . . apparently that was one occasion when he was far away from the facts.

About the November bylection in Saskatchewan: "When a campaign starts, my interest sometimes develops very quickly."

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield was at the airport to greet his predecessor, and spend several minutes with him at the aircraft before Mr. Diefenbaker came down the steps.

Crash Kills Eighteen

Fifteen Quebec Tourists Die In Highway Accident in Spain

VALDEPENAS, Spain (Reuter) — Nine Canadians were in serious condition in hospital today with injuries suffered in a head-on highway collision that killed 18 persons Friday.

The condition of four of the Canadians was described as grave, and doctors worked through the night in an effort to save their lives.

Seventeen of the dead—all but two from Quebec—were members of a party of 28 Canadian tourists, most of them women, en route to Costa del Sol as part of a 21-day excursion tour of France and Spain that began Sept. 9.

The accident, which took place on a main highway near this town 130 miles south of Madrid, also took the life of the Spanish truck driver whose vehicle had a flat tire and swerved into the path of the Canadians' southbound bus.

Police said the truck was loaded with bricks.

Nine tourists, the French bus driver and the Spanish tour guide were seriously injured in the crash, which occurred about halfway between Valdepenas and the town of Santa Cruz de Mudela in Spain's La Mancha region.

A Canadian embassy official who cargo from Madrid released the names of the dead and injured. But the identities of those who were gravely hurt were not made known.

Police sources here said the tour was organized by the Montreal travel agency of Agence Andre Malavoy.

After coming from Paris, the 26 Canadians had spent Thursday night in Madrid before leaving Friday morning for Spain's south coast and a tour of the Andalusia region.

They had just eaten lunch in Valdepenas and were on their way south when the accident occurred.

All 17 of the dead tourists were believed to have been killed outright, The truck driver, 51-year-old Antonio Sanchez Blanco, died later in hospital.

Among the injured, only Spanish tour guide Pedro Villalba Fernande was able to speak to reporters today.

"I was explaining the characteristics of the countryside to the tourists," he said, "when I felt a tremendous blow, and I don't remember anything else."

Canadian Ambassador J. E. G. Hardy is expected here today to visit the injured and supervise the preparation of the bodies for shipment home.

The five-ton truck was almost demolished. Its right end was pushed into the driver's cab. Most of the load of bricks was scattered along the highway's shoulder.

A civil guard officer at the scene—a straight, wide, flat stretch of highway about six miles south of Valdepenas—said the truck was travelling at about 50 m.p.h. and the bus at about 65 m.p.h. at the time of the collision.

Bomb Damages Building Housing Prison Officials

ATTICA, N.Y. (AP) — A bomb damaged restrooms in an Albany building which houses officers of New York state prison officials Friday while congressmen and investigators visited Attica state prison in search of facts on disorders at the institution which left 40 men dead.

Police at Albany said they could see no connection between the bomb, which injured no one, and the bloody suppression of the prisoner riot Monday.

Warning calls about the bomb had been made to the Albany Times-Union and the New York Daily News by persons who said they were members of the radical Weatherman group.

The U.S. House of Representatives select committee on crime planned to return to the prison today. Chairman Claude Pepper (Dem., Fla.) said the group will stay at Attica "as long as we feel it is profitable to stay here."

Union Head Wants Firm Taken Over

TORONTO (CP) — Kent Rowley, president of the striking Canadian Chemical and Textile Workers Union, asked the provincial government Friday to make Texpack Ltd. in Brantford a Crown corporation.

Mr. Rowley also asked Attorney-General Allan Lawrence not to proceed with more than 100 charges that have been laid as the result of violence at the plant during the two-month strike.

Mr. Rowley and Mr. Lawrence met for about an hour. In a subsequent interview, Mr. Rowley said the attorney-general told him he would take the union's suggestions to the cabinet for discussion.

The union president said he also urged the government, through the Ontario Hospital Services Commission, to prevent hospitals from buying from Texpack until the strike is settled.

Mr. Rowley said he asked Mr. Lawrence to ensure that United States Army surplus bandages, which he said Texpack had been selling, were not being used in Ontario health institutes.

Mr. Rowley said he also asked the government to take action to curb the Brantford police.

He said if the government took over the company it would have "a guaranteed market" at the many hospitals across the province.

Peace Ship Crew Visits Indians on Way to Nuclear Test Site

"Sure we need it! You want someone to destroy the world before we do?"

VANCOUVER (CP) — The halibut boat carrying the Greenpeace protest mission to the Amchitka nuclear test site in the Aleutian Islands made the second unscheduled stop of its voyage Friday when minor problems developed with one of the pumps.

The vessel docked at the Indian fishing village of Klemtu in Finlayson Channel, off the British Columbia mainland about 355 miles north of here, while engineer Dave Birmingham did repair work.

Crew member Ben Metcalfe said in a radio-telephone message to Vancouver Friday night the crew spent the day visiting with some of the village's 200 residents, who invited them to a potluck dinner. They also waited for Prime Minister Trudeau to reply to their telephone calls.

The crew placed a call to the prime minister in Ottawa Thursday, planning to ask him to make a personal appeal to President Nixon to cancel the test set for sometime next month.

When the crew called again Friday, they were told Mr. Trudeau was away for the weekend. So they relayed a message to Liberal MP Ray Perrault (Burnaby-Seymour) in Ottawa.

Mr. Perrault said, "Let me tell you there's a lot going on behind the scenes here you know."

"I think there is a good chance the Americans are going to hold off."

Earlier Friday, Mr. Perrault signed a petition protesting the five-megaton underground blast being circulated by MPs on Parliament Hill.

He said the petition, which would be sent to President Nixon Monday morning through the U.S. ambassador to Canada, had been signed by more than 50 Liberal MPs.

The protest letter was written by British Columbia New Democrat MP Barry Mather,

BRANDON (CP) — The Canadian Native Justice League has urged United States President Richard Nixon to stop the proposed nuclear tests at Amchitka Island in the Aleutians next month.

In a letter to the president, the league says that white people have destroyed half the environment of North America, and the underground nuclear test would further contribute to deterioration of the ecology.

"We beg you, Mr. President," the letter says, "on behalf of the aboriginals of this land, and on behalf of humanity itself: Use your power to stop the Amchitka disgrace, and use your efforts towards a total nuclear disarmament."

The league is a Brandon-based group involved in securing native rights.

Enumerators Start Tours Next Week

Beginning Wednesday, Sept. 22, enumerators will be approaching households across the province, seeking out eligible voters and gathering data to compile this year's voters list.

Carrying a large yellow brief, marked with the Ontario government trillium insignia, enumerators will cover each of the 124 polling subdivisions to obtain this information.

Enumerators who approach a residents in the daytime and find no one home, will return in the evening. A card will be left at the door. In the event no one can be reached, instructing the family to contact the Returning Office, located at 281 Front Street, Belleville, at 968-8231.

"By phoning this number," said Gerald Joyce, returning officer, "a prospective voter can arrange a time for a special enumerator to come to his home."

There will be two such teams working in the city of Belleville and one team in the town of Trenton.

"Even at failing this requirement, an urban voter can contact the revising officer in person (in the same office as returning officer) before the election and be entered on a revised voting list," said Gerald Joyce, also acting as revising officer. "Failing this, he can not vote."

The same setup will apply to the rural voter but "one more chance will be given to him, in order that he can participate," said Mr. Joyce.

At the time of actual balloting, a rural resident can approach the polling station with a "friend" and be entered to the voters' list on the spot.

"This friend," said Mr. Joyce, "must be in the same polling subdivision, must qualify as a voter himself and it must take an oath swearing that his unlisted friend has the legal right to vote.

To have this right, one must be a Canadian citizen or a British subject, be a resident of the area, and have the legal age requirement of 18 on or before Oct. 21.

"It is important that 17-year-olds be enumerated if they will be turning 18 before the election," said Mr. Joyce.

Under the new election act, numerous changes have been made in the enumeration procedure, which Dr. R. T. Potter claims "gets rid of the nonsense in the previous act."

Now a voter can make any kind of mark at all in one of the boxes. Before if the voter did not make an X the ballot was considered spoiled and was disqualified.

One of the biggest changes in the administration of enumeration is the appointment of the returning officer by the provincial government as a lifetime position.

"I believe that the government is trying to gain a continuity of polling procedure, and by having the same person each year doing the job, the system will become similar from year to year," said Mr. Joyce."

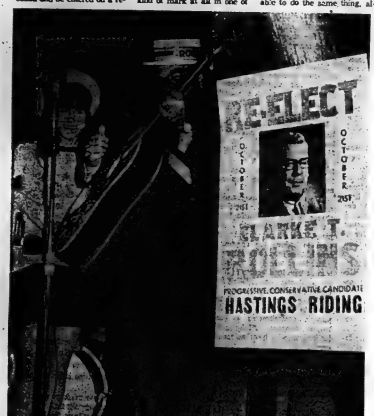
As well as this, the same person not only is the returning officer, but is also the revising officer.

Some of the nonsense, weeded-out of the system includes the enumeration of special cases, including bed-ridden patients, shutins, old people incapacitated at home and servicemen.

In the past, patients in hospital took their franchise to place a vote. This year, through the use of a friend, the patient will be able to vote on a proxy (completing a form and sending it with the friend).

Servicemen and students away from home will be able to do the same thing, allowing them to vote in their own district.

Before, servicemen were enumerated separately from their families and placed their vote on the base.



Another significant change in the enumeration of the public is not only the party in power, but first runner-up in that party will have an enumerator in each subdivision.

"Part of the reason for this comes from the high costs of the election," said Mr. Joyce. "This way, there is greater representation of both political parties and the cost will be slight to each rather than a burden to one."

Enumerators have been taking classes on voting technique, so when they come to the door and are faced with questions, they will be able to answer them and counsel the public on what to expect at the polling station.

Enumeration will be on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week, and it is essential that all eligible voters be listed at this time.

"Be at home or use the phone, be part of an election," says Mr. Joyce.

Queensboro Novelist Rates Reviewers' Raves

First, there was poet Al Purdy in Ameliasburg. And now there's novelist Leo Simpson from Queensboro to the north, descending upon the world of letters with his first book, Arkwright.

The novel was released Friday, but you couldn't prove it by a perusal of Belleville bookshops.

Somebody at Macmillan Company, the Toronto publishers, goofed. No copies or advance publicity forewarned local booksellers of the new author of considerable stature in their midst.

Said Don Coles in The Globe and Mail: "A sticky comic novel, satirizing in turn speed-reading colleges, the food industry, engendered religion, TV panel - shows, youth culture and whatever else catches his author's astonished and intricate eye . . . the level of writing here is so consistently intelligent the set-pieces so exuberant and inventive . . ."

Arkwright is set in Toronto and New York, but it was written on Leo Simpson's farm near Queensboro, where he moved in 1966 from Toronto with the intention of writing full time.

Writing Arkwright occupied three years, and Mr. Simpson is now well into his second novel, to be entitled The Peacock Papers. Its setting is a small city, something like Belleville, but entirely fictional, the author says. Ideas for his third book are already churning around in his mind.

A native of Limerick, Ireland, Mr. Simpson last spring received a Canada Council grant to enable him to complete his second novel. Before moving to Queensboro he was publicity manager for Macmillan, the company that published his book.

But the author has close ties with Belleville. His wife, the former Jacqueline Murphy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Murphy of this city. Mrs. Simpson is assistant head of the English department at Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc, and the couple has an 18-month-old daughter, Julie.

City Employees Edmonton-bound

Bob Cook, president of Local 907 of the city of Belleville public works and Ira Wager president of Local 1102 of the Belleville utilities, will leave Sunday for Edmonton to attend a week-long national convention of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

On the agenda for the convention is election of officers, changes in the constitution and discussions on unemployment insurance changes, labor legislation changes and social and political action of the labor forces.

Mr. Cook is also president and Ira Wager the vice-president of the CUPE Hastings District Council which also takes in Prince Edward County.

Rubbish Pick-up Monday

It's rubbish pick-up time again!

Starting Monday city works trucks will fan out over the city to pick up the accumulation of rubbish and other debris which has collected at residents' homes in the past two months.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell asks that the rubbish be piled at the curbside in time for the pick-up as trucks will make only one trip along each street.

Grass particles and other small debris should be placed in boxes or other containers for easy pick-up.

MOH Supports Family Planning

At a meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward County Board of Health several topics were discussed including enriched family planning services, criticisms of the Rock Acres Peace Festival and extended services to the school boards by the county health unit for the coming year.

"Since March of this year," said Dr. C. R. Lenk, county health officer, "we have made some 500 visits to local and area homes, offering counselling services in family planning.

"Although the program is not included in the budget," said Dr. Lenk, "I feel that the service should be carried on, and we should talk with as many people as possible."

The Rock Acres Peace Festival received harsh criticism from many of the board members who claimed, "the festival organizers should be the ones to supply and finance complete medical facilities, and not the taxpayers as a whole."

Dr. Lenk offered no personal opinion of the festival, claiming "the morals of the participants are none of my business." Dr. Lenk did admit that he was most concerned about the "crude sanitation conditions at the festival especially the toilets."

Something new for this year will be the TB testing of grade one students, in the past these tests were administered only to school staff and students in grades 9, 12 and 13.

"Rather than having the chest clinic carry out this testing, the county health unit will be taking it over to take some of the load off the chest clinic," said Dr. Lenk. "The results of the testing will still be given to the chest clinic, and any follow-up work needed will be done by them" concluded Dr. Lenk.

Community Endowment Funds

On frequent occasions grateful members of a community wish to show their appreciation by leaving a bequest or making a donation. Churches and hospitals are often the recipients.

With the growing emphasis being placed on the ecology, it would appear as a logical move for the Moira River Conservation Authority to establish an endowment fund. Under the plan now established, individuals may make donations of either cash or land to the fund with the appropriate tax adjustments now able to be taken into consideration.

With municipalities and governments continually hardpressed for funds, the authority's move opens the door for another source of income which might well be the key to adequate expansion of facilities and services in the future.

Undoubtedly the pressure will mount in the years ahead, for conservation authority records now show that Quinte area residents and visitors are, more and more, taking advantage of authority parkland, campsites, historical attractions and swimming areas.

The idea might well have merit for consideration by another body. the Hastings County Museum. If an endowment fund could be established for this vital facet of our community, the accrued interest would assist in the operating costs of the future, this being a yearly reminder to taxpayers that benefactors of the past were easing the tax load of the future.

Answers Needed Soon

The answers are going to have to materialize pretty soon on unemployment and the cost of living. Despite the anticipated bonus of a better job picture in August, statistics painted a dismal picture—higher unemployment and a substantial hike in the cost of living.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau publicly recognized in the House of Commons this week that the situation was serious and the figures "significantly impressive."

It is encouraging that he has directed the ministers of public works, regional economic expansion, manpower and immigration and others "to find the answers to the problems of unemployment." He indicated, however there is no specific program in mind at this time.

The prime minister's task is complicated by the fact Ontario, with the largest population in Canada and the most industrialized, is in the beginning throes of an election campaign which will no doubt preclude any constructive provincial - federal talks.

Obviously it must be No. 1 priority Oct. 22, no matter which party wins the Ontario election. In the interim, the federal government could be preparing tentative programs with which the provinces might be able to agree.

Initiation Not Injury

The serious injury suffered by a Loyalist student during initiation activities this year should bring about a definite rethinking by the Loyalist College board of governors, the college faculty and the students.

Any fun that might have been possible certainly evaporated when the student was injured. All too frequently at colleges endorsing this type of initiation, injuries occur.

Master spot - secondary educators have abandoned the active, physical format and have moved into the area of relating the initiation with some form of community involvement.

It commends itself as being a much more sensible approach.

New Hospital Praised

It is encouraging to note that the fledgling hospital set up in Picton as a home for the mentally retarded has quite quickly drawn some praise.

The words of encouragement came from Toronto lawyer Walter B. Williston who prepared a report at the request of the government on care for mentally retarded in the province's hospitals.

Mr. Williston's report was highly critical, with the primary saving grace being comments that the new hospital being developed at the former Picton army camp alle appeared to provide the best type of care and treatment in the province. He was, however, mildly critical that the location of the hospital did take it out of the mainstream of community life.

Encouraging were the remarks of health minister Bert Lawrence who made no effort to defend the practices of the past but rather promised that steps would be taken to remedy some of the more rigorous condemnations.

Federal Cabinet Ministers Have Common Attributes

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — So you want to be a cabinet minister?

Here are some attributes that will help: A good education, graduate study at Oxford, a law practice, 12 years' experience in the Commons, be a Roman Catholic or member of the United Church, be married and have a relative in politics.

On the average, Canada's most successful politicians have had these attributes, a research study by Richard VanLoon shows.

The study is entitled The Structure and Membership of the Canadian Cabinet. It was undertaken for the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism. It was not published but rests in the public archives, along with 138 other commission research studies.

Mr. VanLoon, who is not identified, made his findings in late 1969 on the basis of his studies of every cabinet from Confederation up to that time.

Here are some of them:

—Fewer than a majority of ministers have had a substantially higher level of education than their English-language colleagues.

—About 75 per cent of cabinet ministers have had university degrees. The percentage for MPs as a whole is 41.

—Twenty-six per cent of English-speaking ministers attended private schools but there is no "old-boy network" for any particular school.

—Laval University has been a great producer of Quebec ministers but the University of Montreal is coming up fast.

—Every French-speaking minister since Confederation, except one, has been a Roman Catholic.

—Among Protestant ministers, 27.8 are United Church, 23.3 per cent Anglican and 21.2 per cent Presbyterian.

—There is no "Anglican establishment" in governments. "If any church can be said to constitute an elite church for cabinet appointment it must be the United Church with Presbyterians second and Anglicans third.

—It is a "positive advantage" to have taken graduate study at Oxford.

—There is no "right" university for English Canadians to have attended should they aspire to the cabinet, as Laval and Montreal for Francophones. But Toronto, McGill and, lately, Manitoba have produced many ministers.

—If you are a Catholic prime minister you have appointed more Protestants to cabinet than Protestant leaders. By the same token, Protestant prime minister have appointed more Roman Catholics.

—No cabinet minister, at least up until 1968, listed himself as a politician.

—The "vast majority" of ministers are lawyers. Manufacturers have recently been increasingly represented in cabinet. Agriculture has always been under-represented.

—Average age on entry to cabinet is 50. Average length of stay in cabinet is six years.

—Twenty-nine per cent of French-speaking politicians have had relatives in politics. The percentage for Anglophones is 13.

—The average federal cabinet minister has had little experience in provincial or municipal politics.

Some Suggestions to PM on How to Save Money

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

After hearing of the star performance in Belleville of Prime Minister Trudeau, I noticed an absence of the food on which actors live, applause.

A good portion of the radio time was taken up by beefs from old age pensioners, and rightly so. When the criticisms were made of the inadequacy of the provisions for old age pensioners, the PM looks up in childlike simplicity and asks "well who would you have us tax to provide the money. Well Mr. Trudeau, you could make a start by cancelling the $8,000 tax free for MPs. That would give you $2,120,000 for a nest egg. The rock concert that was put on in Ottawa at a cost of $1,000 for the concert, and another $1,000 to clean up the scene of devastation that was left: then the duplicate of Rachdale in Toronto, that has been created in Ottawa at a cost of $8,000,000. They call it Pestalozzi, quite appropriate, and add the Bonaventure fiasco to the good measure. Shall I go on Mr. Trudeau.

On the other hand, I still affirm that the federal government, is bound and determined to keep the old age pensioners in subservience. If they want anything let them approach the seats of the mighty in fear and trembling, with cap in hand. It is more fitting for slaves.

Just let an old age pensioner try to alleviate his below poverty condition by becoming gainfully employed, and Mr. Munro will be there right away with his little axe to cut off your Canada Pension. If you don't believe it, try it.

Participatory Democracy, has a wonderfully noble sound, right straight from the council chamber of Athens. The way it works is by a division of labor. Everybody does what he does best, which resolves into the MPs and the mandarins at Ottawa imposing and collecting the taxes, and the rest of us paying them, and we should be grateful for the chance, considering how well served we are.

Take heart you good readers, this too will pass, and none too soon.

Yours for a return to responsible government,

W. E. BENNETT

Now Is Time to Remind PM City Needs Title to East Zwick's

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I wonder, now that our Prime Minister has visited our City, whether any of the officials pointed out to him that where his helicopter landed at Zwick's Island was at one time just a dump. If so, then it should also have been indicated that only a few months ago the large area around the Tudor Sessons Hotel was also a garbage disposal area now covered over. The latter subject area, I believe, is the property of the Federal Government and the City may have to purchase the same.

It would have been an excellent opportunity to make Mr. Trudeau aware of the situation and possibly he may have helped to influence the proper authorities in Ottawa to consider donating this land for park purposes. Even a few, while his visit with us would be fresh in his mind, may not be too late to make this request.

Surely — there is no harm in asking!

Approaches Differ

Three Key Terms Capsule Election

By DON O'HEARN
From the Queen's Park Bureau of The Intelligencer

TORONTO — As this campaign takes shape it appears there are three key terms which sum up the different approaches of the three parties: power, persistence and pressure.

The government's campaign is going to be a powerhouse. The muscle is already showing. It promises to be the most elaborate and expensive in Ontario history.

The NDP is centering on pressure on its workers and, in turn through them pressure on the voters.

It is centred in downtown Toronto offices. There a swarm of professional politicians, advertising men and other publicists are preparing a massive propaganda campaign. As the campaign peaks it will swamp the province.

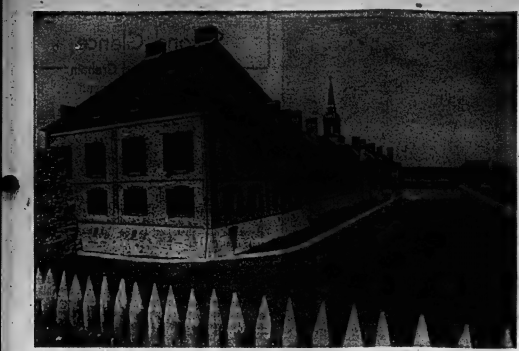
One large question about this whole campaign is whether it may overspill and be overmanaged.

The different public of today may feel that it is being bought and resent this.

And on management there has already been one small indication of too many cooks.

Initially the press bus was scheduled to travel an hour and a half ahead of the premier's bus. Reporters at once protested. It is their job, of course, to be close to the premier on all occasions. The schedule was changed. But whenever had drawn it up didn't know his job too well, though perhaps otherwise a good "manager".

The premier will spend a lot of time campaigning in the Toronto area where there are some 30 crucial seats, and intends to hold regular weekly cabinet meetings.



The real muscle and affluence of the PC campaign, however, si behind the facade of the tour and not obvious to the public (yet).

Attica Decision Leaves Reader With Sense of Hopelessness

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Is it possible to have a dispassionate reaction to what has happened at Attica? Not for me. Not in this instance. When the Governor of New York State echoes the response of prison officials by declaring that there was no choice, that nothing else could have been done, then I am left with a sense of hopelessness. When one man says, before there has been blood, before any life has been taken, that he has no choice but to kill, then I can't feel otherwise.

Disgust was my first reaction. That so many had died on the order of a man in charge of what is termed a 'Correctional Institution'. Then came despondency: is it really the case that such a bankruptcy of ethics, intelligence and resource can exist in men holding such positions of responsibility. Then came anger: the black men around the world who read as I did, of the patently racist sentiments of parties involved in this affair, must now have just been vesting their own feelings of persecution, as left no choice but to kill.

Old Louisbourg Comes Alive

The newly reconstructed King's Bastion barracks form part of the largest restoration project ever attempted in Canada at Louisburg Fortress National Historic Park. The great 18th century French fortress on the east coast of Cape Breton Island, was once the base of French power in America. It was levelled by the British in 1760. (CP Photo)

Father's Simplified Bible Bid Produces Popular Translation

TORONTO (CP) — A father's attempt to simplify the Bible for his children has produced a Bible translation that promises to be a best-seller

The Living Bible, released in August, already has gone through a first printing of 200,000.

Kenneth Taylor, then an editor at a Chicago publishing firm, noticed that his children were not grasping the meaning of the Bible when he read it to them. Looking back, he recalls that he wondered why so few attempts had been made to paraphrase the Bible in an easy, readable style.

One day in 1955, he decided to make an attempt at a free-flowing translation for the benefit of his 10 children.

"I just pulled out a sheet of paper and a pencil and opened my Bible at random. I began to study it and took the first verse in the chapter and restated it in an easy, simple, flowing way. Then I tried the next verse, and the next until I had finished the chapter."

He then tried out his first translation effort on his wife and children. "I found out that they could easily grasp it and they were excited about it."

The response from his family encouraged Taylor to proceed with the translation of all of the New Testament writing of the apostle Paul. Much of that work was accomplished while he commuted between his Chicago office and his suburban home.

When he had completed the translation of the writings of Paul, Taylor wondered if the translation might not be welcomed by others. In the seven years between 1953 and 1960, he had revised it seven times and had checked its accuracy with scholars.

Four publishing firms, including the one for whom he worked, rejected the idea. Their attitude seemed to be: "What! Not another Bible translation!"

A printer gave him credit, and in 1962, 2,000 copies of Living Letters were printed. The Taylor living room in Wheaton served as office and shipping room.

Public response at first was cautious and then Living Letters received increasingly wider distribution. When the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association ordered half a million copies to give to its television viewers, the Bible paraphrase was suddenly catapulted into the spotlight.

Now Taylor turned his mind to paraphrasing the remainder of the New Testament, which was issued as Living Gospels.

Now 14 years after he first put his pen to paper to paraphrase that chapter for his children, Kenneth Taylor is witnessing the publication of The Living Bible.

Already nine million copies of the previously-published portions of the Bible have been distributed by Tyndale House Publishers, the firm which he founded in 1962.

The style of The Living Bible is racy and popular. Archaic and stilted expressions that may have had a majestic cadence but little meaning suddenly come alive.

The King James version, for instance, includes these familiar words—"If there be therefore any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit, if any bowels and mercies, fulfill ye my joy, that ye be likeminded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind."

"Is there any such thing as Christians cheering each other up? Do you love me enough to want to help me? Does it mean anything to you that we are brothers in the Lord, sharing the same Spirit? Are your hearts tender and sympathetic at all? Then make me truly happy by loving each other and agreeing wholeheartedly with each other, working together with one heart and mind and purpose."

Young people have responded enthusiastically to the Taylor paraphrase. Special youth editions of the New Testament, complete with mod art covers, bear the striking caption Reach-Out!

A total of more than a million copies of this youth edition were issued in a 24-month period.

The new and lively Bible paraphrase has not encountered too much flak. "I've been really surprised at how little objection there has been," states Taylor. "We do occasionally hear protests, but generally speaking, there seems to be a genuine appreciation."

YOUR ANTIQUES

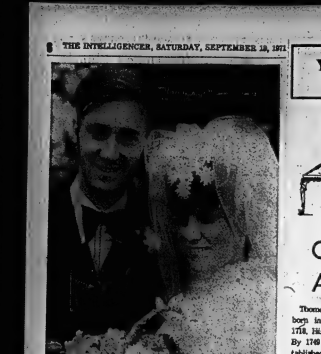
Chippendale Mixed A Variety of Styles



Thomas Chippendale was born in Otley, Yorkshire in 1718. His father was a joiner. By 1749 Chippendale was established in London and in 1753 moved to 60 St. Martin's Lane, his address until his death in 1779.

Chippendale would have to be alive and working at full production today to have made all the pieces credited to him. He published his designs and they were immediately copied all over the world, especially North America. He worked with Robert Adam and, in fact, it has been shown that some pieces attributed to the Adams were made by Chippendale.

"The Gentleman and Cabinet - Maker's Director" from which the illustration is taken, was published in 1754 and re-issued in 1759 and 1762. It was one of the most important and influential early design books. As was the practice at the time, it contains a list of subscribers, so it is possible to determine the effect of his styles even if it is not possible to determine who actually made them.

Chippendale mixed a variety of styles, the current French style of Louis XV, an improbable "Chinese" and a romantic "Gothic" style. He introduced the cabriole leg, a knobby-kneed curved leg based on a carpering animal leg. The cabriole leg combined with a ribbon-back to form a chair is probably the most distinctive of Chippendale's designs. He also combined chairs to produce settees and is famous for his bookcases with pediments, glazed doors and elegant tracery muntin bars.

Chippendale's best furniture in the Chinese style is mahogany carved in imitation of bamboo and fitted in square interconnecting geometric designs. His Chinese mirrors are a triumph of improbability. They combine Chinese figures, pagodas temples, exotic birds and blossoms in a rococo confection that has to be seen to be believed. Like all his designs the end result is extremely elegant.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM CRETNEY

Cretney – File

Rev. J. S. A. Spearman officiated at the double ring ceremony when Vicki Lynne File, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. File exchanged marriage vows with William Harry Cretney son of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Cretney. The wedding took place at Wesleyan Methodist Church, Trenton, on September 4, with Mrs. Margaret Kemp supplying organ music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of crystal peau styled along sheath lines with a wedding band collar covered with guipure lace, long frilled sleeves bordered with guipure lace and a wide cummerbund covered with lace appliques. Matching lace encircled the hem and also the cathedral train which was further enhanced by a large crystal peau bow. A four tiered veil of silk illusion with scalloped edges flowed from a headdress of seed pearls and rhinestones. She carried a basket of daisies, carnations, roses, asters, cornflowers and baby's breath.

The maid of honor Miss Annis Culloden wore a yellow and white floor length dress of voile gingham fabric with white net velvet stripe. It featured long sleeves, a high waistline and high neck while a wide ruffle accented the hem. White lace ruffles centered with yellow velvet buttons decorated the front and back of the gown. She wore yellow and white daisies in her hair and carried a nosegay of mixed flowers.

The best man was Robert Bellwood. The ushers were Barry File the bride's brother and Randy Cretney, the bridegroom's brother.

The reception was held at St. John's Parish Hall. Point Anne. Guests were greeted by the bride's mother who chose a fortrel purple dress with a lace effect bodice and full pleated skirt for the occasion. She had matching accessories and a corsage of yellow mums.

Assisting her was the bridegroom's mother in a tangerine and white knit suit with a corsage of white 'mums and matching accessories.

For the wedding trip to points North the bride donned a long sleeved dress of yellow lace with brown trim, with brown accessories and a corsage of yellow and white daisies.

The newly married couple will take up residence at 187 Haig Rd., Apt. 2, Belleville.

GATE-WAYS TO ADVENTURE

"An adventure differs from a mere feat in that it is tied to the eternally unattainable." — William Bolitho (1890-1930.)

* * *

"Going by train," as when children, made it all an adventure.

It was this way. Upon reaching Pickering from Belleville, my husband parked the car at the station and we boarded the "Go" train to the very gates of Ontario Place. Gates — like gates of all railway termini — that lead to the "glorious and the unknown."

Through them we "passed out into adventure" where a once "ugly-duckling" shore-line has become an island-vision of green grass, flowers, sparkling white square buildings all interconnected by walkways and a bridge built high above the water, a geodesic-dome type of sphere that is a theatre, and a 5,000 seat outdoor roofed amphitheatre, the Forum, for daily live performances, plus the Pods that constitute the exhibition part. All this with scenic lake views everywhere; for leisure, relaxation and enjoyment of people, city-bound, or no.

As chance would have it, we ran into a group of four friends, with whom we chatted, as we sat around on outdoor-cafe table, about adventure.

Said one: "The adventurer is within us all. There are various kinds of adventure. One I can think of is 'Starting from Scratch'. When we were first married, we had very little. Today, my husband and I are comfortable. But it was an adventure, the hard times, the good times, all the way."

"For me," said another, "my hobby is pure adventure. I collect firearms, and have about 60. Some are taller than I am. I have guns that used to be strapped to the arm up to the elbow, to fire.

"I have a dueling pistol, the butt-end inlaid with a carving of a Great Dane. Dueling pistols always come in pairs, you know. I picked up the dueling pistol up at an antique shop in Montreal (A year or so later, I picked up its mate in Florida. My brother and father are also interested in firearms, so we find it an exciting adventure — collecting them."

Said a third, "I find being creative an adventure. Several years ago, I went to Hollywood to visit a friend. She's beautiful — a model. One who'd do little with her hands. Yet, you should see the ceramics in her apartment. She had made them.

"Well, I came home. I said: 'Good Gracious! If she can, so can I.' I looked up a nearby ceramic school, enrolled and loved it. I haven't a piece left, given it all away. But the ideas that come to you! I did a set of boxes all in white. Another, in black with gilt initials. It's exciting I tell you. So I would say real adventure is in the ideas that pass or come to stay in your mind, forever. There is a sharp sense of life being fully lived . . ."

Alas, back through the same gates we must return, our adventure over. As the landscape flows by the train window, the words of German writer Goethe give solace, reminding one that high adventure resembles peaks of life, where one does not long dwell — to do so means repose, which in the end brings only death. He says the sunny slopes of life "where grow the grains and vines that delight mortals and may even intoxicate man" is much more preferable. And again, we recall with pleasure the fourth friend's experience concerning adventure:

"When I was a child, I had to report all that I saw, tasted, felt, smelled or observed during the day, nightly, to my father. He faithfully retained this ritual throughout my childhood, saying it was the key to understanding and enjoying life. He would never accept "nothing happened". This constant watch and alertness for the "unforgettable and meaningful" has brought me happiness and is still my richest adventure."

Successful Living

Times Have Changed; Women Handle Money

By DORIS CLARK

Once upon a time there lived a lady whose husband would hand her a dollar or 50 cents if she asked for money to buy baked goods.

Their groceries were charged, and he paid the bill, along with all the other bills. If he left her a dollar or two for some necessary expenses, and she asked for money the next day, he would want to know what happened to the money he had given her.

They were not poor people. Yet the wife was given no money to handle on her own; neither was she taken into her husband's confidence regarding details of their finances.

So reports Marjorie Wild (Hamilton Spectator) about the 1880 Canadian housewife. . . .

Now we find that the majority of housewives handle all the money — and for various reasons. One is that: "She is a better money manager than I am" — from the husband. Another, from a wife: "My husband hasn't the time."

Another said that while she usually paid the bills, they agreed on their decisions about spending.

It looks as if we have come a long way from the lord-and-master situation in which stay-at-home wifey had not a penny to call her own. And that's what I call progress!

Dear Doris: Our son will be married this year, but as he lives in a distant part of the world, we will not be going there for the wedding. Our gift will have to be in the form of a cheque, because we have no idea what would be useful there (in the tropics).

To whom should the cheque be sent? I think it should go to the bride-to-be, as is usual when sending a wedding present. Would it be in order to send it to her in her married name, in case the wedding is called off at the last minute? (This has happened before in our son's case!)

We do not wish to begin our relationship by insulting the bride. — Perplexed.

Dear Perplexed: Then don't — insult her, I mean. Your complete confidence in your son's choice is important to this young couple.

Send the cheque to her, in her maiden name, well ahead of the wedding date. Accompany it by your loving and sincere hopes for their future happiness.

If by any chance the event does not come off, it is up to your son to return the cheque. (If he doesn't, ask for it.)

Dear Doris: My unmarried daughter has become pregnant. The father is a married man, who at the beginning of this courtship did not divulge that he was married. Several months later he told her he was separated, and that he was going to obtain a divorce.

My daughter has told him she is pregnant, and that she plans to keep and look after this child. Now he has no further interest in my daughter and she is on her own.

Is he not responsible for some support? Has my daughter any legal rights? Where does she turn to get financial help when she can no longer work? — Unfair

Dear Unfair: Neither she nor the baby have any legal status as far as this married man is concerned. You can't even call it a common-law relationship. However, if he will acknowledge that he is the father of the baby, there are laws requiring that he contribute to the cost of confinement and support of the child.

Go with your daughter to your child care agency and have a professional social worker help you sort it all out.

Young Man Needs Professional Help

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was born and raised in a conservative section of the country with strict moral standards. I have, therefore, maintained a very idealistic view of love and marriage. I have always believed that sex should be saved for after the marriage vows.

While in college I became lonely and depressed. I met a girl, fell in love and we were married. I knew she had had several men before me. She told me about her past and so did a few other people. But I was so much in love I was certain we could surmount all obstacles.

Now I find I was wrong. I cannot put her past out of my mind. Her premarital affairs have made her seem cheap. What's worse, I can't trust her. Every time she is a few minutes late I imagine she is back to her old tricks. She swears it is all in my mind, but I can't help it. I am in a constant state of anxiety.

Suspicion and jealously are destroying me. I have begun to drink heavily. I quit a good job because I can't concentrate on my work. I have lost my ambition and drive. I spend a lot of time crying. Yes, grown men do cry when they have been hurt deeply enough. Please help me. — HEARTSICK IN HARRISBURG.

DEAR HARRISBURG: You are mentally ill and your illness is not related to your wife's past — but to yours. You said you were lonely and depressed when you met her. That is the first clue. You've been up and down all your life and now you are blaming your present depression on your wife.

Get professional help. You need it badly.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Right now I'm too filled with grief to trust my own judgment. Help me, please.

My husband died a few weeks ago. Several relatives and friends have called on me. At least six people have asked me for a "remembrance." A niece said she would like to have Uncle Joe's gold cufflinks. A nephew said Uncle Joe had promised him his pocket watch. My brother-in-law wants Joe's silver-handled cane. A man he played cards with said he had always admired Joe's initialed belt buckle and Joe said he could have it.

I wouldn't dream of going into a house of mourning and asking for something. Am I wrong? I haven't given anything away yet. I said I would think about it. Please tell me what to do — especially about the people who say they were promised things. Thank you. — FRESH GRAVE IN TOLEDO.

DEAR T.: If any of the aforementioned articles have any significance to you, keep them. Don't give them away simply because someone asks or even says they were "promised."

A person who wants to leave a memento to a friend or a relative arranges ahead to see that it is done. The arrangement is called a will.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In most of our classes we are seated in alphabetical order. The girl who sits ahead of me several hours a day does not bathe often enough. I am trying to put this delicately but the simple fact is that she has a very offensive odor and it makes me sick.

If I wrote her an anonymous note she might guess I was the one and I wouldn't be able to look her in the face. Please advise. — FACELESS FRIEND.

DEAR FRIEND: Ask the Phys. Ed. instructor to talk to the girl. She can do it in a tactful way and you will not be involved.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Wine-marinated Lamb Chops

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: Some time ago you featured a comparison between apple pies frozen after baking and those frozen before baking. You recommended that "the unbaked frozen pie was satisfactory but could not be left in the oven long enough to bake the apples really tender without burning the crust."

May I submit my method, which has worked very well for the past 3 years? I never freeze baked apple pies, or any others for that matter. Apple, rhubarb, mince, etc., all go into the freezer unbaked. The only change I make in the recipes for pies to be baked immediately, is to multiply any flour in the filling by 1½ times the given amount. For instance if apple pie calls for 2 tbsps. of flour, I put 3 tbsps. in a pie which goes into the freezer unbaked. I never glaze the crust, but put the hard-frozen pie (with gashes cut in crust) into a 400 deg. Fahr. oven for 75-80 min. (This is for a 9" pie.) I've never had a burned crust yet. My only complaint is that the bottom crust of a pie frozen and then baked is a bit soggy as soon as nice as the bottom crust of one baked immediately after making. I do find the apples (or rhubarb) are always tender, and taste so much fresher than those in a reheated frozen baked pie.

One other trick I use — I bake frozen pies near the bottom of the oven, to give the bottom crust the benefit of any extra baking it can get. — Joanne McD.

ANSWER: Thank you for your careful advice learned by experience.

QUESTION: Last month you gave a recipe for wine-marinated chuck steak. It was wonderful. Could I do the same with shoulder lamb chops? I love lamb. — Helen M.

ANSWER: Yes you can. I am glad to hear you liked the marinated chuck. I thought it was a great find.

WINE-MARINATED SHOULDER LAMB CHOPS

½ cup red table wine
Meat tenderizer

Speed Is Urged in Dealing With Tax Reform

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"I'll bet you can hardly wait until you're retired and can spend ALL your time not catching fish."

New Deal Is Seen In French Relations

PARIS (Reuter) — French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann will pay an official visit to Ottawa next week which both French and Canadian officials regard as a turning point in regulations between the Ottawa government and Paris.

It will be the first such visit since 1967 when the late Gen. Charles de Gaulle worsened relations between the two capitals by crying "Vive le Quebec libre" (Long live free Quebec) during a visit to Montreal.

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal whip Lloyd Francis asked opposition MPs Friday in the Commons to give speedy second reading to the government's tax bill and to concentrate their arguments during detailed committee study of the 707-page measure.

Mr. Francis said both the Conservatives and New Democrats were making speeches more appropriate to other debates. They also were giving Canadians mistaken impressions of the reforms proposed by the Liberal administration.

Friday ended the first full week of debate on the tax bill. Because of its hundreds of proposals to change the tax laws, there is speculation here that the debate might go on for months before the bill is finally cleared from the Commons.

The Conservative theme Friday was that the government was wrong in giving tax changes top priority. What was needed was a crash program to fight unemployment, put the economy back on its feet and kick inflation.

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) said the government had rejected the tax reforms recommended by a royal commission on taxation and caved in to the business community.

James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) said the tax bill was being discussed "in an air of lethargy."

"It does not make sense that we should be giving priority to a tax bill which does nothing to promote and improve the economy; which does nothing to create jobs for Canadians which is the main issue and should be the main issue in Canada today."

He reiterated the Conservative demands for a winter-works program, tax cuts and other measures.

Mr. Gilbert said that working people would get little or nothing from the tax reforms, despite what the government said.

"The workers will realize that meagre deductions have been given to them in connection with the increase in tax exemptions, and that the abolition of the three-per-cent surcharges will have little effect when some of them have to pay income tax on unemployment benefits, medical premiums paid by employers and retraining allowances," he said.

But businessmen—"the real friends of the Liberal party"—would enjoy tax benefits from capital gains, divided income, mining and petroleum income alleviations.

Opposes Guarantee

Mr. Gilbert said the government should be working towards a guaranteed income but M. T. McCutcheon (PC-Lambton East) disagreed.

He said the government now is spending $16 million to determine whether a guaranteed income would reduce initiative to work.

Mr. McCutcheon said the government could save the money. Even welfare was reducing that initiative.

He also said the government already is snowing businessmen under with more and more forms to fill out. It would be even worse if the tax bill was approved.

Charles R. Thomas (PC—Moncton) said that if the tax bill would do anything at all to help the economy, his party would give it speedy passage.

But it would not. He suggested that the proposed tax cuts to come into effect next year should be put in a special measure and passed right away.

Government Plans Tests Of Guaranteed Incomes

OTTAWA (CP) — At least $5 million will be made available in the coming fiscal year under a new federal funding program for provincial guaranteed income experiments, the federal welfare department said Friday.

From such experiments, the government hopes to learn the effect of guaranteed annual income schemes on such factors as work incentive, productivity, minimum wage levels, family structure and social services.

Welfare Minister John Munro said in a statement that the program represents a new dimension in federal-provincial efforts to explore how social assistance policies can be made more effective.

The $5 million federal contribution will cover up to 75 per cent of projects costs. The amount may be supplemented to the extent that there are savings for social assistance payments under the Canada Assistance Plan.

Liberals and PCs Join To Beat Tight Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal and Conservative MPs on the Commons finance committee beat off an NDP attempt Friday to tighten the government's proposed $80 million grants to Canadian industry disrupted by United States President Richard Nixon's import surcharges.

Edward Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby) proposed that the grants be made to a plant only if it maintained employment at 80 per cent or more of its employment before the Nixon surcharges were imposed Aug. 15, and that every firm receiving a grant have its name made public.

Jean-Luc Pepin, minister of industry, trade and commerce, said he wanted the plan left as flexible as possible for a seven-member industry-government board to administer.

The grants are to be made available to plants which, prior to the surcharges, exported at least 30 per cent of their production to the United States. They are to enable the plants to maintain employment and adjust to the surcharge.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1971

Centennial Secondary School halfback John Bunner hits the hole between two charging offensive linemen in a light Friday night workout of the Bay of Quinte COSSA high school team. The Chargers will be looking to improve upon last year's finish when they placed third in the tough western division, just missing the play-offs. The local high school grid season will get under way next Tuesday with eight teams competing in the senior division and nine in the junior ranks.

BCI Football Hopes Resting With Rookies

This season will NOT be a re-building year for the BCIYS Collegiate. It will be a complete renovation.

Head coach Bill Miller can now afford to smile when he regards the Collegiate fortunes of 1970. "Is this year's offensive system any different from last year's?", he replied to a question. "The fact that there's any system at all is different from last season".

Hopes for a BCI re-surgence lie in the fact that a number of promising first year players have graduated from junior football into the senior ranks". We had about 40 players out at the start of the season, and I think that's the most we've had since I started coaching here", notes Miller.

Defensive coach Brian McKenzie wasn't able to single out any one strong point of his team but was confident that, "we're going to have a much defense this season. The only thing they lack is experience".

"I'd say that our main problem this year is a shortage of coaching", says McKenzie, "I have special phys-ed classes some nights and that leaves Bill to look after both the offence and the defence, which is too much for one person to handle".

Offensively, Miller feels that "we may lack a little size, but I think we should be fairly quick". Two of the important cogs in the BCI offence will be rookie quarterback Peter LeBaron and running back Keith Watson, currently recovering from a knee injury suffered in practice.

Top lineman apear to be Mark Lucas and John Roblin, who may see two-way action in some Collegiate contests this season.

The BCI rookies get their first taste of regular season senior action Tuesday when they open the schedule against Picton.

Chargers Hope Third 'S' Spells Success

The Centennial Secondary School Chargers are hoping to embark on a "3S" program when the Bay of Quinte senior COSSA football schedule gets under way next week.

Size certainly figures to be in the Chargers' favor as they appear to have put together the largest number of large individuals on any of the Belleville schools' rosters.

Coach Harold Werkhoven is hoping that size and speed will lead to a third "S" this season — Success.

Last year, Centennial was nipped for a play-off position by Trenton in the tough western division. They lost a 14-7 verdict on the final day of the season as head coach, isn't about to make any rash predictions. "We haven't looked that good in our workouts so far", he deadpans. The Centennial skipper, along with assistant coach Ross Wannan have been placing the pre - season emphasis on "conditioning and timing."

Quarterback will be the big offensive question for Centennial with the graduation of last year's standout pivot Mike Thompson. Currently, Steve Ford who performed with the Peterboro ough Panthers earlier this year, and Glenn Carleton are working at the offensive controls. .

TWEED — The Tweed Sawyer-Stull bantams hope that the home field disadvantage doesn't continue in their Ontario Rural Softball Association final series with Cayuga.

Tweed opened the series with a 16-3 victory at Cayuga but the visitors staged a last inning rally to win 4-3 in Tweed last Sunday.

The women will be vying for the handsome Chiasson clock trophy.

Low net trophies are also up for grabs, with the remaining prizes all decided on a handicapped basis.

Dispute Continues Over Canadian Olympic Hockey Entry

CALGARY (CP) — A long-range battle over Canada's refusal to send a hockey team to the 1972 winter Olympics continues between the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the Canadian Olympic Association.

Wright, attending the International Olympic Committee meeting in Luxembourg, said:

"Your refusal to approve a Canadian amateur hockey entry at the Olympics in Sapporo, Japan, next February, unless Canadian professionals are allowed to compete in an entirely unrelated tournament, indicates a callous disregard . . . to foster recreational hockey in Canada."

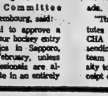
This communication constitutes a formal request to the CHA to approve and support sending an amateur hockey team from a Canadian university to Sapporo. . . . Failing receipt of a favorable reply I intend to release the contents of my Sept. 4 letter and subsequent releases to the news media in Luxembourg."

"The Canadian people can then judge the issues involved and determine whether the CAHA should continue to represent hockey in Canada as a member of the COA."

Krycka, head of the CAHA since May, says he doesn't plan to reply to the telegram, adding that Wright was informed of the CAHA decision in earlier messages.

The contents of the Sept. 4 letter, he said, only suggested Krycka accept his resignation ability as president and send a team.

Replying to that telegram, Krycka said in a Sept. 15 cable:



"I suggest the COA refrain from further doubletalk and platitudes and advise the Sapporo Olympic Committee that Canada will not be sending a team to the winter competition."

Krycka said in an earlier interview he's not about to change Canada's position on the international scene "until the Europeans change their attitude about professional players."

"I'm not prepared to send a team of college players to the Olympics even if they're the best in Canada, to be whipped by the professional Russians, Czechs or Swedes."

Dodgers Two Games Back

Lum Gives Los Angeles Their Lumps

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mike Lum made his loud noises with his bat in Los Angeles and the reverberations reached all the way to San Francisco.

Lum exploded two home runs out of spacious Dodger Stadium as Atlanta Braves beat Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 in 11 innings Friday night and lifted the pennant chances of San Francisco Giants in the National League West.

The Los Angeles loss, coupled with Gary Nolan's 7-5 triumph over San Diego, boosted the Giants' lead to two games over the second-place Dodgers.

"This should pick us up," said San Francisco manager Charlie Fox.

"I hope this can turn us around," said San Francisco catcher Dick Dietz.

Along with padding San Francisco's advantage, the Giants' events also must have given the Giants a psychological shot in the arm. They made five errors and still managed to win. The dodgers, meanwhile, squandered several opportunities to nail Atlanta while Lum smashed his game-tying homer in the ninth and game-breaker in the 11th.

New York Mets whipped the Eastern Division-leading Pittsburgh Pirates 3-0 and second-place St. Louis Cardinals trimmed the leaders' margin to 6½ games with a 7-2 triumph over Montreal Expos in other top National League contests Friday night.

The Dodgers had a 2-1 lead and were two outs away from winning when Lum connected off reliever Jim Brewer in the ninth. He then smoked his 13th homer of the season off Hoyt Wilhelm in the 11th to send the Dodgers down to their third straight defeat.

The Dodgers had men on first and second with none out in the ninth and couldn't score, had the bases loaded in the 10th and weren't able to cash in and couldn't move a runner around from first in the 11th.

After Manny Mota's two-run single in the fourth inning gave Atlanta a 2-0 cushion, Hank Aaron walloped a homer in the eighth—his 45th this year and 627th of his fabulous career—off Los Angeles starter Claude Osteen. That blow brought on Brewer and began the Dodger backslide.

In San Francisco, the Giant victory was cause for celebration. After all the Giants did was lost 11 of 13 previous games and all but one game of a once-commanding 8½-game lead.

"As loosely as we played, it makes you feel pretty good when you can win," said Fox, calmly didn't look like a club fighting for a pennant."

The Giants roared back on a four-run uprising in the sixth inning, highlighted by Dick Dietz' pinch-hit, three-run homer.

Gary Gentry tamed Pittsburgh on a three-hitter and Tredy Martinez, Ken Singleton and Ed Kranepool hit home runs in New York's triumph over the Pirates.

Pennant Race Over, But Tigers Don't Know It

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There doesn't seem to be enough time left for Detroit Tigers, who played Friday night's doubleheader against Baltimore Orioles as if they still had a chance to catch the front-running Orioles in the American League East race.

The Tigers swept the doubleheader 9-4 and 5-3 and now trail the Birds by six games. But there are only 17 games remaining and Baltimore's magic number remains eight.

Elsewhere in the American League Friday night, New York Yankees swept a doubleheader from Cleveland Indians 1-0 and 7-1, Boston Red Sox bombed Washington Senators 10-7, Chicago White Sox took California Angels 9-4, Kansas City Royals nipped Minnesota Twins 2-1 and Oakland Athletics defeated Milwaukee Brewers 6-5 in 11 innings.

The Tigers reached into their bullpen to stymie the Orioles. Detroit used relief specialists Tom Timerman and Fred Scherman as starters and the move paid off—thanks to the

MICKEY STANLEY

Torre Trumps Expos

MONTREAL (CP) — Joe Torre's three-run homer highlighted a four-run fourth inning and carried Bob Gibson and the Cardinals to a 7-2 win over Montreal Expos in National League action Friday night.

Montreal pitcher Carl Morton went into the inning nursing a 1-0 lead after retiring the first nine men he face him.

Lou Brock led off with a double and went to third when Ted Sizemore singled. Matty Alou then hit a sharp ground ball to shortstop Gary Sutherland and Sutherland threw to the plate in an attempt to get the runner out. Brock slid under John Bateman's tag to score.

Stanley drove in five runs—three of them with a homer—in the first game as Timmerman, making only his second major league start, bested Dave McNally, who was bidding for his 20th victory.

In the nightcap, Scherman, making his first start after 48 relief appearances, was tagged for homers by Frank Robinson and Dave Johnson. But McAuliffe scored the tie-breaking homer in the seventh and the Tigers completed the sweep.

The Athletics had tied the game in the eighth on Mike Hegan's single after the Brewers had jumped to a 4-0 lead against Vida Blue.

Blue, 8-5 since the all-star break, failed for the fourth straight time trying for his 26th victory.

Fritz Peterson threw a two-hitter and Felipe Alou's single drove in the game's only run as the Yankees beat Cleveland's Sam McDowell in the first game of their doubleheader.

New York completed the sweep on Stan Bahnsen's four-hitter in the nightcap. Bahnsen had a two-run single in his victory and catcher Thurman Munson homered for the Yanks.

Kansas City's Mike Hedlund won his 15th game with a seven-hitter as Kansas City checked Minnesota. Paul Schall's two-out single in the sixth snapped a scoreless tie and then Fred Patek's RBI-single in the seventh delivered the decisive run. Leo Cardenas homered for the Twins.

Rick Reichardt's homer paced a 4-hit Chicago attack and Bart Johnson struck out a career-high of 12 as the White Sox trimmed the California Angels. Every White Sox starter drove in one run.

Hockey Briefs

Bruins Flash Old Form

Boston Bruins picked up where they left off last season as National Hockey League teams opened their exhibition series Friday night. The Bruins defeated New York Rangers 5-3 at London, Ont., Pittsburgh Penguins edged Colorado Golden Seals 3-2 at Brantford, Ont., and Philadelphia Flyers dropped St. Louis Blues 5-1 at Flint, Mich. The Bruins scored two power-play goals and one while they were shorthanded in the first period. Scoring champion Phil Esposito led the attack with two. Bobby Orr, Ed Westfall and rookie Fred O'Donnell netted one each. Rangers' marksmen were Pierre Jarry with a pair, and Rod Selling. Sheldon Kannegiesser's second period goal was the winner for Pittsburgh. Syl Apps and Rene Robert notched the others. Gerry Pinder and Dick Redmond scored for the Seals.

MONTREAL (CP) — Until 20-year-old Guy Lafleur absorbs a few major league bodychecks, the jury remains out on his chances of becoming a super star in the National Hockey League. But Scotty Bowman of Montreal Canadiens doesn't have to wait any longer to see that the youngster, the No. 1 choice in last June's amateur draft, has the talent. "He has everything going for him," Bowman said. "He can skate. He can shoot. And I've never seen a young player who feathers a pass so well."

In the bodycheck department, Lafleur should get his first taste of the NHL variety tonight when the Canadiens play host to Boston Bruins in an exhibition game. Lafleur, who scored 130 goals last season as a right winger with Quebec Remparts at the Quebec Junior A Hockey League, has been moved to centre between big Frank Mahovlich at left wing and rightwinger Yvan Cournoyer.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Before anyone gets the wrong impression now that Gordie Howe is retired: No, Lorne Gump Worsley is not the National Hockey League's oldest active player. "I am not the old man," Worsley said at a break in Minnesota North Stars training camp this week. "Maybe in seriority, but Jacques Plante is a month older than I am." Age, however, doesn't appear to be overtaking either Worsley or Plante, of the Toronto Maple Leafs, as they prepare to resume their roles as two of the premier goaltenders in the NHL. Worsley, entering his 18th season in the league and 22nd year in professional hockey, looks and says he is in better shape going into camp this year than in some of the past seasons and says he's finding it easier. "I'm down to 186 pounds now and I should be down to 175 or 175 by the time we're ready to play. Gump is fighting for a goaltending job with the Stars with two other regulars, Cesare Maniago and young Gilles Gilbert.

His wins have included the Winnipeg Futurity and the Canadian Stakes. He's also regarded as the early favorite on the strength of his six wins in 13 starts this year.

Gross value of the 1¼-mile race is $63,175 with the winner's share set at $41,062.

Gentleman Conn, from Saul Wagman's Willow Downs Farm of Toronto, is the opposition as the early favorite on the strength of his six wins in 13 starts this year.

"On a muddy track, we'd have to rush Gentleman Conn into a commanding position early. If the track is fast, he can just sit back, then make one big run in the last quarter of a mile."

Ernie Lieberman's Brief Encar, the other filly in the field, has won three stakes races this year, including the Fleur de Lys, against colts and geldings.

Others in the field are the Windfields Farms entry of Presidential and New Chant, Coon Smythe's Twice Ruler, Preston Gilbride's Canzego, G. C. Frostad's Singing Spurs, W. Marks's Fort Myers, H. C. Burton's Sea Robber, Bahamas' Wind from the P and G Sable, Victoria Song from Green Hills Farm and N. Bragagnolo's Tommy Jack.

The race will be televised on the CBC national network beginning at 4 p.m. EDT.

Eskimos Attempt to Tidy Igloo

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With a win-or-face-doom encounter in the Western Football Conference only hours away, Edmonton coach Ray Jauch is worried about what his boys will be doing, not the other guys.

If the Eskimos lose tonight's game against visiting Saskatchewan Roughriders, they will all but lose their chances at the WFC playoff finals this year.

Jauch, who is "only concerned with what the Eskimos do," is counting on five new players to help start them on a climb. The Edmonton club must pass two other teams—British Columbia Lions, Saskatchewan or Winnipeg Blue Bombers—to make the playoffs. Calgary Stampeders are too far ahead already with 16 points to Edmonton's two.

"If you start worrying about other teams and hoping that other clubs win (over Edmonton competition), you've got a real problem," Jauch says.

Saskatchewan, on the other hand, will be out for points. Quarterback Ron Lancaster, recovered from an off-season operation, has completed 1,396 passes in his career, just 34 behind former Montreal Alouette Sam Etcheverry's record. He also needs 376 yards passing to beat Etcheverry's career record of 25,382 yards gained.

Edmonton will be using Tim Kelly, who tried out with New England Patriots of the National League, to replace injured linebacker Ezra Glasser. Dave Walker, a cornerback cut by San Francisco 49ers, will try out on defence.

Jim Norrie will probably move to defence, making room for newcomer Bobby Taylor at split end. Don Warrington from Simon Fraser University will run halfback and Bruce Lemmerman, cut by Atlanta Falcons of the NFL, will be backup quarterback to Larry Lawrence.

The Lions will have four new faces in the line-up for Sunday's game in Winnipeg against the Blue Bombers.

Quarterback Rusty Clark will see some action against the Bombers when he replaces the injured Tom Wilkinson. Offensive guard Trevor Kolstad will come off the injured list to relieve Ray Lychak, sidelined with a knee injury.

Another shuffle puts import Tom Wheeler in the offensive line. And defensive end Pete Newell from the University of Michigan will fill the hole left by Jim White, who was released earlier this week.

Bombers coach Jim Spavital says he doesn't know much about the Lions because of the numerous changes the B.C. club has made since they last met.

"I expect they'll try to run us," said Spavital. "They ran us the last time, but I think our defence has come a long way since then."

Spavital said the game with B.C. is "like any other game. Every one is important."

"We've got to be prepared for everything, but with that big fullback (Jim) Evenson we know they'll be running."

Spavital said Winnipeg was at a disadvantage, having only three days to prepare for the game. "They've had quite a while to prepare for us."

The Edmonton game will be carried on the CBC western network starting at 8 p.m. MST while the Winnipeg game will be carried on the CTV network starting at 2:30 p.m. CDT.

Peterborough Breaks Junior Lacrosse Ice

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Peterborough PCOs edged Richmond Roadrunners 13-11 in overtime Friday in the third game of the Minto Cup Junior lacrosse series.

Richmond leads the series two games to one with the fourth game of the best-of-seven affair to be played here tonight.

Peterborough had a 6-2 first period lead and finished the second period ahead 9-6. Excellent goaltending by Greg Thomas held Peterborough in the game in the second period and was the whole show in the third.

Richmond in the final 20 minutes unloaded 34 shots at Thomas, scoring on five of them. Peterborough scored only twice as they took eight shots at Richmond's Ted Gernasey.

Jim Wasson scored four goals to lead PCOs and Jim Johnston had three goals and three assists. Jim Guerin and Gord Floyd scored twice each with singles going to Pete Guerin and Jan Magee.

Yanks In Ryder Cup Drivers Seat

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Arnold Palmer said he felt good and Jack Nicklaus felt like waving the flag as the best United States golfers headed into final Ryder Cup matches today, near prohibitive favorites to trounce Britain a 19th time.

The tour-toughened U.S. lineup which moved quickly to the fore Friday in best-ball foursomes asserted itself through the afternoon action.

The Americans took a commanding 10-5 lead likely, if anything, to widen during the course of 16 singles matches today. They trailed 4¼-3¼ following the first-day matches.

In naming his lineup for today's singles matches, Jay Hebert, the non-playing American captain, led off with Lee Trevino, U.S., British and Canadian Open champion, against the Britains' crafty Tony Jacklin, a former U.S. Open winner.

Dave Stockton plays 22-year-old Scotsman Bernard Gallacher, with Mason Rudolph against John Barnes, and Gene Littler against Peter Oosterhuis of Britain.

The next four matches included Palmer, a victor already in four matches, against Harry Bannerman and Nicklaus plays Peter Townsend. Rounding out morning pairings were Gardner Dickinson against Irishman Christy O'Connor and Frank Beard against Neil Coles.

The British ran into an American buzz-saw during Friday's morning matches and failed in a gallant try to rally in the afternoon.

Beard and J. C. Snead bolted to a 3-up advantage over Coles and John Garner en route to a 2-1 edge and Littler's six-foot birdie putt provided him and the powerful Nicklaus an edge by the same margin over Townsend and Bannerman.

A stampede helped along by a forfeiture ruling occurred as Palmer and Dickinson beat Oosterhuis and Gallacher, 5 and 4.

But in the afternoon the British played tough.

Trevino and Billy Casper, despite constructing a three-under-par 68, were edged 1-up by Gallacher and Oosterhuis, who shot 67.

Littler and Snead capitalized on a one-over-par hole by Jacklin and Brian Huggett to take a 2-1 victory.

Stewart Paces Grand Prix

Thirteen of the 26 drivers broke the qualifying record for Formula 1 cars on this track Friday and even faster times were predicted in the second round of qualifying races today.

Leading the pack over Mosport's 2.45 miles of track was Scotland's Jackie Stewart whose time of 1:15.7 bettered the mark of 1:17.8, set by Jackie Ickx of Belgium in 1969.

Sports Briefs

GUELPH (CP) — Waterloo Lutheran Golden Hawks scored three touchdowns in the second half for a 24-16 victory over University of Guelph Gryphons Friday night in an Ontario Universities Athletic Association game. The teams went into the second half tied 14-14. The victory was the second in a row for Lutheran. Guelph has lost two. Cocoray Stacey returned two interceptions for Lutheran touchdowns, one 17 yards, and the other 61 yards. A 113-yard punt return by Bill Hogan and runs of one yard and 25 yards by Tom Walker accounted for the other Lutheran touchdowns. Wally Parker converted four of the touchdowns. Jim Lively's 85-yard punt return, Bruce Morris' five-yard scamper and a conceded fourth-quarter safety touch and two converts by Don Westlake gave Guelph their 16 points. Lutheran had 239 yards total offence to Guelph's 131.

VICTORIA (CP) — The training-camp roster of Los Angeles Kings was reduced by eight Friday when manager-coach Larry Regan released seven players trying out for the National Hockey League club and another announced his retirement. Jim Peters, Jr., son of a former NHL standout with Detroit Red Wings, left camp and asked to be placed on the voluntarily retired list. Released or assigned to minor affiliates were goaltenders Merlin Jenner and Mike Schneider; forwards Kent Burns, Ali Makl, Doug Ikahr, Al Rycroft and Brian Gibson.

NEW YORK (AP) — The owner of Washington Senators has gathered enough promised votes to get American League owners to agree to move the baseball club to the Dallas-Fort Worth area. The revelation that Bob Short, problem-plagued owner of the Senators, had enough promised votes to secure permission to move the club came after the Washington Evening Star reported Al. owners would meet in Boston Tuesday to vote on a shift of the franchise. In Boston, a spokesman for the American League confirmed that the meeting would be held.

Parent Signs Leaf Contract

TORONTO (CP) — Goaltender Bernie Parent joined Toronto Maple Leafs' National Hockey League training camp a week late Friday after signing a new two-year contract.

Parent went home to Philadelphia when the Leaf camp opened last weekend, contending that Leafs had promised to re-negotiate his contract.

The Leafs said he should start the final year of a three-year contract he had signed with Philadelphia Flyers who traded him last season to Toronto.

The 26-year-old netminder returned from Philadelphia Thursday night with lawyer Howard Casper and after a meeting Friday morning with Leaf general-manager Jim Gregory, he had a new contract.

"Everyone seems satisfied," Gregory said after the signing.

He said Parent's holdout was the result of "a misunderstanding" of an offer was made to Bernie at the end of last season."

Parent started working out with the team Friday afternoon but was not expected to take part in the Leafs' exhibition game tonight when they visit the North Stars in Minnesota.

Big NFL Battle Sunday

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National Football League erupts into action Sunday but a lot of fans will be waiting until Monday night for what could be an indication as to how one of the tightest division races might wind up.

That's when Minnesota's Vikings rumble into Detroit to collide with the Lions in a key game in the National Conference's Central Division.

The Vikings, strengthened by the addition of quarterback Norm Snead, are expected by many to ride their steamroller ground game and granite defence to a repeat as divisional champions. Gary Cuozzo will start at quarterback against Detroit, however.

The Lions, runner-up a year ago, will be out to avoid having to play catch-up all year and a healthy running back tandem of Mel Farr and Altie Taylor could give them the jump they need.

In other AFC games, Oakland Raiders are at New England Patriots, Denver Broncos play host to Miami Dolphins, Kansas City Chiefs visit San Diego Chargers and Houston Oilers are at Cleveland Browns.

Also in the NFC are Los Angeles Rams at New Orleans Saints, San Francisco 49ers at Redskins at St. Louis Cardinals and New York Giants at Green Bay Packers.

Dallas Cowboys are at Buffalo Bills, Pittsburgh Steelers visit Chicago Bears and Philadelphia Eagles journey to Cincinnati Bengals in inter-conference games.

Trudeau Tries to Sell Quebec Youth on Reform by Evolution

STE. ADELE, Que. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau tried to bridge the generation gap Friday as he made several appeals to the young to reform society by evolution, not revolution.

In a speech to the annual convention of the Quebec Chamber of Commerce, the prime minister extolled the virtues of business and urged young Canadians to join up.

The older generation had the perspective to deplore the sometime evils of business and understand its good points, Mr. Trudeau said, but young people often see only one side-greed, embezzlement, collusion and cruelty.

Youth had an urgent desire to reform society and was "remarkably well-informed" but it tended to lack depth and see only the black side of the establishment and especially business.

Young, harsh critics of the social system did nothing for society by dropping out or rejecting it with violence. Innovations, he said must assume the presence of persons who are "both sensitive to historical continuity and dedicated to change."

Mr. Trudeau described business as "the collective expression of material life, and the prerequisite for all spiritual and intellectual life."

The art and thought of Venice, a financial and commercial centre in the middle ages, could not be explained "if philanthropy, in the proper sense of love for man, were not inherent in business," and another "radiant symbol of the contribution of business and industry to civilized progress" was the development of the alphabet by a Phoenician businessman.

"If young people reject business," Mr. Trudeau said, "they deny themselves any possibility of changing it, and they imprison themselves in a situation which is even poorer than that which they condemn, because it is deprived of all means of production and all positive results."

After the speech, Mr. Trudeau answered questions from about 100 young people invited to the convention.

The newspaper says the dairies' initial response to the problem was to start filling the jugs to capacity instead of to a mark indicated at the jug handles.

Shrunken Milk Jugs Ordered Replaced

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the federal government will order dairies and jug milk stores to replace three-quart plastic jugs that have shrunk as a result of repeated sterilization and no longer will hold three quarts.

The spokesman is quoted as saying the shrinkage, which in rare instances approached six ounces a jug, was discovered about three years ago, when the dairies were asked to take corrective action.

He says that while the public had not been informed of the shrinkage problem, inspectors from the weights and measures branch have been visiting dairies regularly to make sure that the jugs contain an average of 120 fluid ounces.

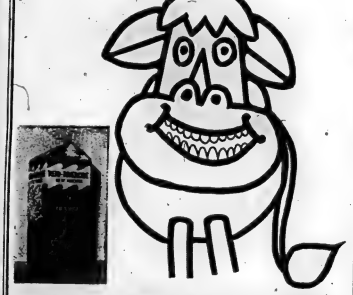
THE PICK OF Punch

"It's not poverty I mind. It's the ceaseless Khrish—ne."

Firms Must Register

TORONTO (CP) — Arthur Wishart, minister of financial and commercial affairs, announced Friday that wholesale distributors of paperbacks and periodicals will be required to register with his Ontario department by Oct. 1.

Mr. Wishart said the licensing procedure is aimed at "protecting Canadian ownership and control of this important segment of the publishing industry."



Mounties Won't Pay Juveniles

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP will continue to accept information from juveniles but no longer will pay them as informers or use them to buy drugs during investigations.

Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer, announcing the new policy which was implemented Aug. 24, said that after the first "contact" RCMP will have to get permission of parents or guardians before accepting further information.

He told the Commons Friday that six juveniles were being paid on a casual basis as informers when the policy was brought into effect.

His statement included a detailed rejection of allegations made Sept. 8 on television by Robert W. Eadie, 21, who said RCMP had given him a choice between becoming an informer or going to jail.

Packets of Dynamite Powder Mailed to Nipissing Trustees

NORTH BAY (CP) — Envelopes containing dynamite powder have been mailed to a Nipissing board of education trustee and to the board offices, police said Friday.

The envelopes also contained threatening notes believed to refer to the controversy over demands by French-speaking students for a separate French-language school at Sturgeon Falls, 20 miles west of here.

The notes bore the warnings "I can play rough" and "We are in town to open the powder keg." They were signed "F.L.O. Ontario cell," an apparent reference to Quebec's terrorist FLQ, or Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Police also revealed that their search for a bomb at the Sturgeon Falls secondary school Thursday was prompted by a threatening note received earlier in the day at the editorial offices of The Nugget.

The envelope contained a paper wrapper from a stick of dynamite and the note which said: "The contents of this label have been mailed to the board of destruction." It was signed F.L.Q. Ontario cell.

Police said they believed the threats were the work of a hoaxer, but nevertheless had taken the precaution of advising members of the board of education of the note to The Nugget and about searching the Sturgeon Falls school. No bomb was found.

No one was in the school at the time. It was closed Thursday until Monday after 19 days of demonstrations by French-speaking students.

The students withdrew from the school after Education Minister Robert Welch announced Thursday the appointment of a one-man commission of inquiry into their complaints.

The commissioner, Dr. Thomas Symons, president of Trent University at Peterborough, will review provincial legislation brought in in 1968 which laid the ground rules for French-language education in Ontario. He is to report in three months.

Student leaders indicated they would demonstrate again if their basic demand for construction of another school for the English-language minority is not met. Of the total enrolment of 1,800, about 1,250 are French-speaking. A militant minority fear that their French culture will suffer under a joint French-English school system.

Police and two Canadian Forces bomb experts moved into the school just a few hours after the students had drifted away and school officials had closed the school to facilitate the clean-up of debris left by protesters who had occupied the cafeteria since Tuesday.

Police revealed Friday that board trustee Peter Kennedy had received an envelope in the mail about the same time the notes and dynamite wrapper were delivered to The Nugget.

The package mailed to Mr. Kennedy contained a plastic bag filled with a yellow, crystalline substance identified by police as coming from a stick of dynamite. The powder represented about one-quarter of a stick.

A third envelope was received at the board offices here. It too contained a plastic bag with dynamite powder. The powder appeared to be from about three-quarters of a stick of dynamite.

The notes delivered to The Nugget was written in English; those to Mr. Kennedy and the board office in French.

Stock Market Prices Fall Amid Unease About U.S. Plans

By ART JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prices in most sectors edged back a bit on Canadian stock markets this week, amidst uncertainty about the economic picture in the United States.

The only strong sector on markets was gold-mining stocks, which tend to rise in times of economic uncertainty.

Throughout the week, many investors appeared cautious about buying until more was known about what will happen after the wage-price freeze expires in the U.S. The freeze is due to expire in mid-November.

U.S. President Richard Nixon said late Thursday the freeze will be followed by firm restraints.

The emerald's index of gold-mining issues rose 1.13 points to 89.29.

At New York, the Dow Jones index of key blue chip industrial issues lost 2.88 points on the week, drops-price freeze to 900.32.

The Montreal and Canadian exchanges' composite index dropped .01 of a point to 183.00.

The Toronto exchange's average daily volume was 2.06 million shares, down from 2.18 million last week.

Western oil issues, which for several weeks have been advanced because of increased buying by U.S. investors of shares of Canadian resource concerns, and also because of elimination of raw materials from the U.S. additional import duty, slipped back this week.

The Toronto exchange's index of these stocks dropped 2.46 points to 238.07. Analysts said the drop was due in part to profit-taking.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

Opinions Differ On 'Nose Jobs'

Are you considering a "nose job"? Nobody can make the decision except yourself. (Exception: Plastic surgeons often refuse to operate on some patients because they fear undue emotional and psychological reactions.) Here are two letters from readers expressing their views on this ever-growing problem.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am a 16-year-old high school girl. I suppose the only thing wrong with me physically is my nose. It's not exceptionally big — but it isn't one of your Hollywood stars' straight noses.

Now, I feel that nose jobs are okay if a person's nose is really big—and affects one psychologically. I'm not saying I'm immune to ridicule about my nose, but I can live with it.

People are too hung up on appearances these days. Suddenly, big noses are horrible things. The well-off boys and girls are flocking to plastic surgeons for transformations. In all cases their personalities don't change except perhaps for a little conceit about their newly acquired "beauty."

What I'm trying to say is straight nose or a pretty face. It comes from inside. Until people start accepting others for what they are and not what they look like the world is going to be even more messed up. — Miss G.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I had an ugly nose. Even my family made fun of it. I put up with it for 35 years, then had plastic surgery. It changed my appearance so much my whole life change. My husband could not stand me because at last I looked better than he did. So we were divorced.

This nose job made me an extrovert. Previously I was self-conscious and miserable. Tell your readers to prepare themselves for a different life — better and happier. I was not expecting plastic surgery to make me beautiful—just to look "normal" without that inherited beak. It's 30 years now, and life can be beautiful with this small adjustment. — "Now" Mrs. K.

Stemming the torrent of public opinion is not as simple as putting your thumb in a leaking dike. Readers are aware that I have been fighting against needless overexertion for years, in spite of having to stand up and "be that st" by exercise enthusiasts.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I refer to your theory that people should not exercise needlessly and "throw their heartbeats away". By your argument, we should indeed forego lovemaking, bouncing one's kids on one's knee, or even walking, in order to conserve energy. I imagine we should in fact — to insure longevity — say strictly in bed all the time, maintaining such gestures as will use up the least possible energy. — Mr. T.

COMMENT: Read my book on the subject, Mr. T., and you will agree I do not propose to take away the simple pleasures you mention.

Five Miss M.: Black bowel movements (in the absence of iron therapy) often indicates intestinal bleeding. It certainly deserves immediate investigation by a gastroenterologist (gastrointestinal specialist).

For September 19

Your birthday today: This is a time of specific new beginnings, some of them limited, intended to be temporary — but apt to drift into permanency. Today's natives include both masters of literary expression and critics and editors, people who enjoy a lively talk.

ARIES (March 21—April 19): An extraordinary Sunday brings business that is tedious with extra details —one could get past you. A favor returned now is deeply appreciated.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): Social details are your forte today. Financial matters, credit accounting, budgets, and the ilk are beyond your skills or present some puzzle. Read the fine print.

GEMINI (May 21—June 20): Allow for your own temperament as well as that of others in all your dealings. Pauses for reflection, brief prayer, help magnify.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Intuition springs alive to lead the way, and you are clear on what to do and how to get past objections. Be pleasant to all.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 23): Social conformity together with independence of thought pays, both for yourself and your fortunate ones. Accept differences of views.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 — Sept. 22): Word comes of changes you can make. Take up unfamiliar routines, possibly new jobs, fresh habits tomorrow.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Before selecting your main course, look around again. Changes have been under way since your last study. Wear your brightest, most stylish apparel.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Lucky coincidences should be taken in stride, since they do not make a great difference in competition. Proceed on your own competence rather than depending on breaks.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your original ideas produce good results, according to the tact and enthusiasm with which you present them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan 19): Even the most trivial encounters carry deeper meanings when are on the surface and your potential impact on emotional fulfilment later. Clinging to the past is likely an analog to inaction.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): Your creative and social sides come out on top together. Letting people have your way about most local issues becomes an exercise in diplomacy.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Private emotional conflicts a bit and seek a clear expression of your creative drives.

For September 20

A Your birthday today: Arriving at a balance; getting response and reward form reasonable efforts fill the daily living for this coming year. You will find your strivings bring rewards in spirit as well as material forms. Today's natives are very wise or very foolish — seldom average.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Review your resources, item by item; realize you are well equipped to cope with the coming week and its challenges. Something of a novelty crops up.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Review schemes to take into account objections, needless limitations. Meddlers exist and have to be excluded from serious involvement.

GEMINI (May 21 June 20): Mutual displays are focused for all to see how you and the other fellow see each other. Begin and end in peace and serenity no matter what confronts you. Later hours bring reward.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Results turn out to be the final sum of all factors. Nobody seems to care how you do it so long as you get it done on time. Something of a step upward comes in creative efforts.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 23): Contracts, serious arrangements which depend on long-term good will or performance of equipment beyond your own control should wait another day.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 — Sept. 22): Domestic interests run strong, a carry forward from yesterday's developments. Subtle byplays continue.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 — Oct. 22): Early upsets in home arrangements lead to distract you from your pursuit of fleeting outside advantages. Save what you can.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Routine has much to recommend it. The events of the moment can be thrust into more equitable perspective with momentary reflection.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Get through the day away". By your argument, we should indeed forego lovemaking, bouncing one's kids on one's knee, or even walking, in order to conserve energy. I imagine we should in fact — to insure longevity — say strictly in bed all the time, maintaining such gestures as will use up the least possible energy. — Mr. T.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): By acceptance of today's limiting conditions you' ll be much energy and can spend effective action toward preparing plans for a more expansive time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): Personal matters include pleasant surprises, and you may improve your earnings as well. Resources from a long ago past contribute quite a bit.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Co-operate in reasonable experiments and calculated risks. Go along with those of more experience, but watch for a point where your interests diverge from theirs.

Wait and See Policy Won't Work With Unemployment--Nixon

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The "wait and see policy" of Premier William Davis on Ontario's unemployment problems "won't work", Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Friday night.

Mr. Nixon told a news conference he is "upset" by employment figures showing a decrease in the number of persons employed in Ontario during August.

He blamed the 10 per cent import surcharge imposed by United States President Richard Nixon for the province's unemployment problems and said the level of unemployment could reach an intolerable level this winter.

The Liberal leader rejected a wage and price freeze as a solution to the province's unemployment problems, saying such a freeze should be used only in a national emergency or in wartime.

At Tilbury, Mr. Nixon asked farmers Friday night to support the Liberals in the Oct. 21 Ontario election, rather than the Progressive Conservatives "who do not care about our primary producers."

Mr. Nixon told a nomination meeting in that town on the Essex-Kent county line that the Conservative government did nothing for the area during a 1969 flood that damaged much of the area crops.

The text of Mr. Nixon's speech, from which he departed at times, was released to the press before delivery.

"My government will strive to bring produce prices to a level that will accurately reflect costs of production," the Liberal leader said.

The meeting chose Liberal incumbent Richard Ruston to represent the riding.

The Ontario Development Corporation has been "singularly unsuccessful in providing buoyancy for the economy of the province Mr. Nixon told a news conference.

Nixon and Lewis Exchange Friendly Quips

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The mood was friendly when election rivals Robert Nixon and Stephen Lewis met briefly at a television studio here Friday.

"Hello Stephen," said the Liberal leader to the New Democratic Party chief. "I kept your seat warm for you."

"Ah, yes, but this time you were just a little behind us," said Mr. Lewis, referring to his head start on the Opposition leader. Mr. Nixon lost about 45 minutes earlier in the day when his chartered plane was grounded with engine trouble.

Their wives, accompanying them on their campaign for the Oct. 21 Ontario election, also exchanged pleasantries.

Said Mr. Nixon, as the group parted:

"We'll meet again, I'm sure."

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"Would the hostess please stop making excuses for her cookies and tell me what she did with all my underwear?"

Davis Thinks Falls Will Forsake Grits

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis, stressing that "the honeymoon between the Liberal party and this riding has come to an end," appeared here briefly Friday night to espouse the Progressive Conservative cause in the Oct. 21 Ontario election.

The premier's address to a nomination meeting lasted less than 10 minutes, in keeping with the avowed brevity of his speeches so far in the campaign.

During his brief stopover, Mr. Davis encountered a mild demonstration. Members of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, on strike against the Kimberley-Clark Pulp and Paper Co. Ltd. plant in St. Catharines since July, gathered to ask about his stand in the dispute.

Mr. Davis said he would refer the matter to Labor Minister Gordon Carton.

Lawyer John T. Clement, 42, received the Conservative nomination by acclamation in the riding, now held by Liberal George Bukator.

Lewis Says Pollution Fines In Two Years Average $353

AMHERSTBURG, Ont. (CP) — The average fine against industries convicted of water pollution in Ontario from June, 1969, to July, 1971, was $353, despite laws that provide maximum first-offence fines of $5,000, Stephen Lewis said Friday night.

The New Democratic Party leader told a meeting in this community 15 miles south of Windsor that the 27 air polluters charged during the same period, again including second and third offences, received average fines of $400.

The maximum fine for second and subsequent offences is $10,000.

"What a rap on the knuckles for a company like Domtar Ltd. which last year turned an after-tax profit of $17,618,000," Mr. Lewis said.

Two corporations which have been fined have also received loans under the government's Equalization of Industrial Opportunities plan.

Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd., fined $350 in 1970 and $500 in 1971, received an EIO loan of $500,000 July, 1969. Its profits after taxes in 1970 were $5,932,000, he said.

Domtar, which was fined $439,333 by EIO in April, 1969, and $484,000 by EIO on Jan. 20th, 1970, was fined $1,000 for water pollution two days later.

Canadian Gypsum Co. Ltd. of Weston, Ont., a wholly-owned subsidiary of United States Gypsum, was fined $1,000 on June 29, 1971. George Kerr, at that time environmental minister, promised in the legislature that if the company was brought to court a second time, it would be fined substantially more. However, on Aug. 8, 1971, the company was acquitted on one charge and fined $200 on a second.

An NDP government, he said, would issue an order calling on these giant corporations "to clean up." It would follow up on continuing offenders with demands for the maximum penalties.

Earlier this week, Mr. Lewis said companies such as International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. would be required to build adequate water treatment facilities.

"Failure to do so in the shortest reasonable time would result in our immediate prosecution of INCO before the courts with the possibility of fines up to $10,000 a day."

Welfare Workers Protest Cutting off Teenagers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver social workers have demanded that council throw out an order by city welfare director Walter Boyd cutting off social assistance payments to teen-agers under 19.

At a meeting of the United Community Services of the Vancouver area—an organization for volunteer social work groups —seven member agencies agreed to back a UCS move to have Mr. Boyd's directive overruled by council.

McKeough Says Ontario Will Not Be Hardest Hit

GODERICH, Ont. (CP) — "Every other major trading partner of the United States will be hit very much harder" than Ontario by the United States import duty announced recently, Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough said Friday night.

Mr. McKeough told a nominating convention for Huron riding that 80 per cent of Ontario's exports will escape the 10-per-cent duty.

Euromart Expects Heavy Trade Loss

BRUSSELS (AP) — Foreign ministers of the European Common Market nations met today on the world trade and monetary crisis touched off by President Nixon's Aug. 15 measures to defend the dollar.

Delegation sources insisted there was no question of Europeans taking retaliatory steps for the time being.

Foreign ministers were reviewing a report from the Common Market commission that estimated Nixon's measures will mean a trade loss of some $2 billion to the six member nations.

Negotiations between the United States and its major trading partners over how to resolve the crisis, deadlocked in London last week, are due to continue in Washington Sept. 26-27. Officials here do not want to jeopardize these talks and the West German delegation particularly has come out against reprisals.

Sniper Used Blunt Bullet

LONDONDERRY (AP) — A British soldier was critically wounded by a guerrilla bullet today and the army angrily charged the sniper used dum-dum ammunition.

The soldier was shot in the back while on duty at an observation post on the edge of the Bogside, Londonderry's Roman Catholic stronghold.

An army spokesman said the bullet had been recovered. Its calibre, he said, had not yet been classified but the nose had been filed to produce a dum-dum effect.

Banishoned dum-dum bullets are outlawed by the rules of regular war. They spread on impact and cause drastic mutilation.

The wounded soldier was taken to Altnagelvin Hospital on the edge of the city. The hospital said he was "very seriously ill."

The shooting followed a weekend of riot and gunbattles as the outlawed Irish Republican Army stepped up its campaign against the Protestant-based Ulster government. Twenty-four British soldiers have been killed this year.

Other bombs wrecked government offices in Newry, close to the border with the Irish Republic, and a customs post at Belleek in County Fermanagh.

Cambodian Oil Tanks Blown Up

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Communist sappers slipped into the outskirts of Phnom Penh today and wiped out two-thirds of Cambodia's civilian fuel supply, while in South Vietnam Viet Cong sappers inflicted heavy casualties in five attacks just outside of Tay Ninh City.

In Phnom Penh, about 30 sappers with rocket launchers blew up 15 large oil storage tanks, striking a heavy blow to Cambodia's struggling economy.

Snow Falls In Alberta

CALGARY (CP) — Heavy snow fell for about six hours in the Calgary-Banff corridor of southwestern Alberta Sunday night.

The weather office said the snow melted as it hit the ground, but the precipitation and temperatures in the mid-30s caused some traffic problems.

It was still snowing at Banff at midnight. RCMP said driving conditions were poor.

Retaliatory Moves Out for Present

Delegation sources insisted there was no question of Europeans taking retaliatory steps for the time being.

Foreign ministers were reviewing a report from the Common Market commission that estimated Nixon's measures will mean a trade loss of some $2 billion to the six member nations.

Negotiations between the United States and its major trading partners over how to resolve the crisis, deadlocked in London last week, are due to continue in Washington Sept. 26-27. Officials here do not want to jeopardize these talks and the West German delegation particularly has come out against reprisals.

Pepin Forecasts Canada to Benefit

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States decision to float the dollar to international exchange dealings is of potential benefit to Canada's commercial position, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said today.

Mr. Pepin was addressing a group of businessmen and government officials who took part in a Canadian trade and industrial mission to West Germany in April.

Members of the mission were called together by the trade department to review progress made in cultivating business ties with Germany and plot future strategy.

"Obviously the German market was high on our lists before the events of the last month," Mr. Pepin said, referring to the U.S. decision to end convertibility of the dollar into gold and place a 10-per-cent additional levy on imports to the American market.

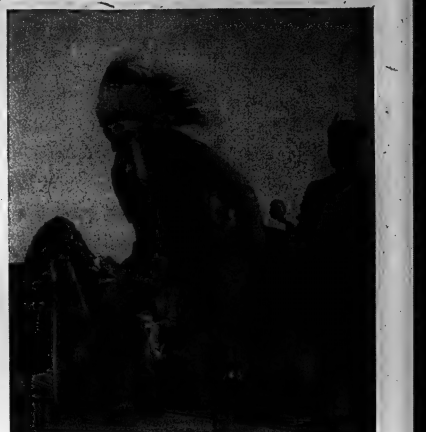
"It is higher now."

To guess the new relationship between world currencies "once the dust has settled," is a field where angels fear to tred, said the trade minister.

Canada, however, could benefit in foreign trade markets from the realignment.

"Our dollar was set free to find its own level in May, 1970, and it has been reasonably steady since then at around 6.7 per cent above its previous level.

"If other currencies were allowed to find their levels, they could tend to appreciate in relation to the U.S. dollar but more or less retain their relationship between them. Since Canada took this step well over one year ago these currencies may be expected to appreciate in value in relationship to our dollar."



Plane Missing

BUFFALO, N.Y. (CP) — For the second time in less than a month a private plane carrying Canadian sports figures is missing.

Harness driver Roger White and Jacques Cote, newly-appointed director of Blue Bonnets Raceway in Montreal, were confirmed as missing Sunday on a private flight to Philadelphia.

White, 40, and Cote, 45, both of Quebec City, were on their way to a yearling horse sale in Philadelphia. White was looking for horses for his public stable.

Federation Aviation Administration officials at Buffalo International Airport said the two men were in the plane flown by Larry Holloway of St. Catharines, Ont., that left the Niagara District Airport at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., about 7:30 a.m. Saturday.

Tely Unions Ask Probe Of Sale of Reader List

TORONTO (CP) — There appeared little hope today that union demands for government intervention to keep the Toronto Telegram alive could succeed.

Canada's anti-combines law has never been used to prevent a newspaper sale, and Telegram Publisher John Bassett already has indicated to the Ontario government that he would not accept government financing if it was offered.

Allan Grossman, Ontario's minister of trade and development, said Sunday a suggestion of government financing had been rejected by Mr. Bassett. He announced Saturday that the 96-year-old daily already has sold some of its assets and will cease to publish.

The newspaper's unions have asked for a government investigation into whether the sale of The Telegram's subscription lists to the Toronto Star violates the Combines Act by giving The Star a monopoly position in the evening paper field in Toronto.

The city's only other English-language daily, the Globe and Mail, is a morning paper.

There is no precedent for government intervention. The Senate committee on mass media said in its December, 1970, report that "on no known occasion . . . have the joint resources of the combines and investigation branch and the Restrictive Trade Practices Commission prevented a newspaper sale, consolidation or merger."

Mr. Grossman said he told Mr. Bassett Sunday the government would like to see The Telegram keep publishing and

Bassett Says 'Tely is Dead'

TORONTO (CP) — Publisher John Bassett says there is "not the slightest possibility" he will reconsider his decision to close The Telegram.

"The Tely is dead," Mr. Bassett said in an interview. Anybody who hopes it may be sold to a prospective publisher is "dreaming."

"All I want now is to be left in peace to arrange the most decent burial with all the dignity and grace I can," he said Sunday night.

asked whether there was any kind of assistance the province could give. He said Mr. Bassett replied that he couldn't conceive of any newspaper being operated with government money.

"He wouldn't condone such a thing."

The Council of Newspaper Unions, representing organized workers at The Telegram, also wants to know when the sale of the circulation list to The Star was negotiated and consummated; and whether either government will take steps to protect the interests of the 1,200 Telegram employees who will lose their jobs.

No date has been set for the closing but it is expected before the end of October.

Mr. Bassett's announcement Saturday said the newspaper has lost $2 million in the last two years and anticipated a loss of $1 million for 1971.

Bangla Desh Prepared To Send Group to UN

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — The self-proclaimed government of Bangla Desh—East Pakistan, where the Pakistan army moved to crush separatist aspirations earlier this year—is preparing to send a delegation to the United Nations General Assembly.

Bangla Desh (Bengali Nation) representatives in India say that guerrilla operations against the Pakistan army are gathering momentum as the guerrilla leadership recoups after the chaos of the weeks which followed the military crackdown of March 25.

It was announced in New Delhi that a team of seven or eight will go to the United Nations to expose the "political treachery and genocide" of Pakistan.

But whether the delegation will be allowed to take part in any debates is another question.

Name of Game in Attica Prison Probe to Secure Conviction

ATTICA, N.Y. (AP) — An autopsy report that nine slain hostages at Attica state prison died of gunshot wounds has been confirmed by one of two pathologists who were asked by the state to re-examine the bodies.

Dr. Henry Siegel, Westchester County medical examiner, said his finds had confirmed the re-cal examiner for Monroe County. Edland's findings conflicted with earlier official statements that rebellious prisoners at the maximum-security facility slit the throats of some of the hostages as a police assault began last Monday.

Dr. Siegel said any further information on his findings would

Task Force on Organized Crime, which asked him to undertake the re-examination.

But task force spokesman Edward Moran again refused Sunday to give specific answers to questions about the violence in the prison.

"The name of the game is to conduct our inquiry, our investigation in secret," Moran said. "The name of the game is to secure an indictment and successful prosecution. I will say nothing more than that."

Lawyers for some of the prisoners refused to match Moran's reticence, however. Several of them said prisoners were beaten after police put down the uprising.

Daniel Alterman and Joshua Roth of the National Lawyers' Guild told reporters that some prisoners were stripped and forced to crawl on hands and knees across a yard under threat of beatings after the rebellion was quelled. Several guards then beat the prisoners as they were led back into their cells, they said.

The comments from Moran and the lawyers came in separate news conferences Sunday at the gates of the prison.

In Attica, church pastors pleaded for understanding, and outsiders were criticized.

"We know tragedy, we have tasted death and grief as intense and terrifying that it is part of our history now," Rev. Charles F. Willman said in his sermon at St. Paul's United Church of Christ.

He told a reporter he was thinking of the press when he prayed "for those outsiders who have come here but have failed to grasp the depth of our grief."

The disturbance began a week ago Thursday when prisoners seized hostages from among prison employees. Police took back the prison last Monday but 9 persons died.

Feet Don't Fail Me Now!

Action was fast and furious, as participants of the Mohawk Pete horse races, thundered down the track. Along with the horse races, several exhibits of horsemanship were featured during the afternoon including the open end barrel race. In this event, the rider must race the length of the field, dismount and crawl through a barrel, get back on the horse and return to the starting position. Spectators and participants alike claim, "this is the best fair that has ever been held here."

Plane Missing, Theft Charged

TRENTON (Staff) — A charge of theft of an aircraft has been laid against Harvey Cassel, 58, of Trenton, in connection with the three-week disappearance of a light plane from Oak Hills Flying Club.

The Cessna Skyhawk, owned by Donald Larriviere of Stirling, was borrowed by Cassel Sept. 3 for a trip to Gaspe with a young Trenton youth, Marvin Badgerow, 19, as passenger.

Officials at the Napanee Regional Detention Centre confirmed today that Badgerow is being held there on charges filed by Trenton Police Department for activities which apparently are unrelated to the missing plane case. Badgerow had gone along on the trip to the Quebec lidewater but left the plane when it diverted from its course into the United States. Badgerow has stated that the pilot wanted to take the plane to Cuba, but he did not want to go so he returned to Canada following a stopover in northern New York State.

The special names division, under the direction of John Wiggett is now at work on an early bid canvass to each people, such as pensioners, who cannot be reached at work.

The United Appeal, supporting 13 member agencies, will go on during the entire month of October.

Nixon Here Tomorrow

The provincial election campaign will jump into high gear in the Quinte area tomorrow (Tuesday) with appearances in Belleville by both Prime Minister Bill Davis for the Conservatives and opposition leader Robert Nixon for the Liberals.

Mr. Nixon will fly in to Trenton at 9:30, will spend an hour at Quinte Secondary School and later do some "meet and greet" and have lunch at the Quinte Mall before going on to Cobourg.

Tuesday morning, Mr. Nixon will attend a bowpit session with students at Quinte Secondary School in Belleville. Mr. Nixon will visit the Belleville school at 10:15 a.m.

Also on Tuesday the Liberal leader will stop at Trenton, will appear on an open line radio show in Cobourg and in the evening will attend a Liberal nomination meeting.

WHAT IS GLAUCOMA ?
Glaucoma is characterized by a slow, progressive loss of visual fields followed later by loss of central vision. In a person over forty, it is a real danger. Anyone who requires frequent changes of lenses, has mild headaches, sees halos around electric lights or has trouble adapting to darkness should be suspect.
Using a device called a tonometer, which measures intra-ocular tension, glaucoma can usually be detected. There are many prescription drugs that we have available; drugs called miotics which are useful in helping to control glaucoma. Everyone should have their eyes checked periodically but for older people, it is essential. Uncontrolled glaucoma can result in absolute blindness.

Unions Seek to Buy Floundering Telegram

The labor union movement is exploring the possibility of buying the Toronto Telegram, a federal NDP executive officer told Quinte ridING New Democrats last night.

In reply to a question from the floor, at the NDP nomination meeting, John Brewin of Toronto said the NDP will give "all the guidance it can" to unions seeking to buy the paper.

"There have been over this weekend since this announcement, very major efforts to see ways to trying to do this (buy the paper) within the union movement," said Mr. Brewin.

"The council of newspaper unions has wired Trudeau and the provincial government to try to get some assistance to see if they can do it," he added. "I'm sure the unions themselves will see if there is any way of putting it together. The NDP hasn't the assets to put into it, much as we'd love to."

Mr. Brewin told his listeners that the idea that a newspaper is a "public service "is not true".

"It's big business," he said. "There are several obstacles to the NDP or the unions buying The Telgram, Mr. Brewin said. The publisher, who has already said his subscription list to the Toronto Star might be reluctant to sell to the union movement and Toronto businessmen might block the sale because they want only two newspapers in the city.

"You are talking about $10 to $20 million; newspapers said.

The unions' funds are held in trust for pensions and strike money, and it is doubtful if they could put their funds into risk ventures, Mr. Brewin concluded.

Camping Rates To Be Reduced

TWEED (Special) — If fine Indian summer weather holds out this fall, area campers and outdoor enthusiasts are going to get a bonus from the Tweed district of the Department of Lands and Forests.

Department officials at Tweed have announced that daily fees for entrance at provincial parks will not be collected after September 19, while overnight camping fees will be charged only until midnight, Oct. 11.

Conservation Week Scope Broadened

TWEED (Special) — Conservation Week in Ontario, from September 20 to 26 this year, will focus attention on positive contributions to environmental conservation by individuals, citizen organizations and government departments and agencies.

Conservation Week was originally the idea of the Hatton Region Conservation Authority. It proved to be such a success that other conservation authorities picked up the idea and it became an annual event with most of Ontario's 37 authorities participating.

Initially, the objective of Conservation Week was to publicize the work and activities of conservation authorities (and to involve the public, ie individuals, groups and organizations, in conservation activities.

This year the scope will be broadened to include all activities and enterprises related to the environment. Special encouragement is being given to school's throughout the province to participate in local programs and to initiate projects relating to conservation. Litter pills, hikes, fishing, demonstrations, nature walks and open houses will be among local activities.

— — — A guidance this year is the fact that the Conservation Authorities Act is 25 years old, having first been proclaimed on April 13, 1946", environment minister, George Kerr said.

"Conservation Week means a further opportunity to learn about the achievements and aspirations of conservation agencies and also provides an opportunity for everyone to participate in many worthwhile events featured during this period," M. Brunelle said.

Campaign Kickoff Here Tomorrow

Advance Men Prepare for Davis Visit

Ontario Prime Minister Bill Davis will be appearing in Belleville Tuesday night, for the Progressive Conservative Convention, that will be the kickoff of the PC campaign for the upcoming provincial election to be held Oct. 21.

To ensure the smooth running of the all important kick-off, a five - man team has been working in Belleville for the past four days, ironing out the technicalities of the program.

Gordon Peturson, co-ordinator of the team explained, "we cannot speak for the prime minister on why this city was chosen for the kick-off, but the central location in eastern Ontario (where Davis feels he will get the best reception) was certainly a point in Belleville's favor and being the home of MPP Dr. R. T. Potter would affirm this choice."

Peturrson's team, acting as an administrative body, has been working with the area, party workers, making ready all facets of the prime minister's visit from arrival to program to departure.

Spokesmen for the campaign claim, "the young PCs are fabulous in this city. They have given us 100 per cent co-operation in every way they could."

The arena, located on Market St. at the rear of the city hall, was chosen only after extensive searching out of every possible location in the city.

"After it was all boiled down, it was either the Dick Ellis Rink or the Memorial Arena," said Mr. Peturrson. "Seating capacity was the final factor proclaiming the old arena as convention site," he said.

"We have to pack as many people as possible into the arena" said one PC spokesman, "so that we can give Mr. Davis the kind of send off needed for a successful tour."

For the convention in Belleville, a truckload of sound systems and equipment will be brought in to complement the existing facilities in the arena.

Most of the actual setting up will be handled by the crew travelling with the truck and members of the advance team.

The Peturrson team is responsible for making final decisions on every factor of the convention from site of the convention to what band will be providing the entertainment.

As well as the local band, The Sands of Time, Mr. Davis will be bringing his own personal campaign band called Jalopy.

Because this is the kickoff of the Ontario campaign, Mr. Peturrson and his officers are remaining in close contact with head office in Toronto, anticipating that PC candidates across the province might want information on how to attend the convention.

Among the company travelling with Mr. Davis on the tour, expected to be completed Wednesday evening in Alexandria, will be five candidates from the Windsor Riding and many of the Ontario cabinet.

Mr. Davis will make the journey from Toronto by car with an entourage of buses carrying press and dignitaries, and should arrive in the city shortly before he is scheduled to appear at the convention. "There will be no wasted time on the tour," said one advance man.

Though members of the advance team say, "we are not at liberty to comment on the nature of Mr. Davis' speeches, we do know that there will be pertinent, major speeches made on the tour concerning the PC campaign."

Tuesday night it will be all over, and Mr. Davis will be making ready for the next day when he will appear in seven other communities in eastern Ontario before returning to Toronto Thursday morning.

Getting It All Together

To herald the kick-off of the Progressive Conservative Convention and the appearance of Ontario Prime Minister Bill Davis, Gordon Petursson and a four-man advance team have been staying in Belleville, ironing out the technicalities of the convention scheduled to be held Tuesday. A truckload of equipment is expected to arrive at the arena, located behind City Hall, to complement the existing facilities. Mr. Petursson is shown here with members of both his team and members of the local PC Association talking over arrangements for the evening.

NDPs Launch Campaign

PCs Spending Beer Money: NDP

Beer and liquor interests and the insurance industry are probable sources of the largest part of the Conservative party's election funds, Quinte riding New Democrats were told last night.

Speaking at their nomination meeting, John Brewin, NDP candidate for Scarborough East and provincial treasurer of the party, hinted that recent beer price increases were connected "with the election campaign."

The price increases boosted the breweries' revenue by $9 million, he said, and "if you were the Tory Party, you wouldn't have much trouble extracting a little bit."

"The insurance industry — beneficiary of huge tax breaks, who pay virtually no taxation — the kind of money they will throw into the campaign!

"Last time, the beer and liquor prices went up after the election," he continued. "I suspect that beer and liquor interests in Ontario said this time they weren't so sure that the Conservatives' getting re-elected and fulfilling their promise, so they wanted the price increased ahead of time."

Mr. Brewin hinted that Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP for Quinte riding was disenchanted with his party.

"Even the member for this riding — I'm sure it's no secret in Belleville — was on the verge of pulling out of the Conservative caucus before the leadership convention and presumably was only cajoled back in on the basis of a cabinet position," he said.

The contest now under way will be one of the four or five historic elections in Ontario's history, said Mr. Brewin, "an election of transition". The electorate is tired of the Conservatives and is looking for "a new way of running this province".

"The Conservatives will spend a lot of money, there will be a lot of fanfare but they won't talk issues," he said.

Mr. Brewin got through his speech without talking about the issue of extension of grants to the separate schools, but, expanded on the subject in response to a question from the floor.

"How do you reconcile the two statements: first that the NDP would eliminate religious indoctrination in our public schools, and secondly that it would provide full grants for Catholic public schools on the mutually accepted condition that facilities be shared?" he was asked.

Mr. Brewin replied that the two school systems were constitutional guarantees in the British North America Act, and there is no way a provincial government can eliminate that guarantee.

Extension of grants was voted upon at a party conference and "that's one thing about a democratic party, that's the majority rules."

Rich Catholics, he said, can afford to send their children to private Catholic high schools, but the working p[illegible] can't afford them. In effect, the present grant system forces those people to go to public schools.

"I would like them to choose to go to public schools, not be forced to," said Mr. Frewin. "I would like to see new schools built with two wings, one for the public supporters and one for the Catholics."

"Studying this issue brought us non-Catholics to an understanding of the need for parents to play a greater role in education," he added.

The Conservatives charge that extension of grants would lead to fragmentation of education in the province, as other religious groups sought their own schools is untrue, he said.

"There is a clear distinction between those who have the constitutional guarantee and those who don't and that will prevent fragmentation," declared Mr. Brewin.

Flying Farmers Visit Belleville

The Belleville Flying Club played host to 185 members of the Flying Farmers Association this weekend, in the city for their annual convention.

Flyers with their families, travelled from most parts of Ontario, three states including Vermont, Michigan and New York and the province of Saskatchewan to attend the convention held in the Sun Valley.

The executive committee of the association stated, "this has been the best convention that has been held in the nine years of operation of the club."

While visiting the city, the men were taken for a tour of Corby's Distillery and the women were guided through Avon Jewellery. Canada Cement also conducted a tour for the men.

At the grand banquet, held in the dining room of the Sun Valley, John Carroll was announced as the new president of the association.

Mary Simpson of Glencoe was announced as the Queen of the Farmtems (youth group of the Flying Farmers) and Mildred Kernohan of Forest was chosen as the Flying Farmer Queen.

At the dinner meeting, Mayor J. Russell Scott addressed the group saying, "we in Belleville are proud of the friendliness that prevails in the city and we hope that you take some of the friendship back to your own home towns."

In his description of the city Mayor Scott continued by saying, "our population has grown by about 4,000 in the past two years, and some 2,700 new jobs have been formed."

A special award presented each year to an Ontario member of the organization, is a trophy given to the pilot who flew the greatest number of miles to attend the convention.

Fred Libby, of Essex, (10 miles out of Windsor) received the award after travelling a total of 325 miles.

Sunday morning the pilots were given a weather briefing by the members of the Belleville Flying Club and the last plane left the runway later in the afternoon.

Deacon Official NDP Candidate

Alan Deacon, Belleville high school teacher, was officially chosen last night as Quinte riding NDP candidate at a nomination meeting at Engineers' Hall.

About 25 people turned out on the rainy evening and contributed $159 to the campaign fund.

The fund now totals $259, the extra $100 coming from the boot and shoe workers' union. This is a record for the local party — the largest amount raised in the first two days of a campaign, said Ian Reilly, campaign manager for Mr. Deacon.

"We of the NDP have been called dreamers," said Mr. Deacon, speech, "If we are willing to work hard we can make the dreams come true.

"The Conservatives by definition are cautious, opposed to change, supporting the established pattern," he said. "The Liberals have admitted publicly that they don't have a machine."

Noting that the NDP slogan for this campaign is "we deliver," Mr. Deacon quipped: "We deliver anytising except babies — that's Dr. Potter's job."

During the one-hour nomination meeting, Robert Andrus of the Quinte and District Labor Council pledged his organization's support to the NDP in Quinte riding during the election campaign.

Telegram Demise Inevitable

The demise of the Toronto Telegram is something that many people in the newspaper field have been predicting for the last few years.

It is a familiar pattern across North America but one which fails to excite the public until such time as one more big city newspaper stops its presses.

Although it is unpalatable to some to accept the reason, Telegram losses of $3 million dollars prove that Toronto has now become the same as most other major cities in North America, a community that can only support one morning newspaper and one evening. The next possible step, following the pattern, is for the two remaining papers to merge so that both papers may be produced in the one plant.

Figures released by The Telegram show why it was impossible to continue: one editorial employee for each 1,000 of circulation, one mechanical tradesman for each 1,000 and one employee in the circulation department for each 1,000. Added up, the home delivery rate fails to even match the wages of the staff. Advertising obviously, fails far short of bridging the gap in The Telegram's case.

The suggestion of government aid was considered. But what a problem that would be if it ever materialised, with the attendant charges of government-managed news almost sure to be raised immediately.

Sdur note about the whole matter is the method of announcing the decision. The notice was posted when only a few employees were in the building.

And raising the hackles of many employees was the fact they were in negotiation with management at the same time publisher John Bassett was trying to sell the paper without notifying the negotiators of this alternative.

North American analysis indicates it was inevitable. What must be guarded against now is the next step on the economic charts — the merger of the Toronto Star and The Globe and Mail.

Once More

Canadian pro football is halfway through its season. The U.S. variety has just started, the National Hockey League teams are in training camp and the world series in baseball is still to come.

What season is it anyway?

Locally, there is one group of minor sports enthusiasts who know what season it is, and that is the one in which they attempt to line up the volunteers for minor hockey.

This year, with two arenas available, the expansion of minor hockey, which has been held under control, is expected to take place. So fathers — and mothers — quit dreaming about the summer cottage. The hockey season is upon us, almost.

So once more, dear volunteers, into the breach. . .

Industrial Park

Quick now — how many plants and commercial enterpises are there in Belleville's northeast industrial park? And what are their names? Well, we did not have the answers at our fingertips either until a reading of the sign opposite Riverside Park enlightened us.

The sign lists nine, with a map showing the general layout of the area. They are Chambers Food Ltd., Hertz Car and Truck Rentals, American Importer Electric Co. Ltd., Bailey Metalcraft, Brooke Bond Foods Ltd., Allied Chemicals Ltd., Smith Transport Ltd., Maislin Transport Ltd. and Mobil Plastics Co.

These enterprises of course are only one segment of Belleville's industrial base; however they indicate some of the small recent acquisitions and there is still room for more.

Nature's Way

The weather these days . . . It is more like November. Where are those golden September days of old? The greater glory is yet to come of course, the frosts and then the fabled, ageless scene merging into October and autumn, fall, and another year in decline. Meanwhile the rain is helping to redress the balance of nature, stemming from those earlier days of drought.

Party Leaders—Bill Davis

New Man With New Policies to Be PC Election Theme

By JOE DUFUS

TORONTO (CP) — In the six months since he came from the ivory towers of the education ministry, William Grenville Davis, Ontario's 18th premier, has created an image of dervish activity.

But his impact may not have had time to be felt by the public, a major concern for the boyish-faced Brampton lawyer entering his first election Oct. 21 as premier of a government in undisturbed power for 28 years.

His task has been to convince Ontario's more than four million voters that the Progressive Conservatives have not become stodgy, that "a new wave," represented by his rise to power March 1, has meant change.

"Time for change?" asks Mr. Davis. "There's been change."

Nevertheless the Tories plan to increase their campaign budget this time by 10 per cent over the $2 million bill in 1967.

They will push the theme that Mr. Davis is a new man with new policies and new flair to offset a trend in recent Canadian elections against established governments, reflected in upsets in Alberta, Saskatchewan, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Mr. Davis has said the same thing won't happen here, because the issues are different.

As to change, there are few traces left of the political machine John Roberts, his predecessor, ran for since years. Mr. Roberts has retired in a business career but he left a legacy of power that's reflected in the 68 seats the Tories hold in the 117-seat legislature. The Liberals have 27, the New Democrats 21 and there is one independent.

When he took over, Mr. Davis, 42, began to put his own imprint on the party with a wholesale rebuffling of the cabinet, leaving only three of the ministers in the same posts Mr. Roberts had assigned them.

He created a 13-man inner cabinet as the real governing body, diminishing the role of the powerful treasury board.

He has established a closer liaison with party ministers and taken a personal hand in all political decisions, something Mr. Roberts delegated to trusted aides.

Mr. Davis staged a major conference on economic nationalism despite the fact that before leaving office, Mr. Roberts had described economic nationalism as a "dirty issue."

"We're people-oriented," Mr. Davis boasts, giving style to what Mr. Robarts had expounded as the need to stress the quality of life for Ontario citizens in the 1970s, rather than a piling-up of material achievements.

As education minister for eight years—he was appointed by Mr. Roberts in 1962 at the age of 33—Mr. Davis's public image was cool, machine-like and super-efficient.

But now he has acquired a new rapport which manifests itself in his meet-the-people tours.

Folks jab him on the shoulder to make a point, call him Bill, a drastic departure from Mr. Roberts whose steel-eyed look dismayed anyone who didn't know him intimately from calling him anything but Mr. Roberts or "Mr. Prime Minister," which he favored.

As well, Mr. Davis has abandoned loose-fitting suits that characterised him while education minister: Now, his clothes are trim, almost nobby, and his flopping hair, brushed straight down for years, costs $15 a sitting to groom.

His major policies seem to bear out the claim of a leader with a grass-roots concern.

His decision to stop Toronto's half-completed Spadina expressway was a concern for "people over cars."

He gave 18-year-olds the right to vote, put new curbs on noise, litter and radiation pollution, introduced a form of no-fault automobile insurance, acted to limit foreign investment in new brokerage houses, paperback and periodical distributing companies, and took the unprecedented step of axing Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd. for $25 million for polluting the St. Clair water system.

But his critics say all of these moves don't create jobs in a province that has nearly five-per-cent unemployment.

Mr. Davis replies by referring to his throne speech announcement to pump $100 million into the home construction industry, the money coming from the private sector—banks—with provincial government backing.

The government has also embarked on a heavy deficit-spending program to prop up the economy, particularly through tax incentives to industry.

Letters to the Editor

On Welfare States and Separate School Support

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Certain representatives of the national news media have earned the distinctive title, "a keen political observer". One such man in Montreal is Mr. Leslie Roberts. In Toronto, another very distinguished commentator and astute critic of the political, social, and economic scenes is Mr. Jack Dennett. Their voices answer many questions, provoke many thoughts, and raise many new questions.

The Intelligencer is to be commended for carrying the byline of another newsman who continually presents his high qualifications as a keen, practical, and pointed critic of the federal government, and of happenings in Ottawa and in other parts of the nation which ought to be of embarrassing concern to all Canadians.

Richard Jackson's apparent unfitness effort to stir the citizenry are deserving of more praise than I can give here. I am sure, however, that the Ottawa syndicated columnist is not seeking testimonials from those who read his articles. His own writing so frequently states or implies what he is really after — the attention and concern of us all to the issues he puts before us.

It is evident to me that his interest in what the Government both individually and collectively is doing for us and TO us, is second only to his concern for HOW they are doing it.

He points out that conditions do not burgeon overnight into shade or from life - giving enterprise and creativity; social unrest, permissiveness, and violence are not created in an instant, nor do they stop there — for they are merely stages in the continuum which lead to total breakdown and anarchy.

Many people are prone to cry doom, to be utterly pessimistic, or, as Richard Jackson said in a recent column, they are willing to accept the reply that there is not much that Average Man can do about things. It is our responsibility to see that this is not true.

Election time is again upon us provincially, and soon perhaps, federally. Political parties are in business to gain power. That power is given to them by the people through voting. That power can be influenced and directed by the people through communication — witness the effectiveness of militant and dissident groups. Mr. Averages Man had better believe that he too, can be effective! Political utterances demands questioning of what is going on. We cannot be like the person who, when asked if he knew the meaning of apathy, replied, "No I don't, and I don't care."

P. A. BROOKS

To our Members of Parliament — gentlemen, Average Man cares, and I do not think that he wholly likes what is happening in Canada today. We do not have to move inexorably towards a welfare state. There are measures we can take to steer the nation from social decay and violence. It is time to question your views.

F. A. BROOKS

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

There are serious flaws in Premier Davis' arguments against extending financial support of the Separate School system to include Garde 13. For a start, his suggestion that such support would lead to the "fragmentation of the educational system" ignores the fact that Newfoundland, Quebec, Saskatchewan and Alberta support Separate School systems Grades 1-12 with no ill effects.

Mr. Davis' government disregarded the principle of continuation stressed in the Ontario Separate School Trustees Association's brief. Surely a child should be allowed to continue in the same schooling system for Grades 11, 12 and 13, regardless of the state of his parents' finances.

It is important to realise that Mr. Davis has followed the letter and not the spirit of our constitution. The BNA Act guaranted Separate School system as a right to all those when there were no secondary schools. The Founding Fathers didn't envision secondary schooling and so they didn't specify it. As a result, Mr. Davis has been able to quote the letter of the law — but not the intent.

A third of Ontario's population want their children to go to Separate Schools because they believe Separate Schools teach moral, spiritual and ethical values that are important. I am opposed to a single system of schoolstill for everyone. I don't believe the right to choose education systems should be restricted to those who can afford private schools' tuition fees.

People who feel concerned as I do should write to Premier Davis at Queen's Park and tell him what they think.

KEVIN J. FITZGIBBONS,
Trustee, Toronto Board of Education, representing Separate School ratepayers

Deadly CO Absorbed by Nature

The Brockville Recorder and Times

Human activities, chiefly the driving of automobiles, spew some 200 million metric tons of carbon monoxide (CO) into the atmosphere every year.

That's bad?

Not necessarily. Fortunately, and through no fault of mankind, there has been no detectable build-up of CO in the world's atmosphere as a whole. There seems to be some kind of "sink" in nature which absorbs the deadly gas.

Three scientists with the Stanford Research Institute believe the explanation may lie in the metabolism of micro-organisms in the soil. They conducted experiments in which sterile soil failed to take up carbon monoxide, whereas most normal soils absorbed it at an average rate of 8.64 milligrams per hour per square meter.

Soil, they conclude, "must now be considered as a major natural sink for CO that is related into the atmosphere by natural emitters or by the burning of fossil fuels."

That's good?

Not necessarily. The sink does not act quickly enough to affect levels of carbon monoxide in such places as city streets or heavily travelled highways.

The scientists calculate, however, that the soil surface of the continental United States alone is capable of absorbing 500 million metric tons of carbon monoxide a year, with Canada capable of absorbing even more than that. But even the land mass of the U.S. can absorb but a half times the annual estimated production of CO in that country or Canada times the estimated

Not Its Type

The Brantford Expositor

Among the accomplishments of the computer is an ability to set type for newspapers and other publications. So the Science Council decided to handle the type-setting of its report on a nationwide computer communications system in this way. The English weekly sailed through with ease, but the machine balked on the French version which then had to be set by linotype. And had that failed, you see? Do it with a plume de ma tante!

Lafleur Shows Signs of Filling Beliveau's Shoes Against Bruins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal rookie Guy Lafleur shows every sign of stepping into the gap left by Canadiens centre Jean Beliveau who retired from the National Hockey League club this summer.

Lafleur, Montreal's first choice in the amateur draft, picked up three assists Saturday as the defending Stanley Cup champions dumped the star-studded Boston Bruins 7-4 in an NHL exhibition game in Montreal.

In other Saturday games, Detroit Red Wings blanked St. Louis Blues 3-0 at Port Huron, Mich., Philadelphia Flyers and Buffalo Sabres played to a 2-2 draw at St. Catharines, Ont., and Toronto Maple Leafs and Minnesota North Stars ended in a 4-4 deadlock at Bloomington, Minn.

In Sunday's action, Detroit shut out St. Louis 3-0 at Flint, Mich., Buffalo overpowered California Golden Seals 6-2 in Oshawa, Ont., Toronto nipped Minnesota 3-1 in Winnipeg, Pittsburgh Penguins edged New York Rangers 3-1 in Kitchener, Ont., and Los Angeles Kings and Vancouver Canucks played to a 4-4 draw in Medicine Hat, Alta.

Lafleur sent the 18,906 fans at Montreal's Forum into a frenzy when he won the opening face-off from Boston's Phil Esposito, who set an NHL record for points last season with 76 goals and 76 assists.

Forty-one seconds later, Lafleur, who scored more than 130 goals last season with Quebec Remparts of the Quebec Junior Hockey League, slid a pass to Frank Mahovlich, who scored the first of his two goals.

"It was a bit nervous before the start of the game," said Lafleur, but it didn't take me long to get some confidence."

Lafleur also assisted on a goal by Yvan Cournoyer, his other Montreal linemate. Peter Mahovlich, Marc Tardif and Jacques Lemaire scored the other goals for Montreal, who trailed 3-2 after 20 minutes but had 5-4 after two periods.

Frank Mahovlich found himself ejected from the game under a new NHL rule that says a third man entering a fight between two players automatically receives a game misconduct.

Mahovlich stepped in when Montreal goalie Ken Dryden and Bruin centre Derek Sanderson got into a wrestling match.

Gil Perreault, last season's rookie of the year, scored with 46 seconds remaining in the game to give Buffalo its tie with Philadelphia Saturday. Richard Martin scored Buffalo's first goal, while Perreault scored the other goal. Bob Kelly and Dan Schock replied for Philadelphia.

Paul Henderson and Norm Ullman notched goals apiece Sunday as the Leafs overcame a 2-0 deficit. Guy Trottier got the other Leaf marker while Dennis O'Brien scored for Minnesota.

Vancouver got power-play goals from Wayne Maki, Jocelyn Guevremont, Dane Wilson and Murry Hall to tie the Kings. Ed Joyal, Bob Pulford, Ross Lonsberry and Gilles Marcotte scored for Los Angeles.

Trevino Feels British Are Coming

ST. LOUIS (AP) — America has retained its grip on the Ryder Cup but none other than golf's latest superstar, Lee Trevino, believes the British are coming.

Trevino, a modern Paul Revere, sounded the warning after a United States team studded with the game's biggest names fought off Great Britain 15½-13½ in cup matches ending Saturday.

"The difference was just two or three matches," said nonplaying captain Jay Hebert, whose U.S. team won seven of 16 closing singles matches and tied three others.

Britons in whom Trevino and Hebert referred include Peter Oosterhuis, a 23-year-old giant who Saturday afternoon defeated Arnold Palmer.

The U.S. victory, the country's 13th in 18 series of matches, was already sealed when Brian Barnes toppled Miller Barber 2 and 1 and 23-year-old Harry Bannerman nudged 46-year-old Gardner Dickinson by the same score.

LEE TREVINO

Another British star, 27-year-old Tony Jacklin, had a lacklustre three days in cup competition but is certain to be a thorn for America in future matches.

"The British could have won this. And in 10 years I think they'll win it here and win it at Augusta, too," warned Trevino.

Trevino, apparently completely recovered from a five-week-old appendectomy, helped the Americans remain unbeaten on their home soil in the Ryder Cup series Saturday by trimming Jacklin 2 up in the morning and walloping Brian Huggett 7 and 6 in the afternoon.

Jacklin battled 23-year-old J.C. Snead even until he went over par the final hole and the Americans' triumph was sealed.

After Dave Stockton toppled British youngster Peter Oosterhuis 4 and 3 with a tiring Neil Coles prevented the Britishers' sweep of the final four matches.

Nicklaus, in carding an out-Harding back nine preceding the finish, posted his fifth straight victory following an opening loss in Scotch four-somes.

Snead, the nephew of Sam Snead, had a hand in four victories without defeat. Dickinson, unbeaten in cup matches until Saturday afternoon, was 4-1 and Barber 4-1-1.

Britons faring the best in the 32 matches were Oosterhuis and Gallacher, who each had a hand in three victories, halving six matches.

Planning Trip--Husband Begrudges Money

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My husband and I are planning a trip to England. I have saved the money out of my earnings for 10 years.

The trouble is, my husband has always been very tight-fisted and hates the thought of parting with any money. He thinks we should plan to eat in the cheapest places, go sightseeing only where there's no admission charge, and even suggested that we might sleep in the car some nights to save money. I know that our very ample bodies are going to be distressed enough just riding in a little English car, let alone sleeping in it!

I saved the money for this vacation by doing without many little things, and I can see right now that he is going to spoil it all by complaining every time I suggest going to a nice restaurant or any of the other things I really want to do. — Trip of a Lifetime

Dear Trip: Take a tip from Women's Lib and hold the purse strings. Have a family purse which carries all the trip money and work out of it. When there is fun to be had, that's what the money in that purse is for.

Anyone with half an eye can see that you swallow a camel and choke on a fly if you pay your air fare and then do not take advantage of where you are to do what you went for.

This is your trust. Stick to your guns. Sightseeing in Britain is not expensive. I'm betting he is the one who will do all the talking about it afterwards.

* * *

Dear Doris: Your article was pointed out to me today by two loving and helpful aunts.

Could you send me your leaflet, "Tips for Harassed Homemakers"? Also anything else to help with an 11-month-old child who cries a lot of the time. She is in perfect health. — First Baby.

Dear First: Babies cry because:

1. They are bored; need new experiences.

2. They are getting too many new experiences and are tired.

3. They are hungry.

4. They are dressed too warmly or not warmly enough.

5. They feel a need for extra attention — and will respond to being cuddled.

6. They have colic — which seems to happen to both healthy and not - so - healthy babies.

Get a copy of "The Canadian Mother and Child" from your local health department or provincial department of health. It should be on every mother's bookshelf.

Dear Doris: Your name looks to me for an over-60 career are great — particularly the idea of being a retirement counsellor.

Where could I find out more? — Over Fifty

Dear Over Fifty: Retirement counsellors are now used by large companies and trade unions as a way of helping employees to look ahead to retirement. In some cases the employer provides training programs toward interesting hobbies or recreation.

McMaster University has a correspondence course called Introduction to Aging, which consists of six months of correspondence work and assignments, and costs $80.

Wife Regrets Affair With Other Man

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'll make it quick and to the point. No frills. No white-washing. I had a cheap affair with a man I've known since high school. He said he had been in love with me all these years. I was flattered and bought it. Now I'm sick to my stomach. We met three times, during which he told me in detail of his clandestine affairs with three of my friends. (Two married women and one widow.) It made me sick to think he would be so dishonorable. It also turned me off to the point where I told him I couldn't see him again.

Now I have two problems: How do I know he won't talk to his next lady friend about me? I'd die if this got around. Number Two: My conscience is bothering me. Would I feel better if I confessed to my husband? He's such a wonderful man I'm not good enough to shine his shoes. Help me please. — N.Y. IDIOT.

* * *

DEAR ID: Question One: You have no assurance that Big Mouth will not talk about you as he has the others. In fact, the odds are that he will. But there's nothing you can about it now so forget it.

Question Two: You might feel better if you confess to your husband but don't do it. He'll feel worse. I've had dozens of letters from women who purged themselves, hoping to "clear the air," and they all regretted it. If you must tell someone, tell your clergyman. Or — consider the fact that you've had one. And that's enough. The important thing is that you've learned your lesson — and I believe you have.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Jane and I are ripping mad. We shopped for just the right birthday gift for a mutual friend who was having a party that evening. At the last moment a third friend called and asked if we three could go the party together.

On the way over, this third friend saw our attractively wrapped gift and discovered the fact that she had been too busy to buy anything. As the hostess opened the door, the third party took the gift out of my hands and presented it to the hostess as if it were from the three of us. The hostess thanked her very much and complimented her on the lovely wrapping. Jane and I are boiling. What should we do? — CANADIAN CHUTSPAH.

* * *

DEAR CAN: Inform the third party that she owes you for one-third of the gift. And hound her till you get it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The woman next door is one of those overly relaxed mothers. Nothing bothers her. Some of my friends admire her cool ho. I think she's far indifferent for her own good — or for the good of her children. Listen to this and tell me if I'm wrong.

Last week her youngest boy, Jimmie, was over here playing with our little girl. They are both seven years old. Jimmie seemed unusually quiet. When I went to the playroom to bring them cookies and milk I noticed Jimmie's face seemed awfully red. I felt his forehead and the child was burning up. I took his temperature. It was 104. Naturally I told him to go home immediately.

The next day Jimmie was in bed with a virulent flu — the kind that affects the intestines. Two days later our daughter had the same thing. Warn her temperature shot up to 105 the doctor instructed us to take her to the hospital. She was there five days. The bill was $400. Should we present it to the neighbors? — BOILING OVER.

DEAR BOILING: Simmer down and don't make a fool of yourself. When kids play together they catch each other's sicknesses. Maybe next month Jimmie will get your daughter's mumps.

Coffee Improves Flavor of Lamb

By MARY MOORE

While we were eating it around the table we were playing a guessing game: how would anyone dream up the idea of pouring a cup of sweetened coffee over a roast of lamb?: "They had forgotten to drink it and in a wild moment used it for a basting." "They liked the flavor of coffee in their gravy." and (from a perennial mischief) "They were a little bit effected by the cocktail hour."

Regardless — it was good. There was an added dividend of a mixture of spices rubbed into the surface of the lamb before roasting. I think that was the secret of its success.

I searched for Canadian lamb but none was to be found so I selected frozen imported but carefully examined the freezer wrap to be sure it was not torn or broken.

SPICY ROAST LEG OF LAMB

½ tsp. garlic salt
½ tsp. dry mustard
½ tsp. powdered ginger
1 teaspoful of coffee with cream and sugar in it

Thaw frozen leg of lamb slowly in storage part of refrigerator for two days. When roasting time approaches with sharp knife trim off most of the excess fat. Mix together the garlic salt, mustard and ginger and rub into all upper surfaces with your dampened finger tips. Roast on trivet in uncovered pan at 325 deg. Fahr. 2½ hrs. (If desired, place halved medium potatoes around roast 1½ hrs. before serving time, turning them over once.)

Ten minutes before serving time remove potatoes if added and pour a cup of creamed and sugared coffee over all and return to oven.

Remove lamb leg to pre-heated platter and keep warm. Pour pan juices into small pot and skim off as much fat as possible. To remainder stir in 3 tbsps. instant flour and with pan smooth add 1½ cups hot water and ½ tsp. salt and stir until boiling. Delicious gravy.

This will win a great many of our readers over to serving lamb oftener.

Coroner's Jury Decision Heard

PICTON (Staff-) — A coroner's jury examining into the death of 12 - year - old Mary Lou Markland, RR 8, Picton, killed recently when a truck driven by her mother overturned on Keller's Hill, has recommended no passengers should be permitted in the back of half-ton trucks lacking substantial covering.

The jury also recommended stricter tests should be required to obtain drivers' permits.

A third recommendation advocated curves on highways and county roads should be paved wider.

Top Executive To Visit City

Sir Geoffrey Eley, CBE, vice-chairman of British Oxygen Company, will be in Belleville Tuesday, September 21 to visit the Deloro Stellite Division of Canadian Oxygen Limited, which forms part of the worldwide group of BOC companies.

Sir Geoffrey is on a fact-finding mission to Canada and Japan for talks with financial experts to gauge the effects of the recent measures taken by President Nixon on the international community.

Deloro Stellite is one of a number of local companies that will be adversely affected by the 10 per cent surcharge imposed on imports to the U.S., announced by President Nixon. Exports to the U.S.A. from Deloro Stellite have already been hurt by the revaluation of the Canadian dollar as a result of it being allowed to float. It is doubtful if the announced plans by the Canadian Government will be sufficient to offset the harm done to Deloro Stellite's exports, a company spokesman said.

Holy Days Begin For Quinte Jews

Beginning at sunset Sunday night, the Belleville Jewish community joined Jews throughout the world in the celebration of the holiest and most solemn part of the Jewish year.

Rosh Hashana, Hebrew for New Year, marks the beginning of the holy day period devoted to penitence and soul searching. The two-day observance begins a three - week celebration including Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement and the Feast of Booths known as Succoth.

Yom Kippur will be observed Wednesday, September 29 and services will continue throughout the day. The Kol Nidre Service will be held at 6:45 p.m. Tuesday (Sept. 28) in the Sons of Jacob Synagogue. Jews from the neighboring communities of Trenton and Picton will attend the services in the Belleville synagogue, to observe the solemnity of the occasion. The Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur services in the synagogue will begin at 9 a.m.

No instrumental music is ever played in the synagogue. On the first two days of the New Year however, the Shofar (a ram's horn) one of the oldest musical instruments known, is sounded to call the people to repent and to follow the commandments of the Torah (first five books of the Bible).

It is customary in Jewish homes to serve a dish of apples and honey, before the Rosh Hashana meal, to symbolize the wishes for a sweet and fruitful year for everyone.

The Feast of Booths (Succoth) which is also the fall harvest observance, will be started from October 4 to October 11 concluding with the Bible-Feast known as Symchat Torah.

Peterborough Is Site Of Hasty P Reunion

"Sockless George" Ponsford, of South Africa, wartime sergeant major in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is expected to join his former comrades at this year's annual reunion of the regiment to be held Oct. 9-11 at Peterborough.

The reunion will be held at the Peterborough armories, with the election of officers to be held at the Peterborough Legion headquarters. Approximately 400 former members of the regiment who served in Sicily, Italy and Northwest Europe including about 50 from Belleville, are expected to attend.

Included on the reunion agenda is a regimental dance. But there will be no rock and roll — dance music will be that of the late 1930s and early 1940s.

Since the end of World War II, "Sockless George", the former sergeant major, has joined his wartime comrades at several reunions, the last time being about five years ago.

Stewart Does Expected

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Jackie Stewart of Scotland did the expected Sunday, winning the Grand Prix of Canada and stretching his 1971 string of Formula 1 victories to six.

The long-haired Stewart, dubbed the Flying Scot for his speed and the Mod Scot for his far-out dress, won the world driver's championship Aug 1 with his victory in the German Grand Prix.

So his win Sunday in a Ford-powered Tyrrel was just frosting on the cake — plus $14,000 in prize money and the Player's award.

Speeds in the actual race were nothing like those in Friday and Saturday qualifying trials when Stewart won the pole position in a field of 24 with a top speed of 117.56 miles an hour.

Stewart held his lead Sunday for the first 17 laps, then lost it to Ronnie Peterson of Sweden driving a British March. For another 13 laps the Swede held his lead but Stewart passed him on lap 31. Peterson finished 38.3 seconds behind the Scot.

Mark Donohue of Media, Pa., driving a McLaren in his first Formula 1 bid, was third, about a minute and a half behind the winner.

A fatality in a preliminary race — only the eighth in Mosport's 11 seasons of operation — delayed the start of the Grand Prix 100 minutes beyond the scheduled 2:30 p.m. EDT beginning.

Wayne Kelly of Ottawa, renowned as a builder and developer of racing cars as well as a driver, crashed into an ambulance called out on the track for an earlier accident.

He died in the wreckage of his light Formula Ford racer and the race was abandoned. Provincial police held up further racing until the accident was thoroughly investigated.

Agros Dump Riders

Thornton Top Interceptor

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The defence was again in the spotlight and a professional football record was established in weekend games in the Eastern Conference of the Canadian Football League.

Cornerback Dick Thornton got the seventh touchdown interception of his 12-year career as Toronto Argonauts clobbered the Rough Riders Sunday, 36-17 in Ottawa and Hamilton Tiger-Cats rallied in the last minute at home Saturday night to edge Montreal Alouettes 10-9.

Thornton's first of three interceptions before 28,003 disgruntled Ottawa fans increased his total to one more than the six credited to Herb Adderly of Green Bay Packers of the National Football League, with whom he previously shared the record.

His performance helped the Argos improve their total to 14 points, six more than Montreal and Hamilton, tied for second with eight points each. Ottawa trails with six.

Starting quarterbacks Greg Barton of the Argos and Rick Cassata of the Riders were both knocked out of the game by injuries.

Cassata suffered a concussion late in the first half and was taken to hospital for x-rays. He was expected to remain overnight for observation.

Barton broke a small bone in the little finger of his throwing hand, also in the opening half, and went to the sidelines after two sequences in the third quarter. This forced Argo Coach Leo Cahill to abandon his quarterback rotation and Joe Theismann directed the team for the remainder of the game.

Dave Buchanan's touchdown, converted by Tommy-Joe Coffey with eight seconds to play, provided the Ticats with victory and stopped the rush to the exits by many of the 28,871 fans at Hamilton.

"They're the luckiest team I ever saw," said Montreal coach Sam Etcheverry.

"Last time we were here we ran them all over the field and we only win 12-8. In Montreal we beat the hell out of them but we win by only two points."

Saturday, Ticats compiled only 185 yards of offence, to Montreal's 371.

"I always go for the ball," Thornton said in response to accolades from Cahill. "I always gamble. Of course there are times when you don't—depending on field position and the chances of taking a penalty. But whenever I have the chance, I'm after the ball."

Ottawa coach Jack Gotta's remarks were bitter, but he refused to blame Cassata for the miscues that allowed Thornton to gather in three of his passes.

"The thing that bothered me most was the turnovers—we keep getting them. We got stuff as good as anyone else but we can't connect."

Cassata gave the Riders an early lead when he ran 58 yards for a touchdown, but this was wiped out about two minutes later by Thornton's 45-yard touchdown interception.

In the second quarter, Barton's pass to Leon McQuay was good for 44 yards and a touchdown. Leading EFC scorer Gerry Organ kicked a 22-yard field goal to get Ottawa on the board, but before the half ended Barton hit Tony Moro with a short pass in the end zone.

Gary Wood replaced Cassata for the second half and threw an 18-yard touchdown pass to Hugh Oldham, after Ivan MacMillan, who converted all three Argo touchdowns, kicked a single on an attempted field goal. A single by Zenon Andrushyshyn and a field goal by MacMillan rounded out the Toronto scoring in the fourth quarter.

Quarterback Joe Zuger's touchdown pass to Dave Buchanan set up the Hamilton heroics. Coffey, who earlier managed a third-quarter field goal that tied the game, kicked the game-winning convert with eight seconds on the clock.

Esky Hopes Dim

The defence put the only touchdown on the board in Edmonton but it was all offence in Winnipeg as weekend action in the Western Football Conference turned the race for playoff spots into a two-team fight—at least for the moment.

In Edmonton, Saskatchewan Roughriders took advantage of an inept display by the Eskimo offence and touchdown by tackle Ed McQuarters to win 19-3 Saturday night. In Winnipeg Sunday British Columbia Lions matched the heroics of Winnipeg quarterback Don Jonas and flanker Jim Thorpe to battle Bombers to a 31-31 stalemate.

The results left Roughriders in second place in the WFC with a 5-4 record, six points behind first-place Calgary Stampeders and one point ahead of the Bombers. However, Bombers, who are 4-6-1, have played two more games than both Saskatchewan and B.C.

Lions have seven points on three wins and a tie in nine games.

The loss for cellar-dwelling Eskimos, their ninth in 10 starts, further dimmed their chances of capturing one of the three playoff positions.

Bombers move to Vancouver next Saturday to renew their fight with Lions for third place in the west, while Eskimos have a rematch against Roughriders in Regina.

Jonas had a 13-point afternoon for Winnipeg with a field goal, a touchdown, three converts and a single. Thorpe scored three touchdowns. Running back Larry Highbaugh scored two touchdowns for the Lions and Fullback Jim Evenson and Lach Herron scored one apiece. Ken Phillips kicked three converts and two singles and Ted Gerela counted two singles.

Besides McQuarters' touchdown, The Roughriders had a convert and four field goals by Jack Abendschan. Dave Cutler kicked a field goal for the Eskimos.

Despite the passing of Jonas, who completed 23 of 36 tosses for 420 yards, and the catching of Thorpe, who pulled in seven aerials for 227 yards and three touchdowns, Bombers needed Jonas' last-second field goal to save the game with Lions and their quarterback rookie Quarterback Don Moorhead.

"We were fortunate to get the tie . . . I was real pleased with the way the boys played, this being our third game in nine days," said Bomber head coach Jim Spavital.

Lions coach Eagle Keys said Moorhead, who was making only his second start, gave the offence "more fire" than it has displayed before. "but that defence . . .

Thorpe's three touchdowns came on pass plays of 82, 77 and 32 yards, and gave the former Toronto Argonauts 1,098 yards gained on receptions, within 26 yards of the all-time Bomber mark set in 1959 by the late Ernie Pitts.

At Edmonton, Eskimo quarterbacks Jerry Lawrence and Bruce Lemmerman disappointed 22,474 fans by throwing a total of seven interceptions. Lawrence also let a jump-pass attempt slip from his grip at Edmonton's three-yard line and McQuarters picked it off and went in for the game's only touchdown.

Prize Draft Picks Start Season With Bang

Rookie quarterbacks Jim Plunkett and Archie Manning made spectacular pro debuts to spice an incredible opening Sunday in the National Football League.

Plunkett and Manning, the No. 1 and No. 2 picks in last January's pro draft, led New England Patriots and New Orleans Saints to the two most startling upsets on an opening day roster with exciting victories.

Plunkett, the Heisman Trophy winner from Stanford, threw two touchdown passes as the Pats stunned Oakland Raiders 30-5.

Another rookie, cornerback Tom Hayes from San Diego State, played a major role as Atlanta Falcons humbled the favored San Francisco 49ers 20-17.

In other surprises San Diego Chargers whipped Kansas City Chiefs 21-14, New York Giants edged Green Bay Packers 42-40, Washington Redskins overcame St. Louis Cardinals 24-17, Chicago Bears tripped Pittsburgh Steelers 17-15, Cleveland Browns routed Houston Oilers 31-0 and Denver Broncos held Miami Dolphins to a 10-10 tie.

Elsewhere, form stood up as the Super Bowl champion Baltimore Colts whacked New York Jets 22-0, Dallas Cowboys, the only unbeaten, untied club in the pre-season schedule, downed Buffalo Bills 49-27 and Cincinnati Bengals trampled Philadelphia Eagles 37-14.

Plunkett's first scoring pass in the second half was a 33-yarder to Ron Sellers and the second a 20-yarder to Tom Beer.

But it was the rookie "Mr. Hayes" as Chuck Noyes of Brockton called him, who preserved the Falcons' triumph. He stopped up a fumble in the last three seconds on a play that erupted into a brawl as players from both benches pulled on to the field.

A 25 yard run by Mike Garrett, a former Chief, gave the Chargers their victory over Kansas City. The Chiefs led 14-0 at halftime, but the Chargers rallied to tie on two touchdown passes by John Hadl before Garrett's winning scamper.

Down 42-34, the Packers almost pulled it out against the Giants, but an interception by linebacker Jim Files with 1:14 left preserved the New Yorkers' triumph.

Dan Devine, Green Bay's new coach, suffered a broken leg on the sidelines in the last quarter when Doug Hart of the Packers was shoved out of bounds near the Green Bay bench while running back an interception. Devine was caught in the pileup.

Rovers Keep Record

If the Belleville Rovers carry out plans to enter a team in the Kingston and District Soccer League next season, they'll be able to present pretty impressive playing credentials.

The Belleville all - stars came up with their sixth consecutive exhibition win of the season Saturday by staging a comeback 7-1 win over the powerful Verdun Celtics. In their six matches to date, the Rovers have counted 27 goals against only eight for the opposition.

A penalty kick by Jim Gourley capped a strong first half for the Montreal visitors and sent the Celtics into a 3-0 lead at half time.

Tony Goncalves squared matters in the second frame barrying a Verdun defender into accidentely knocking the ball into his own goal. The winning tally for Belleville was scored by John O'Neill on a free - kick passing play with Joe Iasenza, George Del Grosso, Manuel Montes and Goncalves. Iasenza and Baptiste Zanitti were stalwarts of a strong Rovers defence.

The Dalton Gang

Defensive candidate Dalton Lambert picks up a loose puck from netminder Vern Fraser as they combine to thwart the scoring attempt of former Peterborough Junior B forward Doug Murray in the opening practice session of the Belleville Quintes. A turnout of 30 players were on hand for the opening ice session of the OHA Senior A entry, under the direction of new coach Gene Poirier. Tryouts will resume Tuesday night at the Trenton Community Gardens.

CFB Broncos Get Boost Into Top Spot

Trenton Broncos got a boost from a booter to remain in a first place tie in the National Defence Football League.

Punter Eric Adams came through with three singles to provide the only points Sunday in a 3-0 win over Rockcliffe. Trenton's victory coupled with a 18-15 win by the Mounties over CFHQ left the two teams deadlocked in first place.

Corner linebacker Jim Stearns and defensive end Tom Coulaghn were the standouts for Trenton as a murky field hampered the offensive efforts of both teams.

Rotary Raises Standard

The calibre of play might not have been quite up to Canadian Olympic standards, but four local Rotary clubs did their part to help raise those same standards Saturday.

The Rotary Clubs of Belleville, Cobourg, Picton and Trenton combined to raise $650 for the Canadian Olympic Association fund from the proceeds of their softball tournament held at the Alemite Field this weekend.

Cobourg emerged with the championship of the four-team tourney by snaffing out a late Belleville rally to take a 17-15 win in the final game. The home team counted seven runs in the final inning, but couldn't overcome an early Cobourg lead. E. Carey paced the winners with three hits.

In opening round games Belleville got a four - hit outburst from Orland Pinkston to help them to a 15-4 win over Trenton, while Cobourg stopped Picton 18-10. Trenton, Picton and Belleville each contributed $200 towards the Olympic fund with Cobourg kicking in another $50.

Milers' Touch Golden

Golden Mile peewees had the golden touch in the opening game of the Quinte Minor Baseball Association finals. The Belleville peewees rapped out 15 hits to take a 15-9 decision from their Foster's Thurlow opponents.

Gary Stapley and Paul Weeks hurled the victory allowing ten hits and 11 walks, while fanning nine. Randy Adams and Brian Masterson were the losing pitchers.

Winking top bats for the winners were Scott Bowes with a triple, double and single and Roger Suddard with a triple and two singles. Sandy Waterson smashed a triple and single with Adams adding a triple for Foster's.

As a member of several international Canadian teams, the weightlifter was more than happy to assist in the event, which raised $650 for the Canadian Olympic Association. Grant Trophy Leaves Again

It was rainy weather in more ways than one for the Quinte Tennis Club this weekend. After capturing the Doug Grant Trophy for the first time in four years last season, the Belleville club was forced to return it to Kingston when their opponents scored a nail-shortened 16-6 victory in the dual club competition.

Don Desmarier, Dr. R. F. Miranda and Doug Grant were the only members of the local club to record victories in Sunday's abbreviated play, won 6-3 by Kingston, who held a 10-3 margin after the first half of the series.

Sailors Take Good With Bad

Members of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club took the bitter with the sweet Sunday as they wound up their seven-race series for the club championship.

Good sailing winds accompanied unwelcome rains as Dr. Ken Douglas skippered "Serendipity" to the club title, based on his best five races over the season.

Poirier Cuts Quickly As Quintes Open Camp

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

New Belleville Quintes' coach Gene Poirier got his first look at his OHA Senior A charges Saturday night, and while he isn't predicting an Allan Cup in his initial season, he did appear pleased with the turnout.

"I thought some of the veterans looked pretty good out there and it appears that there's some good young talent," noted Poirier after the Quintes completed a two-hour workout at the Trenton Community Gardens.

He admitted that "it's pretty hard to tell just who are your good hockey players after just one practice". The session consisted mainly of a split into red and white teams.

"We'll work on things like defensive play, once we're able to get more organized," offered the Quinte coach. "but most of these guys know what they're doing out there. They've played hockey before."

Included in the 30-odd contenders for a spot on the team were 11 players who have seen Senior A action with Belleville. Among the veterans on hand for the workout were former playing-coach Dave Jones, Lorne O'Donnell, Mike Rose, Lionel Bothy, Greg Marchen, Rey Johnston, Wayne McConnell, Al Fraser, Ray Summers and Rick O'Donnell.

Captain Ralph Plane was absent with a reported bee in judy, while centre George Godson, along with retired Lou Exzenhal were the only members of "Peterborough contingent" from last season not present. In the stands, but not taking part in the practice was last year's standout netminder Steve Rose.

The three candidates for netminding chores included Dave Bradshaw, a member of a Canadian Forces team in Halifax last season, Vern Fraser, who performed in the South Western Intermediate B league, and Jim Park from Toronto.

A fourth backstopping candidate will be Ron Jury, a member of the 1970-71 Belleville Junior B Fairways. The local pocketopper, along with defencemen Greg Burkitt and centre John McConnell will be trying for a spot with the Quintes after being cut from the California Seals' training camp in Oshawa Friday.

Burkitt, who was one of the newcomers to catch Poirier's eye, was on hand for Saturday night's practice with the other two expected to be available for workout's this week.

Poirier made eight cuts after the initial scrimmage, many of them defencemen as 12 of the 27 candidates (goalies excluded) were regards.

Practices will continue this week with 8.30 p.m. workouts slated for Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday at the Trenton Community Gardens.

Giants 1½ Games Up

Braves Draw Blank Against Dodgers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Al Downing's three-hitter is a 13-0 romp by Los Angeles Dodgers over Atlanta Braves was a tough act to follow, but Don Sutton did it with ease.

Sutton came up with a six-hitter that beat the Braves 4-0 in the second game of the doubleheader and kept the pressure on San Francisco Giants in the National League West.

The sweep—the Dodgers' first twin-bill blanking in nearly three years—all but wiped out Atlanta's hopes of catching the California clubs.

The two triumphs, coupled with San Francisco's 4-1 victory over San Diego Padres, snapped half a game off the Giants' lead, putting them just 1½ games ahead of the Dodgers. The Braves, who trailed by a massive 13½ games just two weeks ago before closing within 5½ of the top, wound up seven games off the pace after the double drubbing.

In other National League games, New York Mets downed Pittsburgh Pirates 5-2, St. Louis Cardinals slammed Montreal Expos 11-0, Chicago Cubs beat Philadelphia Phillies 6-3 and Houston Astros defeated Cincinnati Reds 3-4 in 11 innings.

In Saturday's games, Pittsburgh shutout the Mets 4-0, Montreal beat St. Louis 4-2, Cincinnati edged Houston 3-2, Philadelphia beat the Cubs 3-2, San Diego nipped the Giants 2-1 and Atlanta dumped the Dodgers 9-8.

"If we'd had anything less than a sweep," Sutton said, "it would have really put the pressure on us. By being one-and-a-half back, we can catch the Giants in a day two. Anything more would have really been tough."

Downing has been the Dodgers' biggest surprise of the season. The victory was his 19th of the season—so, naturally, everyone asked how he felt about joining the 20-win club.

"Winning 20 means a lot, sure," he replied, "but winning the pennant means a lot more. But if I do get 20 it means another win for the club, so in that respect I guess it does mean a lot."

Willie Davis drilled two singles, a double and a home run, driving in three runs that snapped Los Angeles out of a four-game tailspin.

"We had our backs against the wall, so we had to come through," he commented. "We're not lying down at all." The Dodgers came through overwhelmingly unleashing a 18-hit attack, their biggest output of the season.

They collected 10 in the second game, including a homer by Duke Sims, but it was Willie Crawford's daring baserunning

With two out in the second inning, he stole home after doubling and moving to third on Jim Lefebvre's run-scoring grounder. Then, after tingling with two sway in the sixth, Lefebvre singled to right and Crawford zipped the Braves by steaming home all the way from First.

Los Angeles will finish its season at home while the Giants play their remaining nine games on the road—but San Francisco manager Charlie Fox said that doesn't mean a thing.

"They're all tough now," he said. "I don't think anyone has an advantage. No game is going to be easy. This one sure wasn't."

The Giants won it on Hal Lanier's high-hopping bounder that soared over charging second baseman Don Mason for a two-run single in the second inning, wiping out a 1-0 Padres lead provided by Ollie Brown's first-inning single.

Don Carrithers survived seven hits in the first four innings to post the victory, only the third in 15 games for the Giants.

The Pirates blew their chance to wrap up the East Division race at home as short-stop Jackie Hernandez capped the door to three unearned New York runs in a four-run first inning, two on Tom Seaver's single.

The Bucs, who finish their season on the road, are assured of at least a tie for the flag. But, manager Danny Murtaugh said: "As long as you have one to go, there's a double."

The second-place Cards, a distant 8½ games out, kept their flickering hopes alive by unleashing a 15-hit attack while Steve Carlton, 19-9, shackled the Expos on three hits. Ted Simmons doubled home two runs in the fourth inning and singled in another in the seventh for St. Louis.

Ferguson Jenkins, tossing a six-hitter, chalked up his 22nd victory and spaced the Cubs' tie-breaking three-run rally against the Phillies with a leadoff double in the ninth.

Hal McRae's run-scoring single in the second inning and Johnny Bench's 26th homer of the year in the third gave the Reds a 4-0 lead—but the Astros scrambled back to tie the game, then won it when Joe Morgan led off the 11th inning with his 12th homer.

Birds Break Loss String

Baltimore Orioles ended a three-game losing streak Sunday by lashing out with 18 hits for eight runs as they defeated Detroit Tigers 6-1.

If the Orioles had lost their fourth in a row, their American League East Division lead over the Tigers would have been four games. Now it is six.

In other Sunday American League action, Oakland Athletics downed Milwaukee Brewers 6-2, California Angels nipped Chicago White Sox 2-0, Boston Red Sox edged Washington Senators 4-3, New York Yankees shaded Cleveland Indians 3-2 and Minnesota Twins topped Kansas City 6-3 before the Royals gained a split by winning 5-2.

In Saturday's games, Chicago dumped California 5-1, New York blanked the Indians 9-0, Kansas City edged Minnesota 4-2, Detroit nipped Baltimore 2-1, Washington beat Boston 6-1 and Oakland defeated Milwaukee 4-2.

The benefits from the Orioles' best hitting attack of the season, which snapped the Tigers' seven-game winning streak, went to Mike Cuellar, 19-9, who pitched a no-hitter for 5 1-3 innings and finished with a four-hitter.

The two runs that decided the game came in the Baltimore fifth on run-batted-in singles by Frank Robinson and Boog Powell. Bobby Grich and Dave Johnson each had three hits and Brooks Robinson hit his 19th homer of the year.

Oakland's victory over Milwaukee was the 55th on the road for the West Division champion Athletics and broke the American League mark of 54 set by the 1939 New York Yankees in 154. The majors record is 60 by Chicago Cubs in 1960. A three-run homer by Mike Epstein and the first in the majors by rookie Adrian Garrett sparked Oakland.

The combined three-hit pitching of Andy Messersmith, winning his 19th game, and Dave LaRoche and Sandy Alomar's homer carried California over the White Sox and 20-game winner Wilbur Wood.

Boston's victory over Washington was keyed by Rico Petrocelli's home run and Billy Conigliaro and Joe Lahoud's homer, and Ron Bloomberg's run-scoring single in the ninth gave Red Sox fanatics their victory over Cleveland.

Leo Cardenas' three-run triple highlighted a four-run first inning in Minnesota's first-game victory over Kansas City.

Kansas City built a 5-0 lead, two runs coming on Gail Hopkins' double, and Fred Abernathy reacued rookie Monty Montgomery from a ninth-inning jam as the Royals took the nightcap.

Sled's TD Reception Helps Panthers Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Hurricanes moved to within one point of first place in the west division of the Ontario Junior Football Conference Sunday while Peterborough Panthers won their first game in seven starts.

Hamilton defeated Sarnia Lakers 26-1 at Hamilton and now have 11 points, one behind Burlington Braves. Peterborough downed Oakville Colts 22-12 at Oakville in an east division game.

Hamilton led 14-1 at the half and finished the score to 25-1 after three quarters against the Lakers, last in the west.

Halfback Dave Lane scored two touchdowns for the winners one on a 28-yard run and one on a 23-yard pass from quarterback Mike Wallace. Wallace also hit flanker Pat Papalia with a 46-yard pass for another six-pointer.

John Kelly returned one of five Hamilton interceptions off Sarnia quarterback Mike Carter 20 yards for a touchdown and lineman Guy Schlavo ran five yards for another after recovering a fumble by Carter. Len Wheeler converted four of the five touchdowns and added a field goal.

Lakers managed only 91 yards rushing and 37 passing while Hurricanes piled up 240 rushing and 186 passing.

Oakville got its points on two uncontested touchdowns, one by Gary Smith on a one-yard plunge after the Colts recovered a Peterborough fumble and the other on a pass to Harry McWhirter from quarterback Randy Sherneria.

Peterborough didn't get on the scoreboard until 13:28 of the second quarter when quarterback Tom Evans tossed a 36-yard touchdown pass to Jim Sled. Adolph Palatsky missed the convert but a minute later booted a 28-yard field goal.

In the fourth quarter, Evans fell Roger Clark for a 45-yard pass-and-run touchdown play which gave Peterborough the lead. Palatsky converted.

Warriors Step Ahead of Westerners

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — New Westminster Salmonbellies kept scoring more goals than the game before in the Mann Cup finals but were enough to win as Brantford Warriors won their first Canadian senior lacrosse title Saturday night in four straight games.

Brantford overcame an early 9-2 deficit to win 17-3 Saturday. The Warriors won the first game of the series 15-4, the second 10-6 and the third 12-10.

Paul Parnell, the Salmonbellies' playing coach, said: "We were beaten by a better team. If they keep them together, they will be the team to beat for the next few years. They are fast, have a lot of good, young players and a lot of savvy."

McCready was a standout in the first two games. Parnell admitted after the opening games the result might have been different if his team had been able to bat McCready early in the game when he made some spectacular saves.

Saturday's game was probably the toughest for the Warriors, who fell behind 5-2 early in the first period.

Brantford, however, rallied to gain a 6-6 tie at the end of the opening period and led 12-10 at the end of the second.

Brian Wilson led the Warriors with five goals. Ted Howe, Rick Dudley, Gaylord Powless, Ron MacNeil and John McKenna scored two each. Paul Suggsie and Gord Thompson had single.

Wayne Gosse led New Westminster with four goals. Parnell had three and Ed Goss two. Single goals were by Steve D'Eramo, Dave Tory, Tracy Wright and Jim Giles.

Petes Square Series

Peterborough scored eight goals in the last period Saturday night although it was not enough to defeat Richmond 12-8 and tie the best-of-seven series for the Minto Cup at two games each.

Pinder, a defensive star, was injured in the third game when he fell into the boards with no one near him. He suffered a charley horse and did not play Saturday night although dressed.

Windsor Sweep Spoiled

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Burnaby Kokanee's forced a fifth game in the Canadian Senior B lacrosse final by upsetting Windsor Warlocks 9-4 Sunday.

The Kokanee's, who came from behind with four third-period goals, still trail 3-1 in the best-of-seven series.

Windsor beat Burnaby 13-12 Saturday night.

Brantford coach Morley Kells said he was concerned when his team fell behind in the opening period. But the Warriors made a few defensive adjustments to stop the Salmonbellies and then got their own fast-break attack going again.

Saturday's crowd of 2,374 was the largest of the series.

In Saturday's game, Ken Ouellette had three goals and Jim Campbell, Ken Thompson and Brian Thompson two each for the Warlocks

MR. TWEEDY by Ned Riddle — OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have a borderline case of angina pectoris. Just what does that mean? — Mr. F.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My doctor tells me that I don't have to take medicines because I have a borderline case of high blood pressure. Is there anything special to do about it? — Mrs. C.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have had some trouble with my thyroid gland. It is supposed to be a borderline condition. My doctor says I don't need to take any special treatment for it. Have you heard of such a condition? — Mrs. H.

COMMENT: I believe that in most instances a "borderline" diagnosis isn't any diagnosis at all. Either you have something wrong, or you don't. And I think it's our job as doctors to come up with some definite conclusion — although it isn't, I admit, always easy to do.

For example, Mr. F., consider angina pectoris. It is true that sometimes the patient's history is vague and even ordinary electrocardiograms do not make a conclusive diagnosis. But there are other tests, first of which may be the special exercise electrocardiogram following the Master Two-Step Test. If this isn't specific enough to justify the diagnosis of trouble in the coronary arteries, a newly developed diagnostic method can be used whereby an injected substance clearly outlines the coronary arteries. And special X-rays show up any coronary artery blocks.

* * *

Mrs. C., blood pressure is either higher than normal, or isn't. If it isn't, no treatment is necessary. If it is, even though slightly higher than normal, early medication and other treatment brings about the best results. Personally, I wouldn't be happy going along from day to day wondering whether or not I had a blood pressure problem because mine was called "borderline".

And as for you, Mrs. H., I believe the same sort of reasoning applies. The questions that need to be answered are: Is my thyroid gland normal? Is it overactive? (That is, do I have hyperthyroidism?) Is it underactive? (Do I have hypothyroidism?) We have tests to determine the answers.

* * *

The point I've been trying to make is that wherever any patient is told he has "borderline" something or other, he has the right to ask for consultation. I'd surely want to know whether or not I actually had some trouble. Wouldn't you?

* * *

For Mrs. U.: Inflamed and crusty eyelids are usually due to a chronic infection or allergic condition. We call it blepharitis. Sometimes it is present in conjunction with a chronic scalp infection. The lids get so scaly at times that some eyelashes fall out. Local treatment may be necessary by an eye specialist. Sometimes the guilty party is an apparently innocent cosmetic to which one has become allergic.

* * *

It makes good sense to wear dark glasses to decrease eye irritation in the sunlight. And to try to protect the eyes from wind and dust. Yes, I agree that it is time you had an "eye examination."

* * *

For Mr. T.: The most common and effective treatment for glaucoma is the use of the daily eye drops you mention. But in some cases operation is the necessary decision.

Borderline Ill Doesn't Exist

Sydney J. Harris Says

Scholars Need A Break

There has been a healthy trend, in the last few years, on the part of high school graduates who would normally be college - bound. They are taking a year or two off (or in school, to work, to travel, or just to find themselves.

I happen to believe that 16 straight years on the educational treadmill is too much for most youngsters. They need a breather, a year to get away from the academic pressures and the intense career-orientation that is forced upon them.

What I would like to see — in place of the military draft — is a year of "national service" for all youths of 18, boys and girls alike. Such service would not only broaden and deepen their view of society, but would also supply the country with some of the "public service" help it so desperately requires.

Young people could work as apprentices in hospitals, mental institutions, orphanages, correctional schools, prisons, and social service agencies of the various governments, choosing which ever field of endeavor most appeals to their talents and temperaments. This would be of immeasurable aid in at least two important respects.

First, it would help relieve the hard-pressed budgets of most of these institutions and agencies. Secondly, and even more important, it would bring to these custodial positions a higher type of person than now is ordinarily attracted to them.

The calibre of prison guards, hospital attendants, orderlies in mental hospitals, and so forth, is lamentably low. Many are political appointees with no particular qualifications or sympathy for the work they are doing. Others are misfits or psychopaths of one sort or another, attracted by the authoritative and manipulative power of these jobs.

Paid nominal salaries, these young people could serve as a check on many common practices in these institutions, bringing a high sense of humaneness and social justice into their dehumanized atmosphere. Nothing is as shocking in our civilization as the way we mistreat young delinquents, old pensioners, the poor, sick, the mad, the retarded, and all the outcasts from society.

This compulsory internship of a year would not only help us to reform and redirect our system of public aid and rehabilitation; it would also give the young people a "bite" on reality that would satisfy their appetite for responsibility. Then, those who wanted to could go on to college with an appreciation that is nowadays conspicuously lacking.

You and the Law

Dower Rights Explained

You are walking home late one evening and are accosted by a panhandler. He won't take "no" for an answer, so you resolve the problem by two good punches to the midsection and walk away. The panhandler lays an assault charge against you.

Are you guilty?

The answer depends on whether the force that you used was reasonable or excessive. The law says you can use reasonable force to defend yourself from your property from threatened harm. If you use more than reasonable force, you are committing an offence.

That is the principle, and it is quite simple in theory. However, in actual fact, the application of the principle is not so simple. What is reasonable force in one case may be quite excessive in another. The difficulty lies in making that determination in each case.

In deciding whether any particular use of force was reasonable or excessive, consideration must be given to all of the surrounding circumstances — the location, time of day, presence or absence of other people, the relative physical characteristics of the people involved, etc.

So, for instance, an old woman walking alone at night in a deserted area would probably be justified in using her cane to beat off a would-be purse snatcher.

On the other hand, if there were witnesses present to assist her or if the woman carrying the purse was a lady wrestler instead of a relatively helpless old woman, the use of the cane — or any form of club — would possibly be excessive and the woman could possibly be charged with assault.

Generally speaking, a greater degree of physical force is reasonable in defending one's person than in defending one's property.

Again, it is a question of fact to be decided in each case.

Excessive use of force in self defence can lead to both criminal and civil liability. From the criminal point of view, a person can be convicted of assault under the Criminal Code. From the civil point of view, he can be sued for general damages by the person he assaulted.

Of course, this is not to say that the person who started the trouble is left blameless. Depending on the circumstances, he also may be guilty of a civil or criminal offence or both.

So for instance, if you beat a person senseless to death because he spoke abusively to you and pushed you around a bit, you are not the only one who committed an offence.

Presuming the other person was the aggressor, he can and will be convicted of an offence as well.

That's the law!

Gold Bars Stolen From Plane

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gold bars worth $120,000 were stolen and replaced by lead on a flight from Toronto to Okinawa via Vancouver and Tokyo, a CP Air spokesman said Saturday.

Jan Gray said the gold, which left Toronto on a domestic flight Sept. 10 and arrived in Vancouver about noon that day, was shipped by the Bank of Nova Scotia in Toronto to an Okinawa jeweller.

The switch was discovered when customs officials at Okinawa airport opened four boxes supposed to contain about 40 pounds of gold.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For September 21

Your birthday today: Progress in spiritual growth is a feature of your life in the year ahead. Your material progress benefits from unusual personal collaborations. Many incidents require spur of the moment decisions. Today's natives tend to be a ten interest in politics and the workings of society.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Yesterday's slow holds up well but today's seems to be mostly at stars and sevens. Research brings up unsuspected factors, points rationalizations and theories.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"It's a new kind of girlie calendar that only husbands can see."

Fair, Picnic, Race On Davis Agenda

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis stepped up his pre-campaign campaigning for the Oct. 21 provincial election over the weekend with visits to a fair, a picnic, an auto race and a film premier. He does not start his formal campaign until Tuesday in Belleville.

He missed one engagement at Sunday's final stop, Stratford, when fog prevented his helicopter taking off from Mosport Park, scene of the Grand Prix of Canada motor race.

While Mr. Davis drove through fog and rain to arrive at Stratford 2½ hours later, his wife Kathleen pinchhit for him in presenting awards to winners at the Stratford Horse Show.

But the premier was in time for a dinner to honor American astronaut Stanley Kramer and the Davises ended the evening by attending the Canadian premier of Kramer's Bless the Beasts and Children.

He made no formal speeches during the weekend, which began Saturday with visits to three communities near Toronto.

At Oshawa, where he attended a public picnic arranged by five area ridings at a lakefront park, he was met by three placard-carrying Roman Catholic high school students complaining about the government's decision not to extend grants for separate schools past Grade 10.

But the students—Tommy Seaver, John Cleak and Bob Steffler, all 17—were friendly and chatted with the premier for about 10 minutes on the constitutional aspects of the separate school issue.

His visits to nearby Brampton, Streetsville and Oshawa Saturday and Mosport and Stratford Sunday were similar to his meet-the-people tours which he began shortly after becoming premier last March 1.

Today, he has only one engagement—an evening nonlinating convention at Port Perry, north of Oshawa.

At his hometown of Brampton, northwest of here, Mr. Davis munched hot dogs and home-made pie as he toured the annual fall fair, leaving just as the afternoon crowd build-up was starting.

Recreation Program Proposed

TORONTO (CP) — A New Democratic Party government in Ontario would develop summer homes for rental or sale at low rates, party leader Stephen Lewis said Sunday.

He told a party meeting in York East riding the party would establish an Ontario Summer Housing Corp.

"We see the corporation as providing other services as well: rental camping, boating and fishing equipment, and even organizing public transportation for non-car owners who now find themselves virtually cut off from the Ontario countryside," he said.

The eight-point recreation program Mr. Lewis proposed also would include "immediate steps to stop every act of destruction or alienation of our recreation areas sanctioned by the Conservative government, whether it is commercial logging in provincial parks or the destruction of the Bruce Trail along the Niagara escarpment."

He said an NDP government would make an inventory of remaining recreational land in Ontario and, if necessary, "would be prepared to consider restricting non-resident use of recreational land to lease arrangements only."

Thant Says UN Near Bankruptcy

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The 26th meeting of the General Assembly opens Tuesday with three widely-divergent subjects on the minds of all delegates — China, selection of a new secretary-general and debt.

Observers say that because of the debate over the entry of Communist China the three-month session could be one of the most newsworthy in many years.

Secretary-General U Thant, making his last report after 10 years of running the affairs of the world organization, has warned that the UN is on the verge of bankruptcy because of mounting debts resulting from past peacekeeping operations.

And he warned in his report, released Sunday, that war could break out again in the Middle East, with new powers, presumably a reference to the superpowers, in danger of being dragged in.

Davis Judged Out in Front

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis played a wait-and-see game last week as his rivals in the campaign for the Oct. 21 Ontario election slammed his government on the issues of unemployment and the high cost of living.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon's campaign came unglued for a time when he erupted with a charge of news-media bias, but that and a tough statement suggesting a limited form of price controls helped tone down the shadow-man image he's trying to beat.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, came on strong on his party's traditional bread-and-butter issues, and managed to get a mention in Commons debate because a woman reporter was ejected from an impromptu news conference held in a sauna bath.

Although the campaign itself was off and running Monday with the announcement of an election date, Mr. Davis followed the precedent set by his

Vote's Impact Seen as Great

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis said Sunday night that the result of the Oct. 21 Ontario election will have greater impact on Canada than did the voting in any other recent provincial election.

"The number one priority for government is the further development of the economy," he said in an interview on the CFTR radio program Let's Discuss It.

forerunners during 26 years of unbroken Progressive Conservative rule and lay low most of the week.

As the campaign entered its second week, the political pundits had Mr. Davis well out in front of his opponents with the Liberals engaged in a desperate battle to retain their position as the official opposition.

The premier's strength was due partly to the legacy of power left by his predecessors and partly to the blizzard of legislation introduced after he succeeded retired premier John Robarts in March. The 131 bills introduced by the "New Wave" Tories had something for everybody, from old-age pensioners to teen-agers.

Opposition Says PM Seeks Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — In the view of the opposition, the Trudeau government is looking for a good excuse to call a snap election.

The government view seems to be that it is not searching for an excuse—but wouldn't reject a good one if it came along.

Calling an election is the sole responsibility of the prime minister, and Mr. Trudeau has been saying since July that he has not ruled out a contest this fall.

Whether the government believes it should face an election now before the economic situation worsens, as expected, is Mr. Trudeau's secret.

Atom Test Workers Laid Off

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission says it has laid off more than one-third of its workers at the nuclear test site at Amchitka Island in Alaska.

An AEC spokesman confirmed the cut of about 300 of the 700 workers for at least seven weeks after Senator Mike Gravel announced it earlier Monday.

The AEC, however, disagreed with speculation made by an aide of the Alaska Democrat that the cutoffs could indicate the administration is considering postponing a controversial nuclear test.

The agency said it expects to be ready for the test sometime in October if the required approval is received.

The proposed five-megaton blast to check out anti-missile warheads has been under fire in Canada and Japan.

The Canadian and Japanese governments have expressed their opposition to the test along with private groups and some conservationists.

The names of 9,000 protesters will be in the hands of President Nixon today, the Canadian Coalition to Stop the Amchitka Bomb said Monday night, in Vancouver.

Coalition co-ordinator Lois Boyce said this brought the total to 15,000 names in three days in the coalition's telegram-a-day campaign urging President Nixon to veto the test. Names are being collected throughout British Columbia.

Meanwhile, Senator Gravel released a report made by the AEC after a 1969 atomic test at Amchitka which recommended that some U.S. government agency be set up to learn the motivation for the "hysterical anti-test campaign in British Columbia and other parts of Canada."

The report said the study of Canadian opinion should be made "as a means of judging whether similar opposition is likely in the future and perhaps to find means to counteract such opposition."

The report added:

"A study might reveal how the protests were inspired or financed; by whom; whether they resulted from a generally anti-U.S. attitude; or were centred entirely on AEC."

Gravel said the report "confirms my worst suspicions about the dangerous attitude within the agency, which discounts all legitimate criticism of its programs."

An AEC spokesman said the report represented the views of one man, who had since retired. It also said the recommendations had not been acted upon.

Papers Seized By FBI

LOS ANGELES (AP) — FBI agents have seized 28 cartons covered by Daniel Ellsberg, who faces trial in connection with the leak of the secret Pentagon papers.

Acting on a search warrant obtained Monday from U.S. Magistrate Venetia Tazopulos, agents moved the cartons from a warehouse in Beverly Hills.

The government says some of the cartons may contain classified government material that Ellsberg obtained while an analyst at the Rand Corp. research organization.

Ellsberg, 40, has said he leaked to the press the Pentagon study of U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia. He is charged with unlawfully possessing government documents.

An Ellsberg lawyer, Morse Taylor, said late Monday that his client is happy to have the contents of the boxes examined in public. He said they contain personal papers.

Ellsberg said he knew when he released the Pentagon Papers to the press that it "was the surest way to get myself in prison for a long time."

He said in an interview published in the current issue of Look magazine that it is not clear whether he broke any law last spring in leaking the secret study.

Ellsberg has pleaded not guilty to charges of unauthorized possession of [illegible] documents and conveying them to his own uses. He said he is willing to go prison if convicted.

"If I were willing to risk my life . . . in support of the war when I believed it was right for us to be in the war, how could I shrink from being willing to go to prison to resist the war when I feel the war is against the interest of the country?" he said.

Liquor Ad Ban Faces Court Test

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's ban on liquor and tobacco advertising goes to court twice next week, but the controversial law won't face a direct challenge.

Summonses charging violation of the Government Liquor Act were issued Monday in Nanaimo against Monty Aldous, general manager of the B.C. Ferry Authority, and Marguerite Mulder, a ferry employee.

Both are scheduled to appear in provincial court next Monday.

The charges were laid by Vancouver salesman David Bader, who said he bought a magazine containing liquor advertising from Mrs. Mulder Sept. 1, the day the ban went into effect.

A B.C. Supreme Court hearing is scheduled for Sept. 28 in Vancouver, in a case involving a court clerk's refusal to issue a summons requiring Attorney-General Leslie Peterson to appear on a charge laid under the Human Rights Act of B.C.

Application for the hearing was made by Hugh Ladner, lawyer for Vancouver publisher Dick MacLean.

Sharp Fears Trade Wreck

"Hope you take pride your country on it?"

NEW YORK (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said today there is a danger of a breakdown in multilateral trade relationships that have been built up since the Second World War if the United States persists in its new economic policies.

He also said in a television interview the U.S. should realize that "confrontation policies," such as the U.S. has been engaged in the continuing dispute over its economic policies, could yield the wrong results.

Sharp, here for the opening of the United Nations General Assembly, appeared on the Today Show on NBC, an early-morning talk show that is seen in much of the U.S.

He said the U.S. imposed the 10-per-cent special duty on imports to force countries to revalue undervalued currency and to get rid of barriers against U.S. trade goods.

He said the 10 per cent duty hurt Canada more than any other of the U.S. trading partners, something that the average American does not realize.

But Canada had neither undervalued currency nor artificial barriers against U.S. goods and the U.S. government had not told Canada what it must do to have the duty lifted.

He said instead of confrontation politics the U.S. should seek expanded world trade which, in the end, would be to its own advantage. The U.S. had been the greatest beneficiary of free world trade since the Second World War.

No Urgent Hazard From DDT

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of U.S. scientists says the pesticide DDT poses no imminent threat of widespread human sickness or death, but is likely to bring a gradual deterioration of the environment.

The scientists recommended Monday that use of DDT be ended for all but public health emergencies. But they stopped short of calling for the immediate ban many environmentalists would like.

Tax Credit Move Fails To Get OK

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon has run into trouble over his anti-inflation policies in Congress, where the House of Representatives ways and means committee decided not to back a two-level form of investment tax credit.

Nixon had proposed a 10-per-cent credit immediately, dropping to five per cent after a year. But the committee decided it would vote for a straight percentage rate, However, the exact rate had not been agreed upon.

As the setback was disclosed on Capitol Hill, the administration announced it was acting to funnel some $200 million into sagging local economies. The funds are part of those authorized by a new public service job law, opening jobs of police, firemen and other public services to the unemployed.

Imports Force Layoffs by GM

OSHAWA (CP) — Mayor Ed McNeely has asked for federal government intervention to forestall planned layoffs at General Motors of Canada Ltd. here, which he said would deal "a substantial blow to the city."

Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Party member of Parliament for Oshawa-Whitby, said he would go to Ottawa today to ask reduction of the 15-per-cent tax on cars to no more than six per cent, as a move to stimulate sales.

GM blamed Japanese competition for its decision to reduce its work force at five Ontario plants and one in Quebec by about 1,300 workers.

Company and union spokesmen differed on the number to be affected. GM said less than 1,300 would be laid off, because of normal retirements and resignations.

But UAW officials said the company was not taking into account 160 men already laid off here and 570 other layoffs at GM's Pontiac plant in Ste. Therese, Que.

About 600 are expected to be laid off here, 325 at St. Catharines, 175 at two plants in Windsor and 95 at Scarborough.

Bill Hartling, secretary-treasurer of UAW Local 222 here, said there would be more layoffs because of what in the way GM announces things."

Many of those laid off will get 39 per cent of their pay for several months through unemployment insurance benefits and supplementary benefits from the company. Those with more than a year's service get benefits from a special fund set up under the union's working agreement with GM.

Mr. Harding said layoffs here will involve workers hired since 1964. Those with seniority dating back to 1964 are entitled to 31 weeks of supplementary benefits, he said.

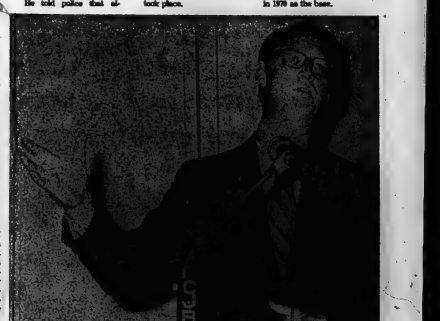
But Steve Nicolgon, chairman of the UAW's General Motors council here, said about 200 of those being laid off have less than a year's service, and they will get no supplementary benefits.

Textile Quotas Rumored

TOKYO (Reuter) — The Japanese government began urgent consultations with the textile industry today following reports that the United States plans to apply quota restrictions to textile imports.

The main point in the discussions was whether Japan should agree to the U.S. demand for the resumption of talks on an agreement to replace the Japan-U.S. textile industry's present voluntary export control.

The international trade and industry minister, Kakuei Tanaka, quoted sources close to the White House as confirming that the U.S. was prepared to apply new import restrictions Oct. 16 against all textile-exporting nations, including Japan, unless they took new action by Oct. 1.



He said the U.S. plan was reported to provide for a three-per-cent annual increase in textile imports, with actual imports in 1970 as the base.

Convict on Leave Busy with Still

NEW GLASGOW, Que. (CP) — RCMP said that when they raided a farm near here Monday and caught a man welding connections on a still, they discovered he was already supposed to be in jail for running an illicit still.

He told police that although he was serving a six-month term in Bordeaux jail, 30 miles away, he was allowed out every day on a rehabilitation program.

Police said he was picked up at the jail each day by his son, who was arrested along with the owner of the farm where the latest raid took place.

Anti-Thieu Demonstrations Continue

SAIGON (AP) — Anti-government demonstrations continued in Saigon today as two more groups called for the resignation of President Nguyen Van Thieu and cancellation of the Oct. 3 presidential election.

Nearly a dozen religious and political groups have denounced the election and Thieu's unopposed candidacy.

Nguyen Van Dat, rector of the Buu Son Ky Huong branch of the Vietnam Buddhist Church, sent an open letter to Thieu asking that he resign and that the election be cancelled.

Dat's letter also called for the withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Indochina by the end of the year.

At a meeting attended by a number of important religious and political leaders who oppose the government, Secretary-General Phan Ba Cam said his Social Democratic party does not accept either the coming presidential election or the results of the Aug. 29 lower house election.

City Hall Gets Support

Wooden members, being lifted into the upper floor of the city hall will be used as support pieces for the old building. Steel beams were also being stowed into the basement for top to bottom renovations.

City Hall Job Started

After long years of weathering, Belleville's century-old city hall is in need of a bit of reinforcement.

Accordingly, workmen during the past week have been doing preparatory work before installing steel beams in the basement to reinforce the first floor.

Also new roof trusses are being installed in the attic of the historic seat of government.

In preparation for the new steel beams to support the first floor, workmen during the past week have dug up the basement for pillar footings.

Today, with the aid of a big crane, the new steel beams were being showed through the basement windows in readiness for installation.

Installation of the steel support beams for the city hall's archway and balcony started for several years. They were recommended as the result of a survey and safety check of the structure done a few years ago by a consulting engineer.

Installation of the support beams and new roof truss work is being done by Coad Construction of Trenton.

Oil Companies Seek Approval for Stations

The city of Belleville will have still another two gasoline service stations and one more gas bar if plans of two oil companies are carried through.

Texaco Canada Limited has applications in for rezoning at the corner of Bridge Street and Herchimer Ave. and also at the intersection of Sidney and Herchimer Ave. and also at the intersection of Sidney and College Streets to allow construction of service stations.

Also DX Oil Company has applied at city hall for a building permit for the erection of a gas bar at the Canifton Road - Reid Street intersection.

A representative from Texaco told the city traffic committee yesterday that if the rezoning was granted, his firm would spend up to $138,000 for each of the two installations.

Alderman E. A. Orr, however, was concerned about the number of new gasoline stations being opened in the city and questioned if there was danger of some present operators being squeezed out of business.

To this the Texaco representative said the trend by all large oil companies was to fewer stations but with a greater volume.

With an investment of up to $130,000 for each new station it was noted that oil companies don't make money on a closed station.

Noting that the planning board would make the final decision on rezoning, the traffic committee indicated it would have no objection from a traffic point of view for the requested Herchimer Ave. - Bridge Street site rezoning.

Decision on the College - Sidney Street rezoning was referred to obtain more information regarding street widening requirements.

No zoning change is required for the proposed DX station on Canifton Road, but Mayor J. Russell Scott wondered if the company realized there was a possibility that Canifton Road at some time might become a dead end street at the CN tracks.

He said there was some question that a long - talked - of subway beneath the tracks could be built at this point and a grade separation might have to be constructed at another location.

Two Are at Large From Warkworth

WARKWORTH (Staff) — A search has been mounted by the Ontario Provincial Police for two young prisoners who escaped from the medium security penitentiary here Monday night.

At large are Steven McCaffrey, 18, of Welland and James Burchell, 21, of Halifax, N.S. McCaffrey had been serving a 29-month term for robbery with violence and Burchell two years for robbery.

In what is believed by police to be a related incident, a blue model pickup truck was stolen in the Warkworth area early today and Campbellford detachment OPP are investigating.

Engineer to Check Street's Condition

TRENTON (Staff) — Attention was focused by council last night on one of Trenton's worst roadways, Stanley Street, now being used as a detour around the sewer construction site on Front Street.

The poor condition of Stanley Street was raised by councillor Paul Tripp who said the one-time CN road fringed by railway tracks "is the most difficult street in Trenton on which to drive."

Long bypassed and overlooked, the councillor said it is urgent now that the street be upgraded. He called for the allocation of money so that fill can be dumped on the street to elevate it to the level of the train tracks, explaining that cars now have "to dodge switches and ties" as they make their way along the road.

Although he said this would make Stanley Street higher than gardens of the homes along the rutted artery, it would be preferable to the current situation.

Council resolved to have the acting commissioner of works prepare an engineering report for its next regular meeting on the possible upgrading of the street.

Meanwhile, Mayor Duncan McDonald, on the request of councillor Ted Parker, will be investigating the possibility of having the tracks removed from Stanley Street altogether, as had been done several years ago on Belleville's Pinnacle Street. Councillor Parker pointed out that grants would be available from senior governments for the elimination of level crossings. He called the whole street "one big level crossing."

PUC Won't Sue Sidor

TRENTON (Staff) — A request by Commissioner Charles Hilton that the PUC sue Bulldog Sidor Ltd. has been rejected by the commission here Monday.

Mr. Sidor leaves the PUC employ and Commissioner Hilton says "there is no reason he should sit there on his limb and get away with it."

Mayor Duncan McDonald told the meeting the PUC's solicitor Robert Tuer of the Toronto firm, Fasken and Calvin, had consistently advised them against suing Sidor.

He advised consulting Mr. Tuer again — saying, "we should follow Mr. Tuer's advice, Charlie."

"I will go for that," commented the commissioner.

Councillor Asks Seat For Mayor

TRENTON (Staff) — Convinced that the offices of the Quinte Planning Board may have been located here if the composition of the new regional board were different, Councillor Pete Axiz has a change in mind.

He told council here Monday things would have been better for the town were "the power and prestige of our mayor on the Quinte Planning Board."

Councillor Axiz said Trenton "should find a place for the mayor" on its three-man representation on the planning board.

Asked by The Intelligencer who should leave to make room for Mayor Duncan McDonald, he said he hoped one of the present members "would take the hint" and vacate his seat.

Trenton is represented on Quinte Planning Board by Dr. Robert Patrick and Councillors Paul Tripp and George Fisher.

Councillor Axiz indicated he will present council with a proposal for Mayor McDonald on the planning board at the next regular session of council in two weeks.

Plowmen Win Titles

Rosa Carlisle, RR3, Stirling, and George Sandercock, RR5, Trenton, were the senior and junior champions respectively at last week's Hastings County plowing match held in the Ridge Road farm of Stanley Molina.

Rosa won the utility class for 18 years and over as well as the senior class and took home the Eden Thompson special prize.

George Sandercock won the utility class for 12-18-year-olds and also the 16-21-year-old class. The plowmen who had not previously competed in a plowing match. He won the Canada's Junior championship trophy and also the International Harvester prize.

Trenton PUC Eases Jobs

Told by commission manager Stanley Maslow of great difficulties faced in servicing hydro poles running about the back of subdivision lots instead of along roadways, the meeting ruled that there will be no more back-lot servicing here.

Subdividers will be given the option of having properties serviced by poles on the road allowance or underground service.

In another matter commissioners decided that when easements are provided to the PUC in subdivision agreements, they must be working easements.

Mr. Maslow had said that under present circumstances an easement can be a gully or wooded area and the commission is responsible for filling or clearing these lands before they can be used.

Fast Decision Sought On Avenue Extension

Allowable population density and the amount of contribution by landowners and housing developers will be the determining factor on whether West Park Village will have a third entrance on Sidney Street through an extension of Progress Avenue.

Developers owning land south of Progress Ave. are seeking a rezoning from the present manufacturing, category to allow apartment construction, but planning board members say an extension of Progress Ave. to Sidney Street would be necessary.

And developers would be expected to pay approximately 30 per cent of the cost of the roadway extension.

The matter was before the city council traffic committee yesterday when developers pushed at the amount they would be expected to contribute toward the cost of roadway and services.

As a result, the developers will get together to discuss the population density that would be required to allow them to make the 30 per cent contribution toward the proposed roadway extension.

Planning director Bert Kenny said the feeling of the planning board was that the additional exit onto Sidney St. would be necessary if population density for the Progress Ave. area was increased".

Mayor J. Russell Scott said a decision was urgent on whether Progress Ave. was to be extended as the north approach to the proposed new Sidney Street bridge over the CNR tracks could be effected.

"Consideration on the Progress Ave. extension has to be given before the bridge is built," he said.

Alderman E. A. Orr agreed, but suggested the decision was an internal prob'em among the owners and developers.

There is still one privately owned property which must be purchased by the city before the proposed Sidney Street railway overpass can be proceeded with.

The property is owned by local developer Jack Parrott, who yesterday was asked if he would allow entry on his land with the amount of cash settlement to be determined later.

City Solicitor John Miller said this had been the procedure followed in land acquisition for Bell Blvd.

Mayor Scott said a start should be made on the bridge as soon as possible, noting the structure had been in its planning stage for several years.

"People are getting fed up with the stagnation," he said.

Separate School Issue Dominates Radio Show

Ontario Prime Minister Bill Davis came under a sustained flow of criticism on the CJBQ Open Line program this morning, as area residents quizzed the Prime Minister on his controversial decision on financial support for separate secondary schools.

The program heralded his arrival for a monster rally to be held in the Belleville Memorial Arena this evening.

He is expected to arrive in the city this evening, shortly before the rally.

In Mr. Davis' reply to listeners he said, "I will never debate the quality of either the separate school program or the quality of the school in that school system. This is not he issue."

Mr. Davis explained, "we (the provincial government) give a higher percentage financial support for each student in the separate school than in the public school system. We have drawn the line at Grade 10. The reason being, we feel that there should be one standard school for all races and religions in this province, to create a continuity in curriculum and standards.

"It was the extension of funding to grades 11, 12 and 13 that the government objected to," said Mr. Davis.

One listener stated, "It is the constitutional right for the parent to choose the type of education that she wants for her children."

In complete agreement with this thinking, Mr. Davis replied by saying, "If I want to send any of my children to a special school, while I pay public school taxes, I will also expect to pay the special price for the special school, over and above the school tax I already pay."

It was only in the last five minutes of air time that Mr. Davis was asked about anything other than separate school issues.

The Sand Banks and government incentive programs were squeezed into the last moments of the show which had lasted for 40 minutes.

Mr. Davis had to decline comment on either of the two issues saying, "I have asked for brief's on each of the issues and as of yet, I have not received them."

"A campaign to bus supporters into Belleville for tonight's rally indicates that Quinte riding residents should get to the arena early," said one spokesman for the Bill Davis political rally.

"Right now we have buses coming from Brockville, Kingston, Frontenac County, Napanee, Picton, Tweed, Madoc, Marmora, Bancroft, Campbellford and Cobourg," the spokesman said. "In addition there will be six to 10 buses from Toronto."

The arena, which is being decorated by material from an equipment truck which will follow the premier around on his daily tours, has been sectioned off to provide seating accommodation for each of the ridings expected to be represented.

Hoopla will be an integral part of the opening, "however Mr. Davis himself is concentrating on the serious aspect," said another side. "His address will be his first formal campaign speech and it is the only one scheduled."

Following his talk, Mr. Davis will circulate through the arena, attempting to talk to as many people as possible. "This is the theme of his campaign," said an aide. "He is trying to talk personally to the people and meet as many as he can."

Another Snag Hits Dufferin Developments

TRENTON (Staff) — A new problem arose yesterday in plans to service Dufferin Developments when a tender for sewer construction came in far above the estimates.

Three tenders were received for the extension of sewers along Dundas West from Dufferin Avenue to Tripp Boulevard and the low bid of $108,000 by Albert DeGasse Construction was accepted by the Public Utilities Commission.

However, at the PUC meeting yesterday, commissioners are learned the tender had been submitted for a second sewer works package — sewer servicing Tripp Blvd., Joseph St., Queen St. and on Mt. Pelion.

Original cost estimate for this project had been $64,000 but the tender received here yesterday was for $146,000.

Although the PUC accepted the Dundas tender with the job to be completed in 15 weeks, the other composite package was delayed.

Doug Mankow, the commission manager told yesterday's meeting, "the line up Dundas is no good without these other connections."

"Is this going to hold up Dufferin Developments?" asked Mayor Duncan McDonald.

"Yes," replied Mr. Mankow.

Honorary Colonel, RSM Named for Regiment

The Hastings Prince Edward Regiment warmly received its new Regimental Sergeant Major Sunday at a ceremony in Belleville.

Company Warrant Officer H. S. Adamson was presented with the brass badges of rank by retiring Sgt.-Major F. R. Hamilton while a color party in full dress looked on.

The badges were originally presented to RSM Angus B. Duffy in 1940 by the late Lt.-Col. Bruce Sutcliffe.

Sgt.-Major Adamson also received the battle flag for which he is personally responsible.

The regiment was presented with the traditional RSM's sword and cane.

Four former RSMs were also in attendance, representing service to the regiment from World War II until the tenure of Sgt.-Major Hamilton.

In a prior ceremony, Brigadier General M. E. Clarke was presented with the Scroll of Commission as Honorary Colonel of the regiment by Lt.-Col. N. A. Richardson, present Commanding Officer.

Among the guests attending the reception in the messes were Lt.-Col. Everett Fairman and Lt.-Col. Ken Willcocks, both former regiment commanders.

Just What Do We Want?

Just what, in the broad sense — beyond the individual or collective concerns of the various political parties — are the people of Ontario expecting from the October election, whatever its result?

There is so much about our way of life that is so set in its ways, so predictable, so . . . yes, boring. The drive to work, in what may or may not be a late model car, which we are now being urged to forsake for a 1972 vehicle; the cottage or the camper vacation and a host of other aspects of the good life and I'm all right Jack. Nothing here to remind us of the harsh realities of the rest of the world — hunger and broken bodies in Pakistan, the Middle East and Northern Ireland. But with the shadow of the gunman lurking in La Belle Province let us not be too complacent. Let us not be carried out unaway affluence to the future. Maybe a Canada without Quebec as part of Confederation, a splintered national entity remaining which would be easy meat for a resources-hungry United States, and without a shot being fired.

So is it more materialism we look forward to? How about a new snowmobile — as with the fall fashions they have been on display for some time? Can we anticipate, intimately, dumps for discarded and aging snowmobiles, like those for cars which currently scar the landscape?

* * *

What about employment or the lack of it which is such a real and pressing concern? Politicians, like the parties they represent, are not mindless workers, although by the manner in which they campaign, by what it is fashionable to call charisma, by the impression they make as individuals and by the efficacy of their slogans (Mr. Trudeau did it with his "Just Society" and his own special appeal) they may seek to make the electorate believe they are. Being only human then, we cannot expect the party which wins the election to effect any dramatic improvement in the employment situation. What we can expect though are continuing efforts by the government and by the jobless themselves to increase the work force. By the same token Canada should spare no effort to increase its productivity, capacity and increase its export trade; this way we can maintain a healthy economy and keep inflation in check. If, after making every effort to find work at home a man is still jobless then why not try overseas? The other Commonwealth countries often have openings, but this is a matter for the individual.

As for keeping inflation in check it is questionable just how much individual Canadians are concerned about this. Ours is a credit economy, rather than one in which we pay for things as we go along. The credit system keeps the economy moving but it also gets people into debt and some more seriously than others, and to the point where, (as of March of this year) total consumer credit outstanding for all of Canada was $10,864,000,000.

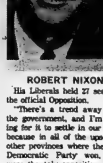
Leisure? We read somewhere that they are experimenting with a three day week in Edmonton. It sounds nice; three or four days at work and a couple off would be a pleasant balance, affording a continual balance of work, creativity and productiveness, and a balancing 48 hours or so off, instead of the existing year of work with a couple of weeks off which may be of dubious value.

* * *

But where really, is this age of leisure? For most of us it is a myth. Idleness may be all right for others, to most of us it is anathema and there is always something to be done. The politicians do not have any leisure; the medical profession has precious little; the missionary in the bush perhaps none at all; the housewife likewise we,y little. Anxiety complexes abound, perhaps more so where leisure does exist, and the television commercials confirm the fact that we are a society of pill-poppers.

It might be best to the politicians of the provincial election. We see that Liberal leader Robert Nixon is planning a wide sweep through the province. Premier Davis and NDP leader Stephen Lewis can afford no less an effort. But isn't this the antithesis of the leisure thing? We have in the past spoken of the relentless grind of a political career, typified by Premier Minister Trudeau's recent swing through Maritimes; a host of many cities, constantly in the spotlight, fatigue if it existed something that had to be shrugged off, brains and political issues forever attuned to the moment.

Beyond the materialism and the politicking is there some other vacuum waiting to be filled? What the world needs now, says the ballad, is love sweet love. Or expressed another way, by another philosopher, the problems of



Robert Nixon: Teacher and Farmer

Liberal Leader Confident of Small Working Majority

By JOE DUPUIS

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon says there is a mood of change permeating the Ontario electorate, and the Oct. 21 provincial election may just turn the tables in his party's favor.

In a wide-ranging interview, Mr. Nixon said his party is counting on winning 65 to 70 seats, enough to give it a small working majority in the 117-seat legislature.

ROBERT NIXON

"There's a trend away from the government, and the Liberal party for it to settle in our favor because in all of the upsets in other provinces where the New Democratic Party won, they were the only opposition party, or their leadership was such that they could be identified as a middle-of-the-road party.

"I don't believe that the NDP, under Stephen Lewis, is identified that way here. In my view, the province is not made up of people who are anxious for a revolutionary change. I think that, more than anything else, discounts the often-trumpeted chances of the NDP.

"I'm quite confident of across - the - board improvements," he said, adding that his party's middle-of-the-road position means "we're not locked out of any geographic area."

The Liberals have their eyes on four of six Ottawa-area seats, including Ottawa Centre, the only seat they now hold, and seven in the Ottawa Valley, traditional Progressive Conservative country.

Mr. Nixon, 43, a teacher and farmer before he entered politics and who still lives at the family homestead in St. George, near Brantford, said the main issue in the campaign will be whether it is time for a change of government.

He referred to election upsets in six provinces, the most recent in Alberta, "the most prosperous in Canada, no sales tax, the lowest unemployment, just which opted for an alternative to the incumbent."

Mr. Nixon became leader of the party three months before the 1967 election, yet was able to increase the party's seats by seven.

His father, the late H. C. Nixon, was premier of Ontario for a brief period in 1943.

Now, after four years, the party has a "blueprint for government," and a leader with experience.

"The number of candidates whom I've seen in action-myself, and therefore have a feeling that that person can be a winner, is much-greater than it was in 1967," Mr. Nixon said.

"I think we're looking at 65 to 70 seats. I really have been bucked up tremendously. Last election, it was a holding action for us. This time, I feel very optimistic."

Few questions bring a more spirited response than those on his public image, and criticism that he lacks charisma.

He said his lack of image rests only in the minds of journalists at Queen's Park, that the public generally don't "give a damn about what you think of the personality of leader A or leader B."

"Quite often, the think pieces, the assessments-in-depth that press gallery journalists crank out, are very interesting. Politicians read them word for word, but nobody else does.

"I've maintained my position as leader. I'm known in every community in the province and I think that the test is in the elections."

Mr. Nixon said it frequently is more difficult for journalists to make objective assessments than a politician, "and it doesn't damage me at all, because I have come to downgrade these

Party Credibility at Stake

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — All party leaders are travelling far in this election campaign, but the top mark for distance will go to Liberal leader Robert Nixon.

His goal is his electioneering is to get wide and consistent publicity in all areas of the province to build up the credibility of his party. He knows the party has suffered from a poor press and from the belief of some people, a belief which has been nurtured, that the New Democratic Party is the major contender in the election.

To try and overcome this he is spreading his campaign very wide. In his first four days he was in every area of the province (east, north, north - west, south-west and central) and visited 16 different communities. On one hop he flew from Sault Ste. Marie to Thunder Bay in the morning, spent an hour at a press conference, and was at Goderich some 175 miles away at three in the afternoon.

There is one target in this campaign. To get publicity.

To date at least the Liberal leader has had only one formal meeting a day, where he makes a speech and meets people. The other visits during the day have been to hold press conferences.

Some of the time he doesn't even leave the local airport.

He lands in his chartered DC3, talks to the local press and the press people on his tour, perhaps films and tapes television and radio interviews and then is back in the sky on to his next press conference.

There is no main - streeting. And meetings with local organizations, if held at all, are brief. There is dedication to the main goal of publicity.

Mr. Nixon's apparent target is to try and repeat his early schedule throughout the campaign. Every week to try and get local coverage in all areas of the province and through persistence let the voters know that his party is alive and important.

This, of course, is the "front" campaign. The Liberal's big job in this election is in the ridings. They are not going to win on their party. Their strength is in their individual members and candidates.

They have a number of good men. The biggest handicap they face is that their party might look a loser. And the emphasis of Mr. Nixon's and his party's electioneering is on trying to counteract this.

25-Mile Walkathon for Retarded Oct. 2

Walk a mile for a retarded child!

That is the appeal for the Trenton, Brighton and District Association for Mentally Retarded which has planned a walkathon for Saturday Oct. 2 to raise funds for a home-care residence and recreation hall.

The walkathon will get under way at 7:30 a.m. from the ARC workshop at 23 Guelph Street, Trenton, proceeding north to Frankford, west to Stockdale and Wooler and back to Trenton for a distance of 25 miles.

Mrs. J. E. Leveridge, publicity chairman for the walkathon, says the aim of the Association is to build a home-care residence on a large waterfront lot to provide an opportunity for all types of recreation.

Such a home-care residence would provide accommodation for mentally retarded children and allow parents to get away for a much needed holiday.

The government would pay 80 per cent of the cost of such a residence.

The Trenton, Brighton and District Association for the Mentally Retarded already operates a stepping stones nursery school, a school for children 6 to 18 and a sheltered workshop.

Walkathon sponsor forms may be obtained from Association president J. E. Leveridge or committee members Jim Graves, Keith Roulston or John Turner.

Wright Brothers Follow Tradition

The Anglican Church ministry has a strong appeal for the Wright family of Belleville.

Four generations of the family of Rev. Canon R. B. Dobbs Wright of Christ Church have either served in the ministry or are studying as ministers.

It all started with Rev. William Wright, grandfather of Canon Wright who came to Canada from Belfast in Northern Ireland.

Some years later the Irish ministerial immigrant's son, Rev. S. B. Gillard Wright, father of Canon Wright, founded The Church of the Comforter in Toronto.

Now two of Canon Wright's sons, Robert Stevenson Wright, and David Saville Wright, are studying religion, the former in his third year at Carleton University and the latter in his second year at Queen's.

Both boys are sponsored as the family to be so sponsored.

But the Anglican ministry holds interest for more than the immediate members of the Wright family.

The two Wright boys now in university are the 16th and 15th members of their family to serve as Anglican priests.

A cousin of Canon Wright, William Lockridge Wright, is Archbishop of Ontario.

Cyclist Injured

A 15 - year - old Belleville youth was taken to hospital Saturday at 1:30 p.m. after being thrown from his motorcycle.

A hospital spokesman says the injured, Brian Rexour, 15, of 61 Cascade Blvd., sustained an injury to his ankle and was treated and released.

The car involved in the incident, driven by Margaret Elizabeth Rawson, 28, of 117 Wright Ave., Belleville, was eastbound on College St., and while making a left turn, collided with the oncoming motorcycle.

Charges of incorrect left turn have been laid against the driver, while no charges have been issued against the motorcyclist.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered as ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

There Is Much Pleasure in Doing for Others

By DORIS CLARK

When my young friend, Doreen, needed a ride to dancing class, I took her. When she had to get her hair done up in a hurry and her mother was out, I did it for her. When she was hungry and had five minutes to grab a sandwich, I made it for her.

Eventually she looked at me in some puzzlement and said, "Why do you do all these things for me?" And it was with considerably more wonder that she pondered my answer, "Doreen, I consider it a pleasure!"

Why does a person enjoy doing something for another?

In a recent Royal Bank of Canada Letter I read, "Indifference to the stresses borne by others is a mark of smallness." So my answer to Doreen's wonder would be that part of growing up is to develop the warm human sympathy that makes you put yourself in another person's place and want to lighten the load.

I would even go farther. I would say that once a person gets the habit of entering into whatever it is, there's little satisfaction in merely standing by.

* * *

Dar Doris: My girl friend goes with the boy I love. I think he likes me too, but he doesn't know I love him. The boy I go out with now comes out every night for me; but when I see my girl friend out with the real boy I love it just breaks my heart. What can I do? — Troubled.

Dear Troubled: You can go some place where they aren't. It is not unusual for a girl to find her best friend's date attractive, perhaps because close friends tend to like the same kind of people.

Declaring your love to him or to her might mean losing both. Believe it or not, it is usually a worse blow to a girl to lose her girl friend than to lose a possible Big Moment.

When your heart threatens to break, deliberately concentrate on something else.

* * *

Dear Doris: (1) What is the suggested formula for the daily routine in taking care of a home? It is really my new daughter-in-law who wants to know.

(2) What is a suitable list of linens for such a home?

— Mother-In-Law

Dear Mother-In-Law: One nice thing about being a homemaker is that you are your own boss and can work out your own routines. It has to be personal, because families are different sizes, made up of different types of individuals.

Husbands have different work schedules. And the homemaker has different enthusiasms!

Generally speaking, you start in on a major job first thing each morning — something that takes gusto. Then you work the smaller jobs in around this. I'm sending you my Tips for Harrassed Homemakers — before your girl gets too harrassed. Also "My Household Trousseau," list. (Each available to readers for 20 cents and a seven-cent-stamped, self - addressed envelope.)

* * *

There's always something to do about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris, a Canadian social worker, is a step in the right direction.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

A Similar Recipe to Chili Sauce

By MARY MOORS

This month on the outside of readers' letters we find notes "please forward at once to Mary Moors".

Inside I find pleas for quick recipes for tomatoes or cucumbers or beans, etc. "rip-ening so fast I can't use them up." We are sending out recipes by return mail by the dozen and between times I am testing recipes at a great rate.

Here is a tomato relish that amateur pickle makers can tackle. It can be compared to chili sauce but is much more quickly made.

TOMATO RELISH
(Kit 8-oz. jars)

6 cups peeled and sliced or chopped ripe tomatoes
2 cups pared and finely chopped cucumbers
2 cups peeled and chopped onion
1½ cups chopped green pepper (2 med.)
¼ cup salt
1½ cups sugar
1 cup white vinegar
1 tsp. paprika
½ tsp. curry powder
1 tsp. turmeric
½ tsp. celery seed

In a large earthenware or Pyrex bowl combine the prepared tomatoes, cucumbers, onions, green pepper and salt. Mix well and let stand 4 hrs. stirring 3 or 4 times. Drain through colander for 20 min.

Meanwhile into preserving kettle measure all remaining ingredients. As soon as vegetables are drained add them to the sugar - vinegar - spice liquid in kettle and mix well. Bring to boil, reduce heat and boil gently ½ hr., stirring frequently. Have ready 6 sterile 8-oz. jars and lids. Pour relish into them, leaving ¼-inch headspace, cover with coating of clean melted paraffin, put on sterile lids and seal. Cool, wash, label and date.

A good all-purpose relish.

Beauty Shop Duties Not to Wash Backs

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Will you be the jury in a beauty shop dispute? A woman came in off the street (no appointment) and asked if someone could give her a shampoo and set. One of the operators offered to take her. After the shampoo girl had finished washing the woman's hair and was about to direct her to the setting booth, the customer turned and said,

"Would you mind washing my back? I live alone and I have arthritis." The shampoo girl was stunned. When she gathered her wits she told the customer she did not wash backs. The customer replied, "I'll give you an extra quarter." The girl said no. "I'm sorry but no." The woman then asked another customer seated nearby if she would wash her back. The lady gave her a dirty look and walked away.

Several people in the shop witnessed this incident and thought it was revolting. My question is this: Was it really such a crazy request? What can an old woman with arthritis do? Please answer. — BYSTANDER AT BRADY C'EST BON.

* * *

DEAR BY: I know of no beauty shop that washes backs. The woman should have asked a friend, relative or neighbor to accommodate her. Or she could buy one of those long-handled brushes and wash her own back.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have always hated nagging and now I have become a terrible nagger myself. It's not my husband I nag, it's our married daughter. She fixed to be such a sweet, attractive girl, and now that she has landed a husband she's the shapeless thing in town. When I run into her at the market or shopping downtown I die a million times. I'll bet she has put on 15 pounds in the last year.

Our son-in-law is handsome, slim and immaculate. I am afraid she's going to lose him. They both work for a large concern and there must be some beautiful, neat young women there. Why doesn't she see this? She's not stupid. I asked her father to speak to her and he did. Her response was, "Please leave me alone. I'm doing as well as I can." Ann, tell what to do. — OMAHA.

* * *

DEAR O.: By now you should realize that your daughter does not respond to your suggestions, so lay off. This girl's problems are hers. Either she will resolve them or pay the price. If you really want to help her, get off her back.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Over the years I have read several letters on your column about older women marrying younger men. I wish I had saved them because now I am in that spot and I need all the advice I can get.

I have been dating a man I've become very fond of. Three months ago he asked me to marry him. I said yes. We've both experienced unsuccessful marriages and are determined to make the second marriage work. Ron told me he was 41. I had no reason to doubt him. I am 45. Last night I learned he is 29.

To look at us you'd think we were a nicely matched couple. Ron could pass for anywhere from 35 to 45 and I could pass for 30. I am in extraordinary physical condition and have more pep than my niece who is 27. I can beat her and her friends at tennis and swimming, and can outlast them all on the dance floor.

Learning Ron's true age was a jolt. I told him I'd have to rethink this whole marriage bit. He says he loves me and needs me and says that nothing. What should I do? — ZINGY 45.

* * *

DEAR ZINGY: The age difference between you and Ron will propably not be a factor for at least seven years. After that — who knows. Ron might be worn out and you'll have to look for a younger guy.

Province Must Keep Control Of Resources

Ontario can't get along without American industry established here, but a Liberal government would phase out American control of natural resources, Robert Nixon, provincial Liberal leader said here today.

Mr. Nixon spent an hour in the "bear pit" with 800 senior students at Quinte Secondary School and faced a barrage of questions on everything from education to economics.

Canada, and Ontario, needs the investment of American funds, he told the students, "But there is no excuse for the corporations who bring those funds in to have the final word in control of policies, particularly regarding natural resources."

Mr. Nixon proposed a foreign investment review board, "so we know what is happening before we read about it in the papers."

The government, he said, has had to act in a crisis manner to what it sees happening before its eyes. Instead of being aware of what is going on and planning ahead for control of natural resources.

He faulted the existing government for not supporting Canadian business, unions and the educational system in the face of creeping Americanization.

"Our textbooks don't emphasize Canada," Mr. Nixon said. "Our educational system is not responsive enough to the legitimate aspect of nationalism."

He added that he was "particularly offended that we are not aware of the cultural contribution of Canadian Indians."

Several questions from the students revealed their concern about natural resources, and Mr. Nixon had an emphatic reply for them.

"Our resources must not be gambled away." he asserted. "They are not a chip in a big game of poker between the United States and Canada. We must protect our energy and water for the use of our own people."

One of the big issues of the provincial election campaign will be pollution of lakes and the task of keeping the economy going, Mr. Nixon told the students.

"If the American 10 percent surtax on imports is maintained for a matter of years, you will face substantial problems," he told his listeners.

The government could find the money to pay manufacturers the extra 10 per cent, and so allow Canadian industries to compete with American, but this would not be a solution, he said.

"It is easier for President Nixon to find higher tariff walls than we can find money to work over them," the Liberal leader said.

He suggested finding other markets for Canadian goods in Europe and Asia as a partial solution, and added that the Liberal party plans, if elected, a $30-million contingency fund to be used in the first three months of its tenure to stimulate Ontario business.

He has stopped worrying about the provincial debt, he told an earnest girl who asked what he planned to do about it.

The provincial deficit this year is $415 million, spread over 7,000,000 people in Ontario, Mr. Nixon told her.

"And I don't blame the present government for this," he added. "Deficit financing is necessary when you need money to pump into business to provide jobs. "By deficit financing we are passing on the responsibility to the next generation to pay the bills. You people will be paying off the debt."

Blowup for Blowout

Board Refuses To Sell Land

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — Prince Edward school trustees last night agreed a parcel of land belonging to them in Wellington should not be offered for sale.

The decision followed discussion of a letter from Picton lawyer William Lane stating that a client was interested in buying the property.

The land is now leased by the county board to farmer Lewis Wight with the understanding that the lease can be terminated on notice by either party.

Trustee Clare McFaul observed board members originally decided to retain the Wellington property because it might be needed in future. "It's not costing us anything at the moment," he stressed.

Mr. Wight leases the land for farming and pays the taxes on it as rental. Mr. McFaul pointed out if the property was sold and later it was discovered it could have been used "it would come off the grant structure."

Trustees decided to contact Mr. Lane to advise him of their stand regarding sale of the land in question.

Nixon Defends Separate School Grants

Ontario's liberal leader this morning defended his party's support of extension of grants to senior grades of Roman Catholic separate schools.

Responding to a question from a Quinte Secondary School student during a question and answer session in the gym Robert Nixon said he hoped the separate school grants would not be a "substantial issue in the election campaign, because there are others of more importance."

He reminded the students that separate schools were established by the constitution at the time of confederation and are now well established in many communities under the jurisdiction of "democratically elected school boards."

"Maybe you didn't go to a separate school; I didn't myself " Mr. Nixon told his questioner. "But if you understand anything about minority rights you know you don't do away with them at the flick of a hand."

The Liberal party would pay extended grants to present separate school boards, who would hand them over to the appropriate Roman Catholic high school, he said. In return, the now private Roman Catholic high schools would give over title to properties and assets to (totalling $70 million) to the separate school boards of their jurisdiction.

But the extended grants would not go to grade 13, as added, because the Liberal government, if elected, would phase out grade 13 within the first three years of its administration.

Senior secondary schools, community colleges and universities will soon operate on a year-round basis, Mr. Nixon asserted.

"They will offer an extended service based on restructuring of the school year," he said. The Liberal government will offer a service program for students during vacations, to give them an opportunity to work in the public service and "find out what it's like away from your own back yard."

The Department of University Affairs must take a bigger hand in planning the education "of Ontario's young people, Mr. Nixon said. He deplored the shortage of doctors and dentists and other professionals at a time when teachers and nuclear physicists could not obtain jobs.

Institutions, "they can't be

Schools are not democratic and they shouldn't be," he said a boy who protested censorship of underground newspapers in the schools.

Reminding his listeners that he was a school teacher for nine years, Mr. Nixon said he doesn't feel schools can be run by the rule of the majority.

"The fact that they made time available for a politician to harangue you shows that the people who run this school are not unfeeling," he said.

The session this morning was the first of a series of political assemblies for grades 11, 12 and 13 students at Quinte. Bill Davis, Conservative leader, had been invited to speak during his visit to Belleville, but was unable to arrange the time. The NDP leader has also been invited to meet the Quinte students.

Master of ceremonies for this morning's assembly was student council past president Fred Archer. The arrangement at the school was supervised by vice-principal Robert Leach.

Police Ask Information On School Populations

More lines of communication between the two county school boards and the city police department with respect to school population and class adjustments were called for at yesterday's meeting of the city traffic committee.

It seems that considerably more children this fall are crossing Dundas street in the eastern end of the city to go to school with the result that additional school guards are needed.

Police Inspector Ralph Blatchford told the committee that if school boards advised ahead of time, plans could be made to provide the necessary guards at the opening of the school term.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said at yesterday's meeting that quite a number of children are now crossing the four - lane artery in the Herchimer and Hastings Drive areas on their way to Bayview and St. Joseph's School and parents are asking for crossing protection.

He asked that the underpass opposite the old Hastings county home be reopened during school hours, suggesting that firemen supervise the opening and closing of the underpass gates.

The committee approved the motion.

Council Seeks To Guarantee Right of Access

TRENTON (Staff) — Council resolved here last night to seek the assurance of Sunrise Developments that in building a new subdivision adjacent access will be provided to Dufferin Developments.

"We do not want any more McGill Streets," remarked Councillor Ted Parker, as he called council to secure from Sunrise the right to extend Parkview Drive from its present dead end through to Dufferin Developments across the new Sunrise housing area due to be approved soon by the department of municipal affairs.

He said he did not want the situation to arise in which one subdivider could control "entrance and egress" to another subdivision. He suggested that Sunrise grant the town rights of access through its land.

"If they do not want to develop the lots (on Parkview) for 25 years, the subdivider (Dufferin) will not be cut off," he said.

Thunderbird Involved In Series of Crashes

City police are investigating a hit-and-run incident in which an unidentified male struck two vehicles, knocked over a no-parking sign and created a red light while driving along Dundas St. East at 11.20 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 18.

The driver changed his mind "or something", and sideswiped another vehicle which was attempting to pass on the right.

Following a bystander's description of the vehicle, police were informed.

The police apprehended the runaway vehicle about 15 minutes later.

Charges pending include leaving the scene of an accident. The driver had been drinking.

Damage is $500 including $40 for a new no-parking sign.

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — An education costs committee appointed by Robert Welch, minister of education, will be invited to speak during his visit to Belleville, but was unable to arrange the time. The NDP leader has also been invited to meet the Quinte students.

Master of ceremonies for this morning's assembly was student council past president Fred Archer. The arrangement at the school was supervised by vice-principal Robert Leach.

Reports from various standing committees will be heard Wednesday while the county roads needs study will also be before the session.

A number of resolutions from outside municipalities will be up for consideration, including one from Grey County asking that the province, in co - operation with the federal government, pay a grant of 25 per cent of the operation and administration costs of museums where a qualified curator is engaged for at least nine months of the year.

Thursday, county councillors will be the guests of Hastings MPP Charles T. Rollins, chairman of the St. Lawrence Park Commission, on a bus trip to Upper Canada village and surrounding parks.

10.8 Per Cent Increase

Canada's Doctors and Surgeons Top List for High Incomes

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's 17,940 taxpaying self-employed doctors and surgeons reported average net income of $32,338 for 1969, an increase of 10.8 per cent over the preceding year.

The 1971 edition of the revenue department's so - called green book of facts and figures on earning personal income tax returns for 1969 that were filed by the specialists, also show that self-employed doctors and surgeons again top the list of high incomes. Not included among them are doctors and surgeons working on a full salaried basis.

The green book was issued today and it also reports that Oakville, Ont., in the heart of the golden horseshoe around the western end of Lake Ontario, again leads communities with the highest per-taxpayer incomes.

The average Oakville taxpayer reported an income of $7,526. The second highest on the list was Sarnia, where the average income was $7,264. These compared with average incomes of $6,741 in Toronto and $6,346 in Montreal.

The 10.8-per-cent increase in the average income of self-employed doctors and surgeons, to $32,338 from $29,181 in 1968, compared with the 1968 increase of 6.1 per cent over 1967's figure of $27,347.

This jump, sources said, coincided with the introduction of prepaid medical care insurance run by the federal and provincial governments. Under it, participating doctors are protected against non-collection of fees from delinquent clients. Medical fee scales went up at the same time.

Second to the doctors and surgeons, self-employed lawyers and notaries had average incomes of $25,894 reported in their 1969 income tax returns.

This figure compared with $23,977 in 1968 and is an increase of 8 per cent.

Self-employed engineers and architects, third-ranking for the second year, had average incomes of $6,741 in Toronto and $6,346 in Montreal.

This figure compared with $23,977 in 1968 and is an increase of 8 per cent.

Self-employed engineers and architects, third-ranking for the second year, had average incomes of $22,812. This actually showed a decline for the year from $22,707 in 1968.

For better than two out of three taxpayers, the 4,598,104 employees at business enterprises, average income was $6,025 before tax deductions and taxes in 1969. This figure was up from $5,679 in 1968.

Altogether, returns from 7,363,963 taxpayers were analyzed in the revenue department report. Together, they had incomes totalling $44.91 billion, and taxable incomes of $29.79 billion. Federal taxes on that ran to $5.28 billion.

Some other highlights of the report:

—Men in the 40-44 age group reported the highest average incomes, $8,855, while women aged 55 to 59 reported the highest annual incomes among women, $4,620. But in five-year age groupings, the largest absolute number of taxpayers, men and women, was under 25 and their average income was $3,718.

—Among 99 listed cities, the one with the lowest average income—$4,906—was Portage la Prairie, Man. The average income of all taxpayers in the 99 listed cities was $6,344, and the 99 cities from Toronto to Calgary paid 78.06 per cent of all 1969 federal income taxes.

—It cost the government 73 cents to collect each $100 owing to it, the smallest cost since 1945. In 1950, by comparison, it cost $2.16 to collect $100.

—Toronto's 1,005,000 taxpayers had an average income of $6,741 each, according to their 1969 income tax returns, and paid an average of $948 in federal taxes, totalling $953.7 million or 18 per cent of total federal income tax collections for the year.

—Montreal, Canada's second-largest city, had $33,444 taxpayers with average incomes of $6,346. They paid an average of $832 in federal income taxes for a total of $377 million or just under 1¼ per cent of total federal collections for 1969.

—Vancouver had 374,670 federal income tax payers, with average incomes of $6,373 and paying an average $877 in taxes. They contributed $328.5 million to the federal treasury and 9.2 per cent of total federal income tax receipts for the year.

—The largest number of taxpayers, 1,005,000, reported their total incomes were in the bracket between $3,500 and $4,000 a year and the next largest group, 483,578, reported incomes between $3,000 and $3,500 in 1969.

—Taxpayers in the $3,500-$4,000 bracket paid a total of $143.9 million in 1969 income taxes. The 332,387 taxpayers in the $7,000-$7,500 bracket paid a combined total of $373.8 million.

—There were 190 taxpayers reporting total incomes of $200,000 or more, each, in 1969 and they paid $19.3 million, which was 23.2 per cent of their total income.

—Of the total 7.36 million taxpayers, all but 1.01 million were employees of other people or organizations. There were 773,775 business proprietors, 256,569 pensioners, 234,766 investors, and 134,482 farmers with taxable incomes.

—There were 363,875 people over age 70 who filed returns for 1969, reporting total income of $1.46 million. There were 298,640 under 18, who reported total incomes of $214,982.

Another indication of the disparity of incomes per capita between one province and another was indicated in the average federal tax paid by taxable persons. The averages were: Newfoundland $285.11, Nova Scotia $401.35, Prince Edward Island $301.13, New Brunswick $368.58, Quebec $361.52, Ontario $636.07, Manitoba $485.58, Saskatchewan $407.57, Alberta $553.71, and British Columbia $801.51.

Denny Missed Double

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Denny McLain said it was the first chance he had ever had to win two ball games in one night, but he would have been better off stopping after one.

McLain pitched four innings of relief Monday to chalk up his 20th triumph of the season as Washington Senators scored a 20-inning 8-6 victory over Cleveland Indians in the conclusion of a game suspended after 10 innings in Cleveland last Tuesday night with the teams tied 5-5.

Then Denny started Monday night's regularly scheduled game against the Indians and pitched eight innings of five-hit ball—but ended up on the short end of a 3-1 score and shortened his 21st loss.

In the only other American League games, Baltimore Orioles whipped New York Yankees 8-4 and Milwaukee Brewers blanked Minnesota Twins 3-0.

Philadelphia's 1st-night doubleheader at Montreal, the only action on the National League slate, was rained out.

"The night wasn't a waste," McLain commented after failing to gain the twin win. "All along I thought about the club as well as myself. I'd like to have done it for Senators owner Bob Short. I love this guy."

Then, turning to today's scheduled meeting of American League owners—in which Short is expected to press for permission to move the Senators to the Dallas-Fort Worth area—McLain said:

"... don't think Washington should be without a team ... I hope something good comes out of his doings in Boston."

In the 20-inning marathon, the clubs set a major league record for pitchers used in an extra-inning game with 18, nine by each team.

The Senators won it as Elliot Maddox walked, Lenny Randle was safe on a fielder's choice and Kurt Bevacqua misplayed Toby Harrah's grounder to let in a run. Dave Nelson's single and Tom McCraw's bases-loaded walk added two more runs.

First, Fourth Teams to Meet In New-look NHL Playoffs

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League's 83th season opens Oct. 8 with a pair of West Coast contests kicking off the 546-game schedule, the league announced Monday.

As in 1970-71, this coming season's schedule is spread over a 25-week period with 26 weekends, it finishes April 2, 1972, with six games. Each of the 14 clubs plays 78 games.

The Stanley Cup playoffs this season will have a different look. The first-place team in each division plays the fourth-place team of that division, while the second- and third-place finishers meet in the other quarter-final.

Previously, the first and third-place teams met and second - and fourth-place teams faced each other in the quarter-finals.

This season games will be played each night of the week, although there only is one Monday game. It will be in Montreal—the first time a regular-season game has been scheduled for a Monday in Montreal —March 13, with the defending Stanley Cup champion Canadiens facing Philadelphia Flyers.

As usual, more than half the schedule is made up of weekend games. There are 143 games scheduled for Saturdays and the same number for Sundays.

The most popular night is Wednesday when 117 games are scheduled. There are 47 Thursday games, 44 Tuesday and 31 contests slated for Friday.

All 14 teams will have played at least one game by Sunday, Oct. 10.

In addition to the four teams involved in the opening-night games, New York Rangers begin their schedule at Montreal Oct. 9. That same night, Minnesota North Stars are at Detroit Red Wings, Chicago Black Hawks visit the Blues in St. Louis and the Flyers travel to Pittsburgh to play the Penguins.

Five games are scheduled for Oct. 10, including the first afternoon contest of the season, Los Angeles at Vancouver. That night, Toronto is at Oakland, the Rangers visit the Bruins in Boston, Detroit is at Chicago and the Penguins visit the Sabres in Buffalo.

The 35th annual NHL All-Star game, in which the West Division faces the East, will be played Tuesday, Jan. 25, at the home of the North Stars in Bloomington, Minn.

Esposito On the Air

BOSTON (AP) — Phil Esposito, who set a National Hockey League record by piling up 152 points with the Boston Bruins last season, is going to have his own television show during the 1971-72 campaign.

Esposito, former sportscaster in his native Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and WAC-TV of Boston have reached agreement on a weekly half-hour program to be aired each Sunday starting Oct. 17.

Lafleur Helps Habs Win

HALIFAX (CP) — Montreal Canadiens scored a goal in each of the first and second periods to edge Boston Bruins 2-1 in a National Hockey League exhibition game Monday night.

Yvon Cournoyer scored the winner at 18:05 of the second period when he took a pass at the blueline from Frank Mahovlich and fired it into the-corner of the Boston net.

Centre Guy Lafleur, playing his first season with the Canadiens, also picked up an assist on the play.

The Bruins took an early lead in the game when Wayne Cashman scored at 7:19 of the first period while the Canadiens' Phil Roberto was serving a high-sticking penalty.

Rejean Houle tied the game for Canadiens at 10:18 of the first period following an ice-length play by Henri Richard.

Myre was in the nets for the Canadiens for the entire game, but the Bruins split netminding duties between Gerry Cheevers and Ed Johnson.

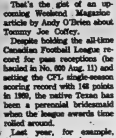
Coffey Catches Balls, Not Eyes

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor



NUMBER 75 for the Hamilton Tiger-Cats is an easy one to overlook for the experts, if not the fans.

That's the gist of an upcoming Weekend Magazine article by Andy O'Brien about Tommy Joe Coffey.

Despite holding the all-time Canadian Football League record for pass receptions (he hauled in 80, 69 long, 11) and setting the CFL single-season scoring record with 148 points in 1969, the native Texan has been a perennial bridesmaid when the league awards time rolled around.

Last year, for example, Coffey's 113 points represented 46 per cent of Hamilton's total, but he was edged out by Ron Lancaster for the Eddie Schenkley outstanding player award. He had previously been beaten by George Dixon and Peter Liske for the national honor, which bless who knew me, is worth $30,000 to the recipient in endorsements, commercials, and appearances on the rubber chicken circuit.

TOMMY JOE COFFEY

In addition, Coffey had previously been named end for the eastern conference nomination by Bill Symons and Russ Jackson, and Lavell Coleman beat him for the western honor in Tommy Joe's days with Edmonton Eskimos.

Coffey was hired north by Edmonton's Eagle Keys in 1966, when he had been the eighth college draft choice by the Baltimore Colts. (Coffey's 610 pass receptions, incidentally, are topped only by the Colts' Ray Berry (631) in all professional football history.)

The crew-cutted end found his way into the Ticats' black and gold in 1967 as the big figure in an eight-player Hamilton-Edmonton deal that saw Frank Cosentino go west.

Since then, except for his perennial lack of recognition by his peers, Coffey has plodded on to bigger and better things, including a CFL record scoring total nearing 800 points.

Perhaps many play down Coffey's scoreboard contribution because most of his points come via his kicking shoe which often looks a lot simpler than it is.

But the veteran Ticat also has 58 touchdowns to attest to his ability as an offensive threat with his mittens in 12 CFL seasons.

It's that aspect of his game he takes most seriously. Following an 82-reception season in Edmonton, Coffey recalls, someone told him he had caught 94 per cent of the passes he could have.

"The thought of the six per cent bugged me all winter."

STEVE REKE may not be as distant from Belleville Senior A hockey fans as he was a couple of weeks ago.

The redhead says he is negotiating with Quintes' boss Ken Murphy and will make his first ice appearance at the club's Thursday training camp Wednesday night.

Reze says he has had offers from three of the senior league's other seven entries.

Goaltending should be a strong point for the Belleville team. Junior graduate Ron Jury is expected to be out with the Quintes tonight, fresh from a strong training camp showing in inter-squad games with Caledonia Jets, the International League farm club of the NHL's Oakland Seals.

In the past two winters Jury established a reputation as a goalie capable of holding the fort while the Belleville Junior B's faltered in front of him.

PLANS for the third Annual Belleville Hockey School will be discussed at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle St. Wednesday evening. Proposed dates for the minor school are Oct. 18-23, and Oct. 25-30.

DEER HUNTERS in many parts of the province face abbreviated seasons this fall, mainly due to the heavy toll on deer populations taken by last winter's abnormal snowfall. The season for the part of Hastings County lying between Highways 7 and 401 will run from Monday, Nov. 1, to Saturday, Nov. 6. Meanwhile duck hunters are readying their blinds for the waterfowl season opening this Saturday. Duck, geese, and partridge will be fair game until Dec. 15.

Meet the Coach

New Belleville Quintes' coach Gene Poirier had a chance to talk things over with Senior "A" performers from last season, Greg Burkitt, Ray Johnston and Mike Reze, after the team's initial practice session Saturday night. Local fans will get their chance to determine Poirer's views on the hockey scene when the Belleville Booster Club holds a "Meet the Coach" night next Monday. The meeting will be held in the Prince Edward Suite of the Quinte Hotel and will commence at 8 p.m.

Junior B League Swells Again

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

An open door policy prevailed, despite some closed door sessions, at the Eastern Ontario Jr. B league meeting last night, with the result that the league will once again operate as a six-team alignment.

Entries from Gananoque and Picton were accepted into the Junior B loop along with existing teams from Peterborough, Oshawa, Kingston and Belleville. Cobourg, a member of the league last season has elected to ice a Junior C club this season and will compete in a central Ontario division, while Trenton, the sixth member from 1970-71 will not have a Junior team this year.

The two most recent entries will enter the Junior C playdowns at the end of the regular schedule, with the remaining four teams battling it out for the right to represent the league in further Junior B play.

The main bone of contention that had been blocking a possible entry by Gananoque and Picton had been the matter of travelling expenses for Peterborough and Oshawa, the two league members most affected by increased mileage.

After adjourning to a private meeting, the four "B" teams proposed that the new entries put up a $200 performance bond and award a total of $300 for travelling expenses to be split by Oshawa and Peterborough.

Gananoque and Picton then adjourned to a private session, then countering with an offer of a $300 bond, but no reparations for increased travelling. A successful compromise was reached with each of the new teams supplying a $100 performance bond and $150 to be split by Oshawa and Peterborough for travelling expenses.

The league will play a 30-game schedule with each club having three home and three away games against each of the five opponents. The regular season openers will take place Friday, October 15 with Kingston travelling to Oshawa and defending league champion Peterborough Lions meeting Belleville in a 8 p.m. game at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

Gananoque will open the schedule Sunday, Oct. 17, playing at home to Oshawa, while Belleville will travel to Picton for the new entry's home opener.

Lupenette Looking Good

Belleville's hockey contingent in Cornwall could be doubled this season if Danny Lupenette continues his standout play in the Quebec Junior Hockey League's exhibition schedule.

DANNY LUPENETTE

The speedy centre has been performing for the Cornwall Royals of the Tier 2 Junior A loop and is bidding to join defenceman Brian Coughlan as the second Belleville member to make the grade.

A standout last season with the Junior B fairways, the 17-year - old pivot counted 21 goals and 23 assists to rank sixth in the league scoring statistics. It was his second season of "B" action in Belleville.

In-three Cornwall exhibition games to date Lupenette has shown that he hasn't lost the scoring touch by counting two goals and as many assists.

Fairways' manager Jim Matthews has yet to be approached for Lupenette's release, but the Cornwall club is reported to be ready to acquire his services after his impressive exhibition showing.

BCI Back On Right Foot

Picton got a big kick out of the Bay of Quinte COSSA soccer openers last night. Unfortunately for the Prince Edward Collegiate teams, it wasn't the kind they were hoping for, as BCI swept both contests.

In senior action BCI took the first step towards defending their league title with a 6-0 victory.

John Thompson opened the scoring in the first minute of play counting from a scramble in front of the Picton goal. Tallies by Tony Donovan and Dave Van Vliet upped the score to 3-0 at half time.

Face Triple Threat

The Belleville Merchants will be facing triple trouble when the Gas House Hockey League begins play this season. The defending champions will be facing the challenge of winning in a 12-team league instead of the four-team setup of last year.

Returning from the 1970-71 season will be the Merchants, Mustangs, Marysville and Malmorgen Sunoco. New entries will be forthcoming from Mead Johnson, American Optical, Belleville High School Teachers, Fenboro, Intelligencer, Stewart Warner, Hospital Doctors and Wilson Concrete.

The teams will play a 24-game schedule on Monday and Tuesday nights. A definite opening date has yet to be established but is expected to be October 25th.

Werkhoven Holds Lead

The difference between sunday golf and tournament play was obvious after the first 18 holes of the Belleville Golf and Country Club's first club championships.

Harold Werkhoven's 79 was good enough to give the Centennial Secondary School teacher the lead going into next Sunday's final 18 holes. Gerry Carlisle's 80 was no threat to the course record of 66. Bill Stewart, clubhouse assistant at the new Marysville course, was third at 82.

Women's leader Betty Kelsey shot 87, a stroke ahead of Marg Cousins. Anita Johnston shot a 91 to make her the only other of the 15 women entrants to break 100.

Victors Split Spoils

To the victors, went the spoils, or at least the lion's share of them, at the South Hastings League baseball banquet.

Plaza's Concrete walked away with four of the seven trophies presented at the affair including the Carl Jones trophy as the regular season pennant winners and the "Duke" Deacon trophy for winning the league championship.

Tykes Manage 16

Belleville's tyke all - stars showed they could crack a championship defence, but still weren't able to come out with a win in a minor softball exhibition match with Madoc's all-Ontario champions.

Madoc took a 16-16 decision from Belleville in the Saturday bout. Peter Bladen laced a homer and single and Steve Lowry powered a homer for Belleville. Other local batsmen included Ted Hogan, Denny Rose and Tord Millar with two hits each.

Martin in Money

Martin carded an 82 to take top honors in the event. Other winners were Bob Jeffery with the low net score and Dave Dibbon as the most honest golfer. Lou Low's was awarded the hidden hole prize.

Cahill Looks Safe

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Argonaut board of directors approved Monday a recommendation by chairman John Bassett that a new, long-term contract be negotiated with head coach Leo Cahill.

The 43-year-old Cahill, a native of Utica, Ill., is currently working on the third year of a four-year contract.

Cahill joined the Argos in 1967 and the team finished third in the EFC that season. They have finished second every season since.

Despite recent speculation that he was under a win-or-resign ultimatum from the Argo directors, it appears Cahill will get at least two years to fully develop the high-priced talents he recruited, including quarterbacks Joe Theismann and Greg Barton, running back Leon McQuay, lineman Jim Sullivan-goo and defensive back Tim Anderson.

Eskimos Sticking With Jauch

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos' board of directors is planning no immediate changes in coaching or administrative staff, club president Joe Healy said Monday.

Eskimos' dismal record of nine losses and one win this year had led to speculation about the future of general manager Norm Kimball and head coach Ray Jauch.

Meanwhile, the club continues to fly in more reinforcements. Karl Sweetan, veteran National Football League quarterback, arrived Sunday for a five-day tryout.

The Bigger They Are . . .

The harder it is to stop them, as Dwayne Dunlop found when he tried to tackle Rusty McDonald recently. Sixteen-year-old Rusty is five-foot-nine and tips the scale near 300 pounds. The youngsters were at a practice for the Chatham-Kent secondary school team!

Richmond Back at Minto Cup Reins

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Richmond Roadrunners took a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series for the Canadian Junior lacrosse championship and the Minto Cup with a 13-11 victory over Peterborough PCOs Monday night before 3,221 fans. The teams meet again here Wednesday night.

Dave Tasker, who scored seven goals in the first game of the series, notched six Monday night, including two when his team was a man short to bring Richmond from behind in the second period.

Goaltender Ted Gernacy was outstanding. He was given credit for only 34 saves but they were made in spectacular fashion.

Thornton Not Nearly Top Pass Thief

TORONTO (CP) — Dick Thornton of Toronto Argonauts may hold the Canadian Football League record for interceptions turned into touchdowns, but he's still well back in the list of leading pass thieves.

The Eastern Football Conference statistics released Monday show Tricky Dick, with three interceptions against Ottawa Rough Riders Sunday, now has a career total of 37.

Sutherin, out from the Ottawa lineup at the start of the last season, intercepted 54 passes in his 13 seasons the CFL.

Ed Learn, who retired after 12 seasons with Toronto and Montreal Alouettes, is tied for second with Garney Henley of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, each with 51.

John Wydareny of Edmonton Eskimos has 50 interceptions in eight seasons.

Thornton turned one of his interceptions Sunday into a touchdown—the seventh such touchdown of his career. In that race, Thornton is well ahead of Henley, the closest active player, who has for.

Henley, Thornton and Wydareny are the CFL leaders in yards gained on interception returns. Henley has a career total of 825 yards, Thornton 794 and Wydareny 750.

In the 1971 EFC season list, Al Brenner of Hamilton has the lead with five interceptions returned for 153 yards. He is followed by Rod Woodward of Ottawa with four for 63 yards and Bobby Lee Thompson of Montreal, four for 30 yards.

Thornton joins team-mate Dave Rainey, Henley and John Williams of Hamilton and John Krupse and Barry Ardern of Ottawa, all with three interceptions each this season.

In the EFC scoring race, Ottawa receiver-place kicker Gerry Organ still leads with 37 points on one touchdown, 20 converts, nine field goals and four singles.

Vancouver Seeks Ali Bout

VANCOUVER (CP) — A bid to stage a heavyweight boxing match here between Muhammad Ali, former world champion, and Canadian titleholder George Chuvalo of Toronto has been made by Equicor Holdings, a Vancouver firm.

Lawyer Harold Hine, spokesman for Equicor, said Monday night the proposed date of the fight is Nov. 1 or 25.

He said he had the consent of Chuvalo's manager, Irving Ungerman to the match and a verbal agreement from Top Rank Inc., which represents Ali.

Hine said Equicor is waiting for a reply from Top Rank to a telegram sent from Vancouver Friday with details of the fight offer.

Miss Goolagong Refuses Pro Offer

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Vince Edwards, coach and guardian to Wimbledon champion Evonne Goolagong, said today his charge would not accept an offer of $56,000 to play on a professional women's tennis circuit in the United States.

The offer was made by Gladys Heldman of World Tennis Magazine, one of the forces behind the women's tour sponsored by Virginia Slims.

Had Miss Goolagong and her coach decided to accept the offer, it would have placed her at odds with both the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia and the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

BOSTON (AP) — American League owners were to meet today to discuss the baseball future of the financially-troubled Washington Senators.

Owner Bob Short was non-committal on whether he plans to seek a franchise transfer, sell the club or remain in Washington by some means. He claims he has lost $3 million since purchasing the Senators in 1968.

Short would need nine of the 12 votes, including his own, to receive permission to move.

He paid $9.5 million for the Senators, outbidding a group which included comedian Bob Hope, and is seeking to recoup his losses.

OTTAWA (CP) — Quarterback Rick Cassata of Ottawa Rough Riders was released from hospital Monday after an overnight stay. He was hit on the head in the second quarter of the Ottawa-Toronto Argonaut game Sunday. Argos won the game 38-17.

Boots Chances for Lions

Mann Might Miss Kicking Himself

DETROIT (AP) — Errol Mann could kick himself today — but he might be off target.

Mann was one of several goats for Detroit Lions Monday night in their 16-13 National Football League season opening loss to Minnesota Vikings before a national television audience and a capacity crowd of 54,418 at Tiger Stadium.

Fred Cox of the Vikings booted a nine-yard field goal with 5:18 remaining to climax a recovery from a 13-0 deficit. He also kicked field goals of 13 and 42 yards while Gary Cuozzo hit Bob Grim with a 45-yard touchdown pass for the Vikings' other score.

Mann muffed a 33-yard field try with seven seconds left in the game which would have tied the game 16-16. He also missed field goals of 53 twice and 29 yards.

It was the seventh consecutive time Detroit has lost to Central Division rival Minnesota and it marked the Lions' first home opening loss ever.

"It was my fault all the way," Mann moaned in the quiet Lions' dressing room.

Vikings' coach Bud Grant called Detroit "the toughest defensive team we'll play all year," but such comments undoubtedly won't soothe the pride of disappointed Lions' fans.

Cornerback Len Barney was the victim of Grim's touchdown and also fumbled a kickoff on his own 20 with 9½ minutes remaining to hand the winning opportunity to Minnesota.

The Lions drove 71 yards with the opening kickoff, with Mann kicking a 29-yard field goal. Five plays and a holding penalty later Landry flipped a three-yard scoring pass to Farr.

Mann kicked a 36-yard field goal at 10:13 of the second quarter.

Ottawa After Grass Grant

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials of the city-owned Lansdowne Park, home of Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern Football Conference, announced Monday they will go after a $50,000 grant from the federal health department to help buy artificial turf.

Ottawa now is conducting a lottery to help raise $600,000 for the turf.

"Our 30,000 mile guarantee proves a lot about this $36.88 BRAKE OVERHAUL"

"That 30,000 mile guarantee tells you a lot about the quality of brake linings we use. About our workmanship. And about our concern for your safety.

"Thorough, painstaking care goes into every step of the job. It'll be a no-bottom price for us. But we certainly don't cut any corners. There's too much at stake.

1 "We turn the drums and are the new brake linings for a perfect fit. Total contact between drum and lining over the entire surface is your best guarantee of sound braking performance.

2 "We check the entire braking system. We examine the wheel cylinders and the master cylinder.

"We also inspect the brake shoe return springs to make sure they have even tension on all four wheels. If not, your car will pull to one side when you brake. "Then we check your brake fluid lines. Very carefully. We don't just look for leaks. We look for potential hazards — weak spots that may give way if you must make a panic stop.

3 "We clean and re-pack your front wheel bearings. We remove inner and outer bearings and inspect them for flaws. We clean off the old, crusted grease and re-pack with top-quality grease. This could save you from replacing wheel bearings damaged by neglect.

4 "We add super heavy duty brake fluid where needed. We use the best. This is certainly no place to skimp, after we've taken so much care every step of the way.

5 "Then we road-test your car. When our Riding System technicians put their stamp of approval on your brake overhaul, you can be sure it measures up to the highest standards of material and workmanship. The Firestone standard, backed by a 30,000 mile guarantee."

Nixon Assails School Costs

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon has picked up some verbal ammunition from Premier William Davis in his attack on education costs as "the most monstrous spending spree that Ontario, in fact Canada, has ever seen."

Mr. Nixon's comment at a nomination meeting Monday night borrowed the phrase "spending spree" from Mr. Davis, who used it last week to describe Liberal and New Democratic Party campaign promises.

Mr. Nixon, who spent most of the day conferring with party officials on policy and strategy for the Oct. 21 provincial election, invaded the home riding of NDP Leader Stephen Lewis to blast government spending before 150 cheering supporters.

The meeting selected Ald. Frank Faubert to face Mr. Lewis in the Scarborough West contest.

In notes prepared for speech, Mr. Nixon said 61 cents of every tax dollar has been spent "on an educational system that is wasteful, administratively top heavy, and remote from the people who pay for it."

He said he believes most of the people of the province are concerned about the quality of education given for the $2 billion spent on education by the Progressive Conservative government in the present budget.

The Liberal leader, launched a vigorous attack on Premier Davis' charges that his opposition parties would spend even more tax dollars.

He was particularly scornful of the amount of money spent by the government on advertising campaigns.

Mr. Nixon noted the government spent $430,000 on the advertising campaign that posed the question, "is there any place you'd rather be?" than Ontario.

Leadership Theme Stressed by Davis

PORT PERRY, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis stressed the same campaign theme for the second consecutive day in stating Monday night that only he can provide the leadership needed to meet Ontario's responsibilities as Canada's leading province.

"I'm not being parochial and I'm not saying that everything hinges on Ontario," he told 600 Progressive Conservatives at a nominating meeting.

But "we can't be a nation or a province of followers," he added.

The premier's comments maintained the theme he set last week as the main issue in the Oct. 21 provincial election: that of leadership.

And his words were a direct continuation of his remarks in a radio interview Sunday night, when he said Ontario is the key to the Canadian economy and that he is the only party leader with sufficient experience to cope with the responsibilities this entails.

Mr. Davis, who officially kicks off his campaign tonight at Belleville, said there can be no doubt of the impact of the Ontario economy on the rest of Canada.

"Tell your friends that Davis is pro-Canadian, but concerned with Ontario's position in Confederation," he added.

The premier departed several times from a prepared text, obviously enjoying himself as he spoke for more than 20 minutes, at least double the time he has given to other public speeches in the last week.

Mr. Davis also reiterated an earlier thought, stating that "I cannot tolerate the pessimistic —a reference to what he has called the "gloomy" economic and social prognostications of his critics.

Liberal Joins Lewis To Discuss Medicare

HAMILTON (CP) — A Liberal candidate insisted on sharing the platform at McMaster University with Stephen Lewis Monday in a panel discussion on medical care that was part of the NDP leader's campaign tour.

Surprised NDP organizers suggested that Dr. William Averle, contestant in Hamilton East, join the overflow audience of about 200. But he mounted the platform and, finding the chairs occupied by Mr. Lewis and other panelists, said: "Well, I'll stand."

Mr. Lewis called the situation "a moment you savour along the road-the unexpected," and invited him to get a chair.

Dr. Awrie insisted he had been invited to an all-party debate and found instead that "I've crashed an NDP rally."

Answering a question on abortion, Mr. Lewis said it should be removed from the Criminal Code and no woman should have to plead her case before a panel, no matter how sympathetic.

"I've never liked the proposal that doctors visit little homilies on women when they come into ask for either the pill or an abortion," he said.

Dr. A. S. MacPherson, associate professor of medicine at McMaster, said some women in Northern Ontario are unable to get abortions there and must travel to southern Ontario.

"No legitimate medical practice should be denied on cost or access," Mr. Lewis said, but medical personnel who oppose abortion on grounds of conscience should not be forced to carry out one.

Dr. Awrie said his party has no policy on abortion. Personally he would perform an abortion on a 12-year-old girl who became pregnant on a common law arrangement, but abortion could be avoided if there was more widespread birth control.

Hope Tely Will Live Is 'Dream'

TORONTO (CP) — Publisher John Bassett of The Telegram said Monday two commitments to The Star are irrevocable and unions were dreaming if they thought they could find a new owner to keep the papers going.

He said even if the unions found a prospective new owner, they would have to approach The Star because of his commitment to sell and lease some Telegram assets to that paper when The Telegram ceases publication.

"There is no way I can release myself from the commitment."

The Star announced Monday it had purchased The Telegram subscription list for $10 million. A separate agreement outlines terms under which The Star will lease The Telegram's plant for an estimated two years until an additional press can be installed in The Star's new building, which is nearing completion.

Burnett Thall, vice-president of Toronto Star Ltd., said Monday the two agreements between The Star and The Telegram are not designed to prevent continuation of The Telegram by other owners or the launching of a new paper.

"If anyone came around and asked us to rent them the Tely presses for a competing evening paper we'd have to do it." Mr. Thall said.

However, Ron Haggart, a Telegram columnist, said Monday night the search for a new owner is hopeless in light of the $10-million price for the subscription lists.

Mr. Haggart, a key figure in a Save-the-Tely' committee, said: "Those of us who explored the possibility over the weekend of finding a buyer, didn't know of the extraordinary price paid by The Star."

Union-appointed auditors estimated Mr. Bassett's remaining Telegram assets, including land, plant and equipment, to be worth $10.8 million as depreciated assets on Dec. 31, 1970.

Paper Owners To Meet Unions

LONDON (AP) — Owners of Britain's shut-down national newspapers agreed to meet today with labor unions in an attempt to settle a dispute that has left millions of Britons without their main papers.

The giant presses of Fleet Street have been idle on management orders since Saturday night, plunging an already-sick industry into another bout of economic distress.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"How should I know what happened? I wasn't looking."

U.S. Senate Backs Pollution Control

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate approved unanimously Monday a treaty establishing the right of a coastal country to take whatever action necessary against the threat of oil pollution.

The terms of the convention, establish the right of a country to "take such measures on the high seas as may be necessary to prevent, mitigate or eliminate grave and imminent danger to their coastline" from oil spilled as the result of a maritime accident.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Impatience about illness is not always related to its severity. I have known many patients suffering from heart disease, diabetes, cancer, who seemed less concerned and troubled than those who had so-called minor illnesses.

For example, I recall one brave woman who was scheduled to undergo operation for cancer of the uterus. She faced it without any apparent anxiety. In fact, a few days before operation, she said, "I've had this mole on my neck all these years that has bothered me. Would it be all right if I had it removed first? I'd be willing to go to a plastic surgeon." In other words, the most minor complaints are often reserved for major problems — and vice versa.

Consider canker sores. This is a common minor plague. Thousands of people suffer from these little ulcers that form on the tongue or gums. A person with disabling arthritis might say that canker sores are a relatively unimportant human problem. But ask the man "who owns the." A canker sore can cause daily distress.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I've had crops of canker sores for months. They go away for a day or two, then I get a new crop. They are making my life miserable. One just started inside my cheek and it burns and is very painful. One at the end of my tongue is so sore, I can't eat. Another hurts so I can't swallow. I've tried all kinds of mouth washes and diets. Do you have any suggestions? They'll be appreciated. — Mrs. B.

COMMENT: Canker sores have been a stubborn problem for both patient and doctor for years. Lately there has been some hopeful effect in using a special antibiotic on the premise that many of these canker sores are due to a virus infection. Unfortunately, it doesn't always work effectively. Investigators are studying the potential benefits of injecting a vaccine made from the germs causing the sores.

But while all this investigation goes on, unfortunate thousands continue to suffer. Like yourself, Mrs. B., they use temporizing measures, hoping they will work. I wish I might give you some specific tip that would relieve you.

I can only make suggestions that sometimes such sores are tied in with hormonal or emotional disturbances. As regards diet, some think the following foods trigger the attacks: spices, onions, citrus fruits, cheese, chocolate and nuts.

Have you consulted your doctor? Canker sores are reason enough for a visit to run down the culprit. As I said, "minor" illness seems like a "major" to those who have to live with it day after day.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am not pregnant, yet I have developed a peculiar habit of eating matches. Only the heads of the matches — and, only after I have lighted them and they are burned. I've tried to break the habit — but eventually I begin again. I buy a box at a time. This has been going on for over a year. What shall I do? — Mrs. U.

COMMENT: You may fall into the classification of iceeaters, starch-eaters, mud-eaters, and others who suffer from the symptom complex called "pica". It is often associated with secondary-anemia. In many cases taking iron pills lessens or removes the capricious desire of unusual appetites. Have your doctor check your blood. This may solve your problem.

Movie Featuring Rats Is Box Office Surprise of the Year

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Who would have guessed that the big hit of the summer movie season would turn out to be a film about a boy and his collection of rats?

Possibly nobody except the two men responsible for bringing Willard to the screen: Charles Pratt, president of Bing Crosby Productions, and Mort Briskin, who produced the picture.

"We thought from the beginning that it was going to do well," says Briskin.

"What we made was a damned good, entertaining, exciting picture—without a message," adds Pratt.

Willard, which was filmed for $1 million, already has drawn $15 million at box offices. The two film-makers expect foreign reaction to be even better.

Bing Crosby Productions—the stigma is no longer with it, having sold out to Cox Broadcasting three years ago—heretofore specialized in television series like Ben Casey and Hogan's Heroes. Pratt and Briskin decided the company should venture into the field of feature films.

They came across a slim novel, Raimanos Notebooks by Stephen Gilbert, which had been passed up by all the major studios.

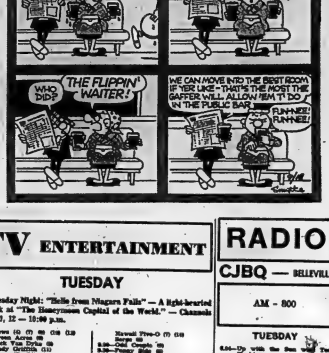
"We both loved it," Briskin says. "We immediately began negotiations to buy it.

"We did so in the face of a basic industry no-no. Traditionally, rats were never shown on the screen, for fear that women in the audience would be frightened."

The producers assigned trainer Moe DiSesso to produce a breed of rat "actors."

"Our rats had to be trained from birth," explains Pratt, "by being played with as babies. They had no fear of humans and would respond to a few commands."

The star rat was Ben, who had it easier than his human counterparts. He appeared only in closeups; 14 "backup" rats of the same size and coloring performed his stunts.



The human actors took well to the rats. Bruce Davidson, who played Willard, walked around the set with two on his shoulder. Ernest Borgnine allowed 200 to crawl over his body.

How to keep 500 rats under control on a movie set? Since they cannot climb a slick surface, they were penned in by a 3½-foot-high circle of tin sheeting. A head count was made after every scene.

RCP Productions and its releasing firm, Cinerama, faced the problem of how to sell a movie about rats. One-day test engagements were held in Wilkes-Barre and Scranton, Pa. One city featured ads with rats pictured, one without. Both did excellent business, but Wilkes-Barre, where the rats had been pictured, did better.

"At our first preview in San Diego," Briskin recalls, "we discovered that women didn't object to the rats. There were no walkouts. In fact, some women were so sympathetic to the rats that they screamed when the rats were being mistreated."

Monday Night Was A Welcome Respite

NEW YORK (AP) — After all the hectic dial flipping last week as the three major U.S. networks unveiled their new series, there was a pleasant prospect of getting back to some old Monday night friends.

Starting with Gunsmoke, there were signs of change. Marshal Dillon and friends seemed to be taking an extra week off—Matt and Festus had bit parts, Glenn Corbett played an ex-convict committed to kill a former sheriff who had wounded and arrested his prison colleague. The plot concentrated on the would-be hired killer, his elderly quarry and the latter's young wife.

It is unusual for series regulars to remove themselves so completely from the action, but it was not a bad idea. Gunsmoke, after all these seasons, remains good meat-and-potatoes television fare.

Here's Lucy followed on CBS, opening the network's two-hour block of half-hour situation comedies. Nothing has changed in the Lucille Ball comedy format although the second season, now in its new season, was hardly the coincidence's proudest 30 minutes. It was a bit of nonsense that had Tony Randall posturing around as a health food and exercise freak who persuaded Lucy to climb a mountain.

Some new people are around the office in this season's revised Doris Day Show—mostly a grumpy boss—and Doris who used to be called Mrs. Martin now is Miss Martin. But the situation still appears light and pleasantly fuzzy. The story had her and Billy de Wolfe, who still plays her leaky neighbor, surprised for a jewelry store burglary. She was not around the office much so Doris' switch to bachelor girl after three seasons as the mother of two was not particularly noticeable.

My Three Sons which now follows the Day show is a newcomer. In the Monday night lineup. It and Arnie, which winds up the evening, are designed to appeal to young and older audiences and previously appeared in time periods when those groups dominated the audiences.

The Fred MacMurray comedy series was in the middle of a three-part story involving a look-alike cousin of father Steven Douglas, a Scotsman also played by MacMurray. It is a measure show that might be easy to wander away from except that the opposition one hour is half way through a theatrical movie and, on the other half way through a football game.

Arnie seems to be moving toward broad comedy after a season of poking gentle fun at the harmless humanity. Charles Nelson Reilly roared into the picture Monday as the giddyap proprietor, a television chef given to dropping the salad and banging his head on pans. Herschel Bernardi in the title role had little to do except play straight man to Reilly.

Like My Three Sons, it is a pretty good program but seems to be in the wrong time period.

MR. TWEEDY by Ned Riddle

OFF THE RECORD By Ed Reed

Benson Says Quick Solution To Money Crisis Not Possible

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson said in the Commons today that the world trade and monetary crisis can not be brought to an end quickly.

He said nobody attending last week's meeting of the 10 leading western trading nations expected overnight solutions.

The London conference, of which he was chairman, would not agree even on "the order of priorities" by which the problems of floating currencies and the new United States import surcharge should be tackled.

Participants in the conference were five members of the European Common Market-Belgium, the Netherlands, France, West Germany and Italy-plus Britain, Canada, the United States, Japan and Sweden. Switzerland sat in as an observer.

Mr. Benson said the U.S. surcharge along with President Nixon's proposals for an investment tax credit for American business, and his plan to set up tax-free corporations for foreign sales, all amounted to protectionism.

He called on the European and Japanese delegates to the London conference to begin the process of cutting down their trade protectionist devices as a step towards getting the United States to remove the surcharge.

The 10 will meet next weekend in Washington before the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund.

Mr. Benson's report to the Commons was criticized by opposition spokesmen because, they said, it added nothing to what already has become known.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said it would be helpful if the Commons could be told what other countries think Canada should do in the situation. He said the IMF had suggested a further upward revaluation of the Canadian dollar.

David Lewis, NDP leader, said it now seems clear that the new Nixon policy is going to remain in effect for a long time, possibly a year or two, and Canada needs a long-range economic adjustment policy.

Parliament now has before it a bill, being studied in committee, to provide $30 million in grants to plants affected by the import surcharge between Aug. 15, when they were imposed, and next March 31, the end of the current fiscal year. The government has said more money can be provided if needed after that.

Madoc

Mr. and Mrs. Harley Blackburn and Mrs. Ruth Clayton Blackburn and Mrs. Hedley Shaw spent the weekend at Larder Lake and visited John Blackburn, who is a patient in the hospital.

Mrs. Grace Holmes of Belleville is visiting with relatives and friends in Madoc this week.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Here Are Forgotten Names

We haven't had a word-quiz for quite a while, and today's will deal with "forgotten names" of places, persons or things. You may consider yourself unhearably learned if you can answer more than half.

1. The wicked "five cities of the plain" are mentioned in the Bible, and form the title of a separate book by Proust; everyone knows Sodom and Gomorrah — what are the other three cities?

2. Along the same lines, the first five books of the Bible are known as the "Pentateuch"; everyone knows that the first two are Genesis and Exodus — what are the names of the next three?

3. We still call any long run a "marathon"; the first run began at the Battle of Marathon — where did it end?

4. Many literary characters have passed into fame, while the source or author of their fame has been forgotten; identify sources of the following: (a) "Gay Lotharia," (b) "Pollyanna," and (c) "Peck's Bad Boy."

5. What was the name of "The Man Without a Country"?

6. Before it was made into a musical, "Hello, Dolly" was a play called "The Match-maker"; what was its original title before that?

7. The man who founded the religion of Buddhism was called the Buddha (meaning "the enlightened"); what was his real name?

8. Why is an old stale joke called a "chestnut"?

9. What is the full name of the novel by Stevenson about Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde?

10. Why is a certain type of woman referred to as "Lady Bountiful"?

ANSWERS:

1. Admah, Zeboim and Zoar. 2. Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy. 3. At Thena. 4. (a) The leading character in Nicholas Rowe's tragedy (1701) "The Fair Penitent"; (b) The heroine of the novel of that title by Eleanor H. Porter (1913); (c) Humorous sketches in the Milwaukee Sun during the 1880s by George Wilbur Peck. 5. "Philip Nolan of U.S. Navy officer, in a story by Edward Everett Hale about Aaron Burr's treason. (Many readers err in believing this a true story.) 6. "The Merchant from Yonkers," by Thornton Wilder. 7. Siddhartha Gautama, who lived in India in 5th century B.C. 8. From an old melodrama, "The Broken Sword," by William Dillon, in which one tedious character repeats the same joke about a "chestnuttree." 9. "The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." 10. She was the affluent and aristocratic dogooder in Farquhar's play "The Beaux' Stratagem."

Opposition Views Tax Bill from Widely Different Angles

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs differed Monday on whether the government's tax bill is a pre-election box of goodies for the voters, or a gift to the rich that will keep the poor in their place.

In second-reading debate on the bill, Ambrose Peddle (PC—Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador) said the government is trying to deceive voters with cigmes of the bill that would take more than a million taxpayers off the rolls.

For those few crumbs to the old and the poor, taxpayers would be hit with a batch of new taxes, including a levy on capital gains.

Doug Rowland (NDP—Selkirk) said the bill was barren of both equity and justice, and would heal neither inflation nor unemployment.

A man making $11,000 yearly would pay more tax under the bill, while a man making $300,000 would pay less.

He asked where the equity is in that.

Along with the tax cuts and capital gains tax, the 707-page bill would reduce taxes for 4.7 million taxpayers, abolish federal gift and estate taxes, preside tax deductions for child-care expenses and provide special exemptions for the old and the disabled.

Today, the Commons breaks off debate on the tax bill to return to the government bill that would set up an income stabilization fund for Prairie grain farmers.

Included in that bill is a one-shot $100-million payment to farmers this year that would replace payments due under the Temporary Wheat Reserves Act.

Educationists Flay Federal Aid Agency

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian educationists meeting in Montreal this week got the week's activities under way by levelling a blast of criticism at a federal education-aid agency even before the opening of their three-day convention.

The directors of the Canadian Education Association passed a unanimous resolution Monday night criticizing the Canadian International Development Association, which grants $40 million annually in educational aid to developing countries, for not establishing some form of liaison with educationists.

The resolution, addressed to External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, who is in charge of the agency, called on the government to set up two consulting committees—one French-speaking, one English-speaking —to aid the agency in setting up its educational programs.

The Canadian Education Association (CEA), financed by the 10 provincial departments of education, is Canada's senior professional organization in education and serves as an interprovincial agency for public education.

Over 11.00 delegates from all over Canada are attending the convention. Among them are ministers and deputy ministers of education.

5,000 Canadians Join Germans in War Games

DONAUESCHINGEN, West Germany (CP) — Defence Minister Donald Macdonald kept eager watch from vantage points in the air and on the ground as about 5,000 Canadians joined with West German forces in a big battle exercise ranging across scenic stretches of the Black Forest Monday.

The exercise, code-named Good Omen, continues until Friday and already has confronted participants with a painful paradox—the fact that hilly, tree-covered countryside of staggering beauty also is a tough challenge for hard-slogging soldiers.

The exercise will range as far east as Ulm.

Already the steep-climbing roads which criss-cross the Black Forest have taken the life of a Canadian soldier.

Killed in a road accident during premilinaries to the current exercise last Saturday was Cpl. Joseph Jacques Armand Madore of the 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment.

Defence Minister Macdonald, swooping in to the simulated battle area by helicopter, ate a stew supper with Maj.-Gen. W. C. Leonard, commander of Canadian Forces Europe, in a makeshift officers' mess.

Macdonald, accompanied by Leonard and other top officers, inspected a self-contained service battalion run on largely Canadian-conceived lines by Col. C. S. (Chuch) Read of Hamilton, Ont.

Canadian trucks and other battle vehicles lay at strategic points in the thick woods as Macdonald, clad in a parka, paced past their camouflage-shrouded shapes during his battlefield tour.

Today he's scheduled to take to the air again—this time in a CF-104 Starfighter from the Canadian base at Baden, North of here.

The defence minister was all confident smiles Monday despite the reputation garnered by the Starfighter as a result of the frequency with which Canadian as well as West-German planes of this type have crashed in recent years.

Canadian troops who are among 45,000 soldiers contending on both sides in the present exercise, have been trying to strike east towards a strategic crossing poin along the River Danube, which has its starting point in the country around Donauseschingen.

The war games, complete with hundreds of "umpires," have been 18 months in the planning. But they make up only part of the total of seven weeks the Canadians now spending in the field.

Canada Renews Plea for Lenient Trade Treatment

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada renewed its arguments for more lenient treatment by the United States under its new trade restrictions at a meeting Monday between U.S. Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans and Canadian Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin.

The private Ottawa talks touched the highlights of mutual grievances and aims in trade, including such issues as the Aug. 15 U.S. surcharge on dutiable imports, the proposed Canadian program of subsidies for export industries and the future of the U.S.-Canada automobile trade pact.

Mr. Pepin was understood to have pressed the Canadian argument that damage to Canadian industry and exports caused by the U.S. import surtax would rebound against the U.S. economy, because Canada is the best customer of the United States.

For his part, Mr. Stans was understood to have pressed the U.S. argument that the 1965 treaty governing trade in automobiles and parts is working unfairly in favor of Canada.

Safeguard clauses protecting Canadian manufacturers should be dismantled.

Canada's response is that Canadian factories, as subsidiaries, must retain some guarantee that they will maintain a fair share of total North American production.

Missing Plane Sought in Pennsylvania

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (CP) — Searchers were restricted to ground operations Monday in their search in rugged north-eastern Pennsylvania for a plane containing four Canadians.

Canadian harness-racing driver Roger White, 46, of Quebec City, and Jacques Cote, also of Quebec City and the newly-appointed director of Montreal's Blue Bonnets Raceway, were believed to have been on their way to a yearling sale in Philadelphia.

Two Blocks Gutted

Women Saved From Flames

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

CAMPBELLFORD — Two elderly women were rescued by firemen and police when fire destroyed the upper floors of two three-storey business blocks on Front Street here early today.

Six residents of the Linton and McCowan blocks had escaped before flames engulfed the flight of stairs leading down to the street but Miss Eileen Linton, sister of Linton Block owner, Franklin Linton, and her neighbor, Mrs. Flora Smith were trapped on the second floor.

Mrs. Smith, a widow in her 70s broke a window and clamored out on a window ledge in the minutes before firemen arrived to fight the $100,000 blaze. As rescuers came to her aid, she slipped or climbed off her already precarious perch and swung from an overhead sign above McCaren's Drug Store as her feet barely touched the awning above the storefront.

Removed from the arm of the sign by fire department ladders, she required no medical attention.

Miss Linton was still in the block at the time, overcome by smoke but she managed to draw attention to herself by burning an antique flower vase through a window pane out onto the street below.

We thought it was an explosion," remarked one fireman

Members of Campbellford's 15-man fire department fought their way into the building to save her, bringing her out in a nightgown. She is being treated at the hospital here today for severe smoke inhalation.

The blaze erupted shortly before 5 a.m. in one of five apartments above McCaren's Drug Store from what Fire Chief Charles Corke suspects was a fault in the electrical wiring system.

Four businesses on the street levels of the Linton and McCowan Blocks — the drug store, George Aichart Insurance, Gibson's Stationery and the Royal Bank of Canada — all suffered severe smoke and water damage as firemen fought to contain the inferno at the town's main intersection of Front and Bridge Streets.

Campbellford had all three of its trucks and the entire firefighting complement at the scene this morning and Deseronto mutual aid agreements one pumper and four men also arrive from the village of Tweed.

Fire Chief Corke says he believes the upper floors above the drug store will have to come down, the damage is so heavy. He said firemen will stay at the scene through the afternoon and evening to ensure that it does not flare up or start up again.

Firefighters fought for two hours before the flames were brought under control about 7:30 a.m. and cleanup operations are still going on.

Chief Corke, the town's head fireman for 14 years, stated today this is one of the two worst his department has had to tackle since he became chief. Other major fires were tire banner headlines today. "Is Mao Dead or Dying?" The Star asked. The China Mail's headline was: "Mao Dead Fear."

Tuesday, French radio reports speculated that Mao may have died or become gravely ill following a heart attack.

Most of the speculation in Hong Kong concentrated on the period Sept. 12-18 as possibly decisive in the event of any developments in China.

During this time, all members of the Chinese politburo were out of sight, except the acting president, Tung Pi-wu.

Between Sept. 13-16, diplomatic sources in Hong Kong reported a hold-down on all airplane flights across China, a rare event which has previously occurred at times of political change.

No chief of the People's Liberation Army appeared in public, as reported by the official news media, between Sept. 10-20. Analysts said air force commander Wu Fa-hsien has been out of sight since Sept. 7.

Diplomatic observers said these factors could all signify political change. They said that reports of the cancellation of the national day parade indicated this could only have been caused by an event of major importance.

Rumor Has Trudeau In UN Job

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The rumor mill of the world organization got into full swing with the opening of the UN General Assembly Tuesday.

One of the wildest rumors, and one that drifted over here from Geneva, said that Prime Minister Trudeau is in the running for the job of UN Secretary-general U Thant, the secretary-general, is retiring at the end of the year.

The UN official who reported that the rumor was first heard in Geneva told the story Tuesday and said it was an example of how silly rumors can get.

Nuclear Bomb Lowered

WASHINGTON (AP) — A five-megaton nuclear bomb was lowered at least 300 feet into an underground Aleutian test site last week even though President Nixon hadn't given official approval for the blast, congressional sources say.

The bomb, largest ever planned for a subterranean test in North America, was being taken to its blast site more than a mile below the surface when the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission laid off one-third of its work force last Thursday, the sources added.

However, the congressional sources said they had been told by university researchers working on the project the bomb was set to explode sometime between Oct. 1 and Oct. 7.

Brezhnev Gets Hug From Tito

BELGRADE (AP) — Leonid Brezhnev, Soviet Communist party leader, received a bear hug from Yugoslavia's President Tito and a polite popular reception today on his arrival for a seven-day visit to this independent Communist country.

He invited Tito to "develop co-operation between our parties, countries and peoples in the interest of socialism and peace."

Brezhnev was met by assertions, including one by Tito himself, of Yugoslavia's independence from the Soviet Union and its non-alignment in world politics.

PCs Alone Able To Win

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Ontario Conservatives will fight the provincial election campaign on the basis of their record, Prime Minister William Davis made clear last night in his official campaign opening speech here.

"As a government, we say to the people of Ontario you have no need to judge us on our promises," he told loyal supporters at his kick-off rally in Memorial Arena. "We are asking you to support us for our performance, for the decisions we have made and the policies we have introduced."

He stressed his party's record in pollution control, saying that "we have acted to protect our provincial parks — we have arrested the threatened domination of our major city by the passenger car."

The Prime Minister reminded his listeners that his government has "reviewed and substantially reformed" health insurance financing.

But Mr. Davis did hold out some promises to the electors.

The government intends to act upon the Williston report and improve the standard of services and facilities for the mentally retarded.

He warned that costs are rising and profits are falling and if this continues, enterprise could slacken.

Saying that a government has a duty to lead by example, Mr. Davis recalled that it was one of the first decisions of his new cabinet six months ago to restrict discretionary costs, which account for more than 40 per cent of government expenditures.

"In the months ahead, our first priority is to policies that will protect and create more jobs," he said. "It is of vital importance that Canadian-owned industry and business and Canadian enterprise not be the first casualty of economic policies determined beyond our borders."

Toward the end of his 30-minute speech, Mr. Davis reaffirmed the Conservative creed.

"It is in our interest, and in Canada's interest, that Ontario continue to be an example of the achievements of a free and enterprising people, proud of their heritage, sensitive in their concern for social justice, prudent in the care and control of their resources, devoted to the strength and vitality of our Confederation."

Parliament Considers Ulster

LONDON (CP) — Parliament, recalled from its summer recess, meets in special session today to seek ways of saving Northern Ireland from the ravages of civil war.

As members assembled at Westminster for a two-day debate, the government of Northern Ireland pledged tough new measures to crush terrorism and restore law and order.

Guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army displayed their defiance by renewing bomb-and-bullet attacks throughout the six counties of the North.

The House of Commons and the House of Lords assembled against a background of escalating conflict in Ulster, torn by two years of bloody confrontation between the Protestant rulers and a rebellious Roman Catholic minority backed by the outlawed IRA.

U.S. Surtax Will Remain Until Trade Balance Better

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary John B. Connally says the Nixon administration will keep the 10-per-cent supplementary import tax in effect until the balance-of-payments deficit shows signs of improvement.

Connally appeared Tuesday before a closed session of the House of Representatives ways and means committee amid reports President Nixon would in mid-October unveil his proposals for what the administration calls Phase II of the new economic program.

Nixon has not revealed what policy will be when the freeze ends Nov. 13.

Connally said after the House session, however, the import tax would have to be kept in effect "pending further developments at least until they give us substantial hope that the payments can be balanced over a period of years, a relatively short period."

Nixon met Tuesday with representatives of consumer orgnizations, the sixth of his sessions with major economic groups.

The representatives told Nixon his post wage-price freeze stabilization program "better be fair" to wage earners and that big business should share the economic sacrifice, a spokesman said.

Something Seems Happening in China--But Mao Said Well

From REUTER-AP

Western diplomatic observers in Hong Kong speculated today that events in the last couple of weeks point to possible political developments in China.

These observers, specializing in study of Chinese affairs, cited a number of factors noticed earlier this month which could indicate an unspecified political change in the People's Republic.

The Oct. 1 parade in Peking had been cancelled, leading to speculation on the possible illness or death of Chairman Mao Tse-tung, 77.

But the Chinese embassy in Paris today denied that serious events are taking place in Peking.

A spokesman for the embassy described reports speculating on the health of Chairman Mao as "pure lies."

"Chairman Mao is in excellent health," the spokesman said.

China's correspondent in Ottawa, Pu Chao-mioh, also described the reports as "nonsense, all rumors." He said: "We know Chairman Mao is in very good health."

Morning news bulletins from Peking made no mention of the traditional parade, a forum for the appearance of Mao and other leaders.

In Peking, Reuter correspondent James Pringle reported that a spokesman at the foreign ministry information department said the parade would not take place this year.

Pringle reported that the spokesman said the lack of ceremonial activities such as fireworks was a reform being made for this year. But the spokesman said there will be celebrations in Peking.

Hong Kong's tabloid evening newspapers splashed speculative banner headlines today. "Is Mao Dead or Dying?" The Star asked. The China Mail's headline was: "Mao Dead Fear."

Tuesday, French radio reports speculated that Mao may have died or become gravely ill following a heart attack.

Most of the speculation in Hong Kong concentrated on the period Sept. 12-18 as possibly decisive in the event of any developments in China.

During this time, all members of the Chinese politburo were out of sight, except the acting president, Tung Pi-wu.

Between Sept. 13-16, diplomatic sources in Hong Kong reported a hold-down on all airplane flights across China, a rare event which has previously occurred at times of political change.

No chief of the People's Liberation Army appeared in public, as reported by the official news media, between Sept. 10-20. Analysts said air force commander Wu Fa-hsien has been out of sight since Sept. 7.

Diplomatic observers said these factors could all signify political change. They said that reports of the cancellation of the national day parade indicated this could only have been caused by an event of major importance.

Air Memorial Gift Deferred

Hastings county council will withhold its 1971 contribution toward the RCAF war memorial which was to have been erected at Trenton.

Plans called for the erection of a multi-million dollar memorial on property immediately west of No. 1 Repair Depot Road, but contributions to the memorial fund have not been as high as was expected and the project has been deferred.

When the project was first announced, the county voted a contribution of $5,000 to be paid in three instalments. An amount of $2,000 was paid last year with the second instalment of another $2,000 this year.

Today, when county council learned that some other type of a memorial was being considered although not necessarily at Trenton, members voted to withhold this year's payment.

Tyendinaga Reeve Carman Gibson noted that the county's contribution had been based on the erection of the memorial at Trenton and moved that this year's payment be withheld until the definite location was known.

Thurlow Reeve Horace Casey seconded the motion, noting, however, that he "had the greatest respect for the air force."

Flying Belleville Visit

Sir Geoffrey Eley, CBE. (centre), vice chairman of British Oxygen, and J. Allan Perham, (right) president of Canadian Oxygen Ltd., were brief visitors to Belleville yesterday as they visited Deloro Stellite. Sir Geoffrey is on a fact-finding mission to Canada with the effect of the 10 per cent surcharge imposed on imports to the United States to be one of the main topics of conversation. Deloro Stellite is a division of Canadian which purchased the Belleville plant last year and is part of a worldwide group of BOC companies which also has interests in Japan. R. J. Courneyes, (left), controller at Deloro said close to 20 per cent of the local plant output was exported to the United States.

ENSS Graduation Exercises Held

BRIGHTON (Staff) — East Northumberland Secondary School held its annual commencement exercises Friday night with a colorful procession highlighting the ceremony before more than 1,000 citizens of Brighton and district.

Led by Principal Harry Ewing, teacher donned gowns and hoods of a number of universities and colleges and led their grade 12 and 13 honor students into the new auditorium.

Guests were welcomed by Ralph Buck, head of the student government. Leonard Lelliep then introduced the speaker, Dr. W. Tovell, Curator of Geology, Royal Ontario Museum.

Dr. Tovell's address concerned earth science of the local area and concluded with a warning to the troubled generation that "Man can inherit the earth but he must not destroy it."

Valedictory address for Grade 12 was given by Miss Debbie Moore.

Speaking on behalf of the Grade 13 graduates, Miss Elizabeth Broatch recalled the timidity of the first few days of high school and praised the teachers for their "scholarship, patience and understanding." She concluded with a poem by Helen Steiner Rice, invoking her fellow classmates to "Climb till your dream comes true!"

Mr. Ewing presented the 11 Ontario Scholarships and introduced the graduates to the audience.

Hon. George Hees, MP for Prince Edward - Hastings, personally presented his awards to Millie Cocek and Clara Plicher.

More awards were given to successful students before the evening drew to a close with refreshments in the school cafeteria and dancing.

Only PCs Can Get Clear Win

The Progressive Conservatives party is the only one with a reasonable expectation of winning a clear and decisive mandate, the Prime Minister said.

"We are the only party that has made no promises to increase taxes, and we are the only party to make no promises that in fact will increase taxes," he said. "We are a party that can take a stand and can stick together. We have no right wing to mollify and no left wing to pacify."

Mr. Davis knocked the campaign promises of other parties, referring to the NDP platform plank "to build summer cottages for the people of Ontario" and to "another party which promises considerably more — some $400 million more — but has not said where the money will come from."

He ended his address with an appeal to party workers to get out the vote.

Ontario NDPers leadership that bears a strong and decisive mandate," he told the crowd of party stalwarts estimated to number more than 2,000.

"I am not asking you to go to work tomorrow — I am asking you to go to work tonight."

Mr. Davis made his speech in measured tones, devoid of the usual campaign rhetoric and podium thumping. No banners were on hand, and the color and excitement of the evening was provided by balloons, banners and the "packaged performance designed to appeal to the age group" put together in Toronto for campaign events.

It was a new election gambit for tradition-steeped eastern Ontario and for last night's audience, the majority middle-aged or older.

Only two speakers were heard at the rally — Mr. Davis, and chairman Donald M. Scott, who made brief introductions of the candidates and the cabinet ministers sharing the stage with Mr. Davis and his family.

Mallary's Corn Best

Robert Mallory of Frankford was the winner of the Belleville Agricultural Society corn competition, scoring 85 points for his field of Funks G5150 which was estimated to have a possible yield of 110 bushels to the acre.

Judging of the competition was by W. E. Hurst, field crops specialist of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food, in conjunction with Hudson Ketcheson, committee chairman and William Bishop, vice chairman.

Mr. Hurst said that the unusually dry weather in August had retarded growth which was apparent in underdeveloped ears. Also almost every entry showed signs of corn borer damage, suggesting that corn borer may be on the increase in the area.

No Posters Allowed In Trenton

TRENTON (Staff) — Election posters will not be allowed on town — owned land, trees or hydro poles by a new law ratified in council here Monday.

Although dealing with all notices, it will have an impact on the character of provincial election campaigning in the town.

Concern was expressed that even the returning officer would be prevented from posting voters' lists here but Mayor Duncan McDonald said a request for placing these on town property may be dealt with separately.

The only way signs will be permitted is through sanction of the Public Utilities Commission. If written consent is received from the PUC, signs may be tacked up on municipal hydro poles.

Ontario Air Plan Outlined

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Amid criticism of planned Sault Ste. Marie-to-Sudbury flights, provincial officials Tuesday night gave details of a northeastern Ontario air service which is scheduled to start Sept. 28.

The service, to be known as norOntair, will be operated for at least a three-year demonstration period, during which the Ontario government will underwrite its operating costs and assess its effectiveness.

The presentation Tuesday night was to 60 representatives of municipal councils, chambers of commerce and other interested organizations along the north shore of Lake Huron.

The approximately 600-mile service will run from its Sudbury base to the Sault, Timmins and Earlton, 90 miles southeast of Timmins.

"Would it be a true picture of it (norOntair's) potential if you were to make it more convenient for me to drive to Sudbury?" Mayor John Rhodes of the Sault asked representatives of the departments of transportation and communication at one point.

In replies to Mayor Rhodes and the Sault Chamber of Commerce president, Ross Reilly, norOntair project manager Ben Neville and the department adviser on air policy, Paul Davidson, said that once the service has been in operation for a time, the scheduling and other aspects of the air service could be changed.

The two critics both noted that while a one-day business trip from Sudbury to the Sault is possible under the schedule, a similar one-day return trip from the Sault to Sudbury is not, for the 200-mile distance.

Mr. Reilly also complained that the scheduling favored the Sault-Timmins leg rather than the Sault-Sudbury route, where he claimed there would be more passengers.

The service, announced by Premier Davis last July, still awaits licence approval from the federal department of transport. It will use two 19-passenger de Havilland twin-engined jitters. The planes will be colored yellowish orange with a large stylized purple loon on the fuselage.

Vietnam Senate Reacts

SAIGON (Reuter) — The South Vietnamese Senate called on the government today to organize new presidential elections.

A resolution passed at a special session of the chamber, called to debate the election in which President Nguyen Van Thieu is running alone for re-election, said a non-contested election "would cause disaster for South Vietnam" if carried through.

The vote has only the power of a recommendation and is not binding on the president.

It was passed by 28 out of the 31 senators present in the upper chamber. The remaining three abstained.

The election, the resolution said, is "creating unfavorable reaction both at home and abroad."

If the one-man vote goes through, the government will be unable to lead the country and South Vietnam will be unable to survive, it said.

"We call on the leadership to accept the responsibilities in face of the survival of the nation and to respond to the will of the people as well as respect the higher interests of the country," the senators said.

"We call on the concerned authorities to reorganize the presidential and vice-presidential elections in accordance with current democratic laws," it said.

Despite criticism, Thieu has shown his determination to go through with the Oct. 3 election and has placed the blame for it being non-contested at the feet of his two opponents who withdrew.

Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky and former head of state Gen. Duong Van (Big) Minh withdrew from the race in August, charging the president with election-rigging.

No Decision On Turns

The future of left-hand turns from Dundas St. West through the private Reid's Dairy laneway to Parker Street is still undecided today despite a second look at the matter by the city traffic and light committee.

Two weeks ago, committee members recommended that for the sake of safety, left-hand turns into the laneway be prohibited.

But at council last week, the recommendation was referred back to committee for further consideration. And again Monday the matter was laid over to determine whether council had given any commitment to keep the road when the laneway was opened.

At the traffic committee yesterday, Reid's Dairy owner Armid Quickert said that prohibition of left turns would inconvenience customers from Dundas Street. He said also that the laneway to Dundas Street was used frequently by his own delivery trucks and milk tank trucks from Prince Edward county.

Star Proposes UHF in Quinte

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Star Ltd. says Toronto needs a new very high frequency television station.

But if the Canadian Radio Television Commission grants certain applications for a television station in southern Ontario, it will limit Toronto to the two existing VHF television stations. The Star told the CRTC Tuesday.

The Star was commenting on an application by the CBC to shift CBLT-TV Toronto, to Channel 5 from Channel 6.

The move has opened the way for applications for new television stations using Channel 6 in the Belleville-Kingston area. These applications will be heard later this week.

PROPOSED BYLAW

TORONTO (CP) — A "good housekeeping bylaw" that would make residents liable to $300 fines if they sleep in their halls, kitchens or bathrooms has been proposed by the council in suburban North York. Council voted to seek Ontario Municipal Board approval for the proposed bylaw.

Goyer Defends SPARG

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament was assured Tuesday by Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer that SPARG, the new security and planning and research group, will have an advisory rather than an operational role on security matters.

His Commons statement appeared to alleviate some of the suspicion that has led critics to call the men from SPARG—three so far—Goyer's Gumshoes.

"Indeed I welcome the proposal that information about security be channelled through a small group of civilian experts, advisory to the responsible minister," he said.

But regular reports should be made to the Commons justice committee to ensure that "what is starting out as a small, doubtless useful and necessary organization, does not blossom into something large and sinister."

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) assailed Mr. Goyer for being slow to inform Parliament about the group, thus creating lingering suspicions about it. He had hoped for a broader explanation and apology.

Mr. Goyer said SPARG was created to "try to achieve an objectivity, assessment and evaluation of the threat to the security of Canadians" posed by subversionary groups.

It would consist of sociologists, criminologists, psychologists, lawyers, military and police officers who would sift information gathered by RCMP, other police, and government sources.

French Course Well Received

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — "Sound progress" is being made in the oral French program initiated in Prince Edward County elementary schools at the grade five level last year.

Program organizer, Mrs. Earl Holt, told members of the Prince Edward-County board of education's education committee that students at the grade six level seemed most receptive to the 1970-71 course offering.

Mrs. K. Carson, a spokesman for the education committee, noted the program remains in an experimental stage and there are no plans at this time to drop the French courses offered at the grade five level.

The program was made available in grades five through eight last year.

In further discussion of her committee's report, Mrs. Carson added a film library is being discussed.

Although no decisions have been made, amalgamation of the Prince Edward and Hastings counties film libraries and the Prince Edward-Hastings Separate School board's film library is being reviewed.

Breaks New Ground

tent is to offer a program in adult education, with both academic and skill training. The skill training will include all the necessary abilities for farm maintenance with the band using all their working equipment as project material in courses on automotive and machine repair and welding.

It is hoped that a complete curriculum with special emphasis on Indian culture under Indian instructional staff can be initiated within three years.

The Old Sun Campus began operation seven weeks from the date advance planning began, a record in North American post - secondary education, Mr. Bradford said.

More Riots Possible

NEW YORK (AP) — There is danger of another uprising by convicts at Attica state prison, Russell Oswald, New York state commissioner of corrections, says.

"I think without question that there are some of these hardcore Maoists who would love to start the thing up again, and who will get support and what help they can from people on the outside," he said.

"In the light of what they told me repeatedly out in the yard, one has to be prepared for possible difficulties," Oswald said in an interview with Walter Cronkite on the CBS Evening News Tuesday.

He estimated the hard-core leadership consisted of up to 60 men, almost all of whom survived the armed assault Sept. 13 by state police that ended the four-day rebellion.

In a longer version of the interview broadcast later, Oswald said he felt strongly that such "radical" militants should be isolated from other prisoners, but that lack of space and federal court decisions made that impossible.

As to the assault that ended the ordeal in which 10 hostages and 29 prisoners died, Oswald said the threat of anarchy among the convicts left him "no choice" but to order the troopers in.

"I had to make a decision as to whether I could longer delay, permit them to arm, take the chance that they might start killing correction officers or their own men," he said.

"It wasn't the correction officers I was worried about alone," he said. "I was worried about humanity and it turns out they had killed their own men."

Oswald said each of the three convicts killed by the prisoners had a minimum of 20 stab wounds. "Now this is anarchy, and it seemed to me that I had no choice."

Asked why he negotiated with the prisoners in the first place, Oswald said: "I sincerely felt there was a real opportunity to save all the hostages . . . And on balance I felt that it was worth the risk."

Oswald conceded, when asked about the origin of the false report that the hostages had their throats cut, "that my own department on occasion did not report as well as we might have."

The Sandbanks

A former minister in the government of the Irish republic, Erskine Childers, wrote a book called The Riddle of the Sands. It was a story of intrigue and it makes us think, in an oblique way, of the Sandbanks south of here now veiled in controversy.

Sand being taken from the banks for commercial purposes is at the heart of the matter and scarcely a day has gone by recently that there have not been letters on the subject to The Toronto Globe and Mail.

What bothers us most about the Sandbanks is the lack of easy access to the banks proper. The public area embracing the provincial park and beach is fine but to get to the dunes from there involves a long trek across the brush and occasionally marsh-covered ground back from the beach.

There was a time when you could approach the dunes from the highway, along the track which now is barred by a gate and signs indicating no admittance. We do not recall how long such barriers to public access have been there but we have walked across part of the banks, using that now forbidden route, on perhaps three occasions in the past five years. The last time we had an abrasive encounter with an individual who arrived by car from, we gathered, a nearby camp area, to deny us further access.

Here we have one of the continent's great natural wonders, with everybody raving about it in letters to newspapers, yet only a fraction of the public get to see it. About the most the public at large know of the banks are the postcard scenes, some of them ironically, showing people sunning themselves on the sand. Where do they come from? The camps? Certainly only a handful make it from the provincial park area.

At least one provincial election candidate has raised the issue in his campaign, urging that the cement people get their raw material elsewhere. Presumably their operations are one reason for denying public access in the area mentioned which, we should point out, affords the easiest access to the dunes.

The way things are the Sandbanks are a non-attraction, for lack of means of getting there. They remind us of that old saw, in Canadian advertisements in U.S. magazines: friendly . . . familiar . . . foreign . . . and near. To which we might also add: inaccessible.

Into Ploughshares

The turning of swords into ploughshares comes to mind in a reading of the following dialogue in Parliament, as reported in Hansard.

Mr. P. V. Noble (Grey-Simcoe): Mr. Speaker, I should like to direct this question to the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development. Will he give his support to the National and Provincial Parks Association in respect of their representation to the Department of National Defence for the release for the purpose of park development of properties it has vacated?

Mr. Speaker: Order, please. I suggest this question might well have been placed on the order paper, but perhaps the minister might reply as briefly as possible.

Hon. Jean Chretien (Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development): Mr. Speaker, this question is being very seriously considered and I am pleased to tell the House that this summer we had the privilege of signing with Ontario an agreement for the establishment of a new national park.

We wonder in this regard if that portion of former Camp Picton not yet given over to another purpose, as in the case of the Picton Heights complex for training, would not lend into this category. As it is there is to be more concentration in future, by the defence department, on securing our northern regions — a fact given relevance by the cover picture on the booklet setting forth our defence policy in the 70s. A trio of white-clad troopers are seen marching away from a Hercules transport. In addition to their rifles and packs they also have snowshoes strung over their shoulders.

The picture could have been taken in Norway, where Canadians have taken part in NATO exercises. Or it could be at a northern base in Canada. Either way it is indicative of the growing potential of the north and its defence needs. At the same time it is scarcely a region to be considered, not for some time at least, for national parks purposes.

Incidentally, the above exchange in parliament took place on September 15 which, as we recall, marked the turning point of the Battle of Britain in 1940 and it the day on which that period of history is commemorated.

Waffle Group 'Loyal Party People'

Lewis Sees Himself as Prejudiced But More Mature

By JOE DUPUIS

TORONTO (CP) — "We have to expect a trend to win," says Stephen Lewis, new-look leader of the Ontario New Democrats, in assessing his party's chances to assume power after the Oct. 21 provincial election.

The party must go from 21 seats, the number it now holds, to a minimum of 59 in order to form the next government, Mr. Lewis, 33, said in an interview. He pointed to recent provincial elections as an indicator.

"We have a long way to go, but still I can remind you is that we went from 11 seats to 34 in Manitoba, that Lougheed (Premier Peter Lougheed) in Alberta went from 10 to 46, that the upset in Quebec was of the same proportion as it was in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

"When the change occurs, it tends to take everything with it, and there's no reason to assume it won't happen in Ontario, because the government here is also in trouble."

Mr. Lewis, who took over the party's leadership last fall from veteran Donald MacDonald, said the election upsets mean that "something is happening in the electorate in an anti-government, anti-administration way which only expresses itself in the ballot box."

"I don't know how you account for it, but the one thing which is not varying is the basic anti-government sense, regardless of what stripe the government is."

Mr. Lewis says he hopes any trend will be towards his own party, which increased its popular support in the 1967 provincial election to 26 from 17 per cent and went to 21 from eight seats.

But he said, if nothing else, the election upsets have given the NDP "immense credibility" in Ontario.

"We start this election campaign with a lot of people thinking that it will be a contest between ourselves and the Tories, a great many people making the assumption that we are the second place and vying for government."

A Toronto teacher and social crusader before he entered politics full time, Mr. Lewis assessed in an interview the effect on his party in an election campaign of the Waffle faction, his own toned-down image, and his father, David Lewis, national NDP leader.

On the emergence of a political Lewis dynasty, the son smiled and shrugged.

"I can't imagine there will be any difficulty simply because we both have the same name. Anyway, it's not a wealthy, aristocratic dynasty."

He sees the Waffles, followers of nationalist Prof. Melville Watkins, as causing "no great public discomfort" in the campaign.

"I see them as loyal party people. They will be working hard in the ridings in which they are members. They're out canvassing now."

Although he himself has repudiated some Waffle proposals, specifically the one calling for wholesale nationalization of resources industries, Mr. Lewis feels that no real public issue is involved despite his differences with Waffle leader James Laxer.

"I'm sure that the premier and some others may make the occasional crack to partisan audiences, the kind of schoolboy joke about Laxerites, or putting something on the Waffles. But I don't think that it has much substance any more."

He said the party position has been restated by himself and others which has made it fairly clear in the public mind where the party stood, and now there is much less confusion.

Mr. Lewis admits he has toned down his image since becoming leader. Some of the change was due to a natural mellowing, but mostly it was the assumption of leadership which "makes one see issues in context much more than, I admit, I saw them before."

Maybe I've realized that social change as it affects the lives of people can occur without alarming everything, and that I can work in more measured ways.

But his social philosophy and convictions have not changed.

"I carry into the leadership and out of it, a lot of prejudices, some imposed by the context (leadership) itself, some imposed by the media—certain adjectives describing Lewis, certain assumptions about Lewis."

It takes a while to wear those down. It takes a while for a politician to emerge as more and more he is promised to be, and I don't know whether one year is enough to do that."

NDP's Trust in Party Faithful

From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — There is one noticeable feature about the NDP campaign in this election.

The campaign has all the surface features of those of the other parties.

Leader Stephen Lewis is travelling throughout the province along with a personal and a press party. There is the chartered plane and chartered bus. And the leader's tour is covering the wide distance of the others.

However there is not the frenzy in the campaigning that is apt to show with the Liberals and the government.

This would be because the NDP campaign has a narrower focus and is much more coolly calculated.

Its point is pressure: to keep pressure on its workers to in turn keep pressure on the voters.

The NDP believes that organization, from the grass roots up, is the key to its political success and practically every move in its campaign is centred on this.

The party has been building its machine for months.

It has had 14 full-time organizers in the field since the first of the year. When the election was called it had a nucleus of at least 200 workers in every riding that was important to it. And by election day it expects to have a total of 35,000 active workers.

The goal for these workers is to canvass every home in their ridings at least three times during the campaign, and then of course, to see that the vote gets out on election day.

And the party is centring on building and feeding this organization.

The main purpose of Mr. Lewis' travel is to visit the local organizations and feed them pep talks and information.

He has no mass meetings for the public scheduled until the final week of the election. And is only doing as much mainstreeting and mixing with the general public as is absolutely necessary. He is putting his points across at the meetings with workers, which are open to the media, and through press conferences.

The party's money is being spent on organization and pamphlet material to feed the canvassers. Only a small portion will be spent on newspaper, radio and television advertising.

It is a concentrated effort, the most specialized we have seen in an election.

"Depends on how you look at it!"

Ontario Election

Union Official Confident Labor Will Make Gains

By IAN PORTER
Canadian Press Labor Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Union officials in Ontario eye the latest political readings almost as religiously as stockholders watch the daily market quotations.

Their mood varies with day-to-day fluctuations but with the Oct. 21 provincial election campaign under way, it seems bullish indeed.

More than at any time since organized labor helped form the New Democratic Party in 1961, they are confident the stock is about to soar, especially among their own people.

"There'll be more union participation in the NDP campaign this year than ever before," predicts one official of the Ontario Federation of Labor.

"The feeling is around that the party just might come away with the marbles this time. At least, that it could be the largest group in the legislature after the election."

But union officials are careful to hedge when they discuss the extent of labor's backing for the NDP. While they make no secret of their support, they don't want to give the impression that the party is the creature of the unions.

They know there is no guarantee that even a majority of the 900,000 union members in Ontario will back the party on election day.

At dissolution, the NDP held 21 seats, the Progressive Conservatives 68, Liberals 27 and Independent one.

In British Columbia, where the old CCF and the NDP have long been political bridesmaids on the verge of victory, NDP Leader David Barrett has been working to convince voters that labor's support isn't that important.

Ontario unionists grant the findings of a recent study indicating that close to 75 per cent of Canada's organized workers have never voted either for the NDP or the predecessor CCF.

And Ontario Leader Stephen Lewis has said that the workers "have not only declined to follow the exhortations of their leaders; they have also rejected a party whose policies, those of us in it are persuaded, are in their own best interests."

In Oshawa, the United Auto Workers has successfully mobilized its members to support the NDP and the party now represents the riding both federally and provincially; yet while 70 to 80 per cent of the workers' votes go to the NDP, only some 60 per cent of its members bother to go to the polls.

"We think our fellows substantially, support the NDP," says one UAW officer. "Our problem is to get them to vote."

Unionists, however, claim that labor support for the NDP is growing.

One indication is that more union members are joining the party and playing an active role in its affairs.

Another is simply the rise in the party's standing in the legislature to 21 seats. The trend has reversed the decline of the parent-CCF which had dropped to five seats by 1961 from 34 in 1943.

Perhaps the biggest encouragement, however, has been the party's successes in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Labor contributed heavily to those campaigns in both men and money.

Relatively little of the NDP campaign backing, however, will come from the dues checked off that affiliated union locals contribute at the rate of five cents a month a member.

The checkoff yields the provincial wing of the party close to $45,000 a year but almost all of it goes to pay administrative expenses.

More important are the election funds raised by district labor councils and the political action committees of a number of union locals.

The Metro Toronto Labor Council is seeking at least $35,000 from the 160,000 members of its affiliated unions. Comparable efforts are under way in such cities as Kitchener, London, Windsor, and in Hamilton. A committee of 75 persons once again has come from the 12,000-member Local 1005, United Steelworkers of America.

The party is pledged to add up its union contributions in public after the election. But the money is only part of the story.

In most ridings, the NDP campaign will be heavily dependent on volunteers going door to door seeking support.

Thirty per cent or more of the volunteers are likely to be union members, many taking part as a result of continuing political education programs within their unions.

The UAW alone has planned to support as many as 24 full-time campaign workers. Half will be direct employees of the union on leave from their regular duties. The others will be union members pulled from their jobs for the duration with their salaries to be paid by the union.

The United Steelworkers with about 90,000 members in Ontario, is expected to contribute about the same number of full-time workers as the UAW.

The Canadian Food and Allied Workers Union, with about 20,000 members in the province, has committed one full-time worker in the Niagara Peninsula and is giving some free time to its 10 staff members to take part.

The majority of union members appear to have given at least passive approval to these actions. Although a sizable minority has protested, flow many will vote Oct. 21—and for whom —is still the question.

Whitby's Plea On Deaf Ears

TRENTON (Staff) — A plea for financial assistance from the town of Whitby was rejected Monday by Trenton council.

A letter from the Oshawa area municipality told of a torrential storm that had done an estimated $1 million in damage recently, ang begged for even a token donation toward the cost of cleanup operations.

Councillor Ted Parker said he "did not know the town had suffered this kind of damage" which the communication had said was "even greater than that from Hurricane Hazel."

In view of Trenton's financial position it was decided not to heed the bid for aid. As Councillor Parker put it "we are struggling ourselves."

Dress for veterans, if possible: berets and medals.

A bus will leave the Market Square at 1.15 p.m. for others wanting transportation. Veterans of Bellevile Council expects a very good turnout and they are in charge of all arrangements.

Those lucky people who made the safari to Montreal had their expectations of a wonderful time more than verified. With congenial company on the bus plus the unexpected comforts of home, the time passed swiftly. A delegation from Unit 308 and their Ladies Auxiliary were waiting at the bus pulled into the motel at noon. After cleaning up, the bus took the crowd to the clubroom where a pleasant cocktail hour was enjoyed while getting acquainted. Then back to the banquet hall for a tasty repast. Some folks then left to look at the shops while others started the darts. President Joh Browning teamed up with President Joan Dunne from the Montreal Unit, were declared winners and the runners up were Cde. Harry Latham and Doris Rogers and Cde. Jack Fitzgerald and Kay Crawford, All the ladies were from Montreal and the gents from Belleville. In the evening, 2nd vice - president Gordie Kerr took over the mike and called president Bill Whitehouse up who, in turn called up President Browning and presented him with a lovely desk set.

Cde. Browning then thanked Unit 308 for the gift and also thanked the Ladies Auxiliary for the lunch. Cde. Jack Fitzgerald was then called forward and Cde. Kerr presented him with a shield to be placed on Unit 301's wall. Cde. Hank Ford then called on President Browning, Cde. Bill Ford, J. Fitzgerald and G. Christopher. Cdes. Galloway and Jack then unveiled the really beautiful inlaid table, suitably inscribed, to Unit 308 which their president accepted. The Montreal Ladies Auxiliary President, Alice McKay then took over and called past Dominion President Elizabeth Lindgert forward and presented her with a nice gift and also presented to the Belleville L.A. President, Gladys Fitzgerald another nice gift. In turn President Gladys presented a magnificent Mr. and Mrs. Dart Trophy to 1st vice - president McKay, After the presentations it was on with the dance to end a great day. The return trip was also a lot of fun but everyone was ready for home when the bus arrived shortly before 6.

Four comrades still on the sick list:- W. Shepherd, A. Tuck, C. Marriot and Bob Scott. All have been visited.

High Schools Up, Elementary Down

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — Enrolment in Prince Edward Collegiate Institute has increased by 63 students this year while elementary school enrolment figures have dropped by 89 pupils.

Director of education, John McNeil Monday told Prince Edward school trustees these unofficial figures indicate an over-all recession of 26 students.

In conversation with spokesmen at Prince Edward Heights, the Ontario department of Health's village complex, Mr. McNeil learned their students might boost enrolment figures to override the recession at the end of the school year.

The director of education also reported two staff changes, one at Wellington Consolidated School, the other at Queen Elizabeth School, Picton.

He mentioned a $24,000 adjustment from kindergarten through grade 13 will be required for teachers who studied summer courses to upgrade their abilities.

In other business, F. A. Sherit, business administrator for the county board, said preparations for the 1972 budget have begun and school principals are expected to submit their forms by the end of the month. An interim audit is expected to begin this week.

Edward Rutter, chairman of the board's finance committee reported "Barring any unfavorable mishaps we are going to come in on our budget."

He commented he did not want to stress the budget is looking "rosy" but asserted if trustees proceed as they have in the past three months they will come in on the budget set last year.

George Flower, chairman of the Prince Edward County board of education, reminded trustees of a tour of Prince Edward Heights, scheduled for September 30.

Robert MacKenzie, administrator of the village complex for the retarded will explain present activities under way and outline plans for future developments.

In a brief report from the personnel committee Mrs. S. Hart informed trustees 71 applicants were considered for a secretarial job at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

Interviews and tests were given to a number of the applicants and it was her recommendation Mrs. Shaw, a part time school secretary, should receive the job.

Trustees carried a motion supporting her appointment.

Mrs. Shaw has worked at the school on a "when needed" basis "for the past 10 months.

Attempts to Organize Tenants Run Aground

TORONTO (CP) — Attempts to organize Canada's 185,000 public housing residents and provide them with some "tenant power" have run aground.

The chief obstacle is a lack of money, and prospects for obtaining the necessary funds appear bleak.

That was the picture painted this week by two tenant representatives who met last weekend in Ottawa with officials of the Canadian Labor Congress, the federal Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., and Robert Andras, minister without portfolio in charge of housing.

June Lendrum, mother of five and tenant in a 102-unit housing project in Thunder Bay, and Mike Carson, a tenant organizer in east Toronto, were two of five tenant representatives at the meeting.

They said the tenant delegation had hoped to obtain $37,000 in grants to hire an organizer, an assistant and open an office in Ottawa. But they received only an uncertain promise of $15,000 from CMHC.

They said the purpose of the move would be to spur the formation of tenant associations in every housing project in Canada and to enable tenants to participate with government officials in the planning and administration of housing developments.

The tenant delegation was formed in May at the first national conference of public housing tenants held in Ottawa.

Mrs. Lendrum said CLC representatives told the delegation it was "very broke" and unable to provide the tenants with the $7,000 they had requested.

Mrs. Lendrum said she hopes to have further discussions with Mr. Andras about obtaining a grant before the tenants meet again in Ottawa Nov. 13.

Lortie Granted Day to Prepare Court Address

MONTREAL (CP) — Bernard Lortie was granted a 24-hour adjournment Tuesday to prepare his address to the Court of Queen's Bench where he is being tried for kidnapping Pierre Laporte, the Quebec labor minister murdered last October.

The 19-year-old trade school dropout, expelled from his trial earlier Tuesday crying and while with anger, returned to the prisoner's dock calm and smiling, his handcuffs removed.

Lortie told the 12-man jury he had no defence to prepare but asked that his trial be adjourned until 2:30 p.m. today to give him time to prepare his address.

Mr. Justice Jean-Paul Bergeron granted the request, saying, however, that the Crown would present its final summation to the jury first, Lortie agreed.

The judge told the jury that they would have to remain together in a downtown hotel until the end of the trial. The 12 men had been allowed to return home each night since the trial began last Monday.

Mr. Justice Bergeron explained that he made his decision as a result of Lortie's violent outburst and subsequent expulsion in the morning because the resulting publicity might be prejudicial.

Screaming "we will win" at Mr. Justice Bergeron and calling him a "swine" (salaud), Lortie was expelled from his trial during the morning sitting.

The outburst and resulting expulsion, his third since the beginning of the trial, followed the denial of a request by Lortie for a week to prepare his defence on the charge of kidnapping Mr. Laporte.

Lortie argued that the Crown "had 10 months to prepare its case" and all he was asking was one week.

Louisiana Prisoners Surrender

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Five-hour prisoners who had barricaded themselves in the Orleans Parish prison during a five-hour disturbance Monday night surrendered without resistance Tuesday, officials said.

The 54 were the last of a group of more than 200 prisoners who caused severe damage to the three-storey structure.

Officials had feparted early in the day that the disturbance was "all over," but Warden A. J. Fallenstein acknowledged at mid-morning that the 54 were locked in the cell blocks of one tier and had refused breakfast.

Criminal Sheriff Louis A. Heyd Jr. said the last 54 surrendered shortly after noon.

The warden said 267 of the 835 prisoners in the 42-year-old prison had participated in the disturbance.

There were no reports of injuries.

The trouble apparently began Monday night in one cell block on the top floor, where prisoners set fire to mattresses and banged on the iron bars. A fire department truck shot water into the windows.

The stone prison long has been the target of criticism and generally is condemned as overcrowded and obsolete. A new prison is being built, but completion is at least a year away.

Ad Ban Agreed To By Makers

OTTAWA (CP) — Tobacco manufacturers said Tuesday they will stop advertising cigarettes on radio and television Jan 1 and will freeze spending on print advertising.

Announcing a new advertising code, the Canadian Tobacco Manufacturers Council also said:

—Printed warnings that "excessive smoking" may be a health hazard will be placed on packages and vending machines, starting next April.

—Brands in which tar content exceeds 22 milligrams and nicotine content 1.6 milligrams will be taken off the market.

Initial effects would include the loss of more than $7 million in cigarette advertising to the broadcast industry and the withdrawal of at least five brands—Buckingham, Pall Mall and Chesterfield king-size plain ends; Mansion king-size filter; and St. Moritz premium filter menthol—from the market.

A government bill introduced June 10 would prohibit all advertising and promotion of cigarettes Jan. 1, require a warning on packages and machines, and enable government to regulate tar and nicotine content.

Council Chairman Paul Pare, president of Imperial Tobacco Products Ltd., called a news conference the bill—even if deferred—has caused "chaos."

Tobacco growers were concerned "about the future of their important segment of the agricultural industry" as a result of tar and nicotine clauses in the bill.

George A. Demeyere, of Tillsonburg, Ont., chairman of the Ontario Flue-cured Tobacco Growers Marketing Board, said he couldn't disagree with the tar and nicotine levels proposed by the manufacturers.

Such levels wouldn't harm the domestic or $60 million export market for Canadian-grown tobacco.

15 Firms Convicted For Ads

OTTAWA (CP) — Fifteen Canadian companies were convicted of false and misleading advertising in the fiscal year ended March 31 and another 22 firms were before the courts awaiting trial on the same charges, says D. H. W. Henry, director of investigation and research under the federal Combines Investigation Act.

In the same year, another 24 firms were found guilty of misleading price advertising and 14 more charges were pending, says Mr. Henry's annual report tabled Tuesday in the Commons by Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford.

Imperial Tobacco Ltd. is one of those convicted. Its promotion of Casino cigarettes which included displays promising "25 in every pack" resulted in a $3,000 fine. The company is appealing.

Other familiar names paying fines following conviction were R. A. Beamish Stores Co. Ltd., Hudson's Bay Co., Reliable Toy Co. Ltd., and Parker Brothers Games Ltd.

Mr. Henry's report also included a forecast of amendments to the Combines Act which will toughen laws against misleading the buying public.

One amendment is expected to deal with newspapers and radio and television stations which accept misleading advertising with little or no investigation.

Not Guilty Verdict

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court jury Tuesday acquitted Terrance Markovits, 24, of Windsor on a charge of manslaughter in the May 4 strangulation death of James Robert Banks.

Markovits had told the 12-man jury he had acted in self-defence when he put a fatal headlock on Banks.

He said Banks burst into his home late on the night of May 4 and threatened to kill him.

Markovits said Banks, 22, had threatened to kill him on several previous occasions unless he gave a divorce to his wife, Jackie, who was living with Banks.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"It says you are a big tipper, I trust."

One Reason for GM Layoffs---No Compacts

OTTAWA (CP) — One reason for General Motors layoffs is that the company does not produce compact cars in Canada, Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said Tuesday in the Commons.

He said he will meet top officers of the company here today. GM announced Monday that it is laying off 2,800 workers in Ontario and Quebec plants.

Mr. Pepin said in reply to Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield that he found it "rather shocking" that GM had not given him advance notice of the layoffs in Ontario.

He said he hopes that was an accident which will not recur.

Both the Conservatives and the NDP sought an emergency debate on the announced GM layoffs. Their motions failed on technical grounds.

Mr. Pepin said GM does not produce compacts as other Canadian manufacturers do.

GM produced mostly "full-sized" Pontiacs and Chevrolets and those were not as popular as expected.

GM was going through a "readjustment." In the U.S. 27,000 GM workers were being laid off.

Mr. Pepin said it is difficult for any cabinet minister to suggest to the car makers what models they should produce. There was an element of "gambling" in selection of types.

Ed Broadbent (N D P—O s hawa-Whitby) said that at last Mr. Pepin had expressed some annoyance with the car makers.

George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) asked when the government will produce its policy on foreign investment.

"Pretty soon," replied Prime Minister Trudeau.

Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington) said Mr. Pepin should tell GM that if the company reduced the price of its cars it would sell more.

Mr. Pepin said in reply to a question by Mr. Hales that manufacturers of car parts will get help under the government's legislation designed to combat the U.S. surcharge on imports.

Canada "can't have it both ways," Mr. Pepin said. While sales of full-sized cars were lagging, there were popular cars built in Canada: Maverick, Pinto and Dart, for example.

"There's an element of gambling in this matter and sometimes you win, sometimes you lose."

Mr. Pepin replied that any such Canadian measure would mean retaliatory measures by other governments.

Mark Rose (NDP—Fraser Valley West) suggested that the 15-per-cent sales tax on Canadian-made automobiles be removed.

Civic Leaders Concerned

OSHAWA (CP) — Civic leaders expressed concern Tuesday about the economic impact of impending layoffs at General Motors of Canada Ltd. plants in Ontario, as union leaders sought ways to cushion the loss of 1,350 jobs, beginning in five weeks.

The United Auto Workers reinvested from its last contract talks a call for retirement after 30 years as a means of softening the blow.

GM announced Monday it plans to reduce its work force at five Ontario plants by 1,350 workers and to cut employment at Ste. Therese, Que., by 570 more.

The Ontario plants, at Oshawa, St. Catharines, Scarborough and Windsor, where two GM operations will be affected, employ about 20,400.

Trade Surplus Lower

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's commodity trade surplus was trimmed to $218 million in August from $223.5 million a year earlier though exports rose 17.4 per cent, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

The month's trade surplus was reduced mainly because of a 21.9-per-cent increase in imports in the 12-month comparison. Imports had shown little growth in 970, during the period of economic slack, but have been growing again this year.

The statistics bureau reported that for the first eight months of 1971, there was a trade surplus of $1.61 billion, compared with a surplus of $1.77 billion in the same period last year.

The figures for August would show little effect of President Nixon's imposition of a 10-per-cent surcharge on American imports of dutiable goods, which started Aug. 15. Officials fear the impact of the surcharge on shipments of Canadian manufactured goods to the U.S. will become more apparent this month and later this year.

The biggest import gains this year have been from Japan, up 26.7 per cent in eight months and 56 per cent in August alone.

Commodity figures, not seasonally-adjusted, showed a major August increase in imports of automobiles from the rest of the world, not the United Sates. They rose to $31.9 million from $12.6 million in August last year.

U.S. Lists Textiles Restraints

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has told Japan, Hong Kong, Taiwan and South Korea what restraints the U.S. could consider acceptable on the flow of non-cotton textiles to the United States.

In addition a high-ranking aide of Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans is being sent to Hong Kong and Tokyo Sept. 29 on a mission aimed at promoting exports of American textiles to Asia. It is expected that the aide, special assistant Stanley Nehmer, will also discuss the restraint programs with government authorities in the British colony and Japan.

Still in the background, neither confirmed nor denied by the White House and the state department, are reports that the United States is ready to impose import restrictions on textiles by Oct. 15 if Japan and other producers do not agree to government-level talks on the restraint program.

Prices Increased In Most Cities

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer prices rose last month in 11 of the 12 cities and city combinations for which Statistics Canada keeps separate records, the statistics bureau reported Tuesday.

The city indexes measures the change in prices reported within each city, and cannot be used to compare living costs between one city and another. Differences in housing and heating needs because of the climate cannot be measured statistically.

Only in Halifax did the price index decline last month, to 127.3 from 127.5 in July, on the basis of 1961 consumer prices equalling 100.

The largest increase was in St. John's, Nfld., where the index rose to 135.9 from 134.1.

Pontiac presents its value story for 1972.

Here are some of the features you'll find on the 1972 Pontiacs. Read about them. Then compare them with others. Stack them up against your own standard of value. Then come in and see the new cars at your Pontiac dealer's. We believe you'll find the real value you've been looking for.

You know you can always count on Pontiac to introduce the kind of newness that means something more than just an extra dressing of tinsel.

Like Endura, the too-tough-to-be-true front end material, introduced on GTO, yours on every Pontiac Firebird and now available on many LeMans models. They always keep function as well as beauty in mind.

This year, on all their full-size models, Pontiac's engineers have turned their attention to the little bumps and bruises of everyday driving life.

They've fitted two steel boxes filled with a resilient material between the front bumper and the frame. On minor impact, this material compresses to absorb energy, then returns to its original shape. And the bumper returns to position.

In addition, they've provided you with the option of ordering a thick strip of rubber-like material that runs the whole width of both front and rear bumpers to help guard against scratches and dings.

So now, when you leave your 1972 full-size Pontiac on its own...it stands a better chance of looking after itself.

Of course, every full-size Pontiac offers many other value features. Like double-panel roof construction with a perforated inner panel that helps cut down inside noise. Draft-free, upper level ventilation. Side guard beams in all the doors. Engines designed to run on no-lead or low-lead gasolines. Power front disc brakes, power steering and, on V8 models, automatic transmission, all standard.

Pontiac's trim-size LeMans also has something new and exciting to offer you in 1972.

A new luxury series, called, not surprisingly, Luxury LeMans.

It has a distinctive new grille, deluxe wheel covers, rear wheel fender skirts, and liberal (but not heavy-handed) additional, bright metal trim. Inside there's an instrument panel with the look of rare Ceylonese teak. A "soft" rimmed steering wheel. And comfort. Real comfort. Inches of soft foam padding. Rich fabrics. Plush carpet. And vinyls so soft you could easily mistake them for leather.

And Luxury LeMans, like the famous GTO, is only one of 8 trim-size Pontiacs that aim to give you all the value you'll be looking for this year.

Ventura II, Pontiac's newest baby, is a pocket-sized, pocket-priced beauty that is proving so popular that just about all we changed for 1972 was the nameplate.

Ventura II is the kind of low-price car that takes a little knowing before you can appreciate all those fine Pontiac touches. So come in and we'll introduce you. Soon.

Firebird for 1972 is Pontiac's great-looking sports car that gives you all the luxury you want and all the sporty performance you want—at a price that will make Firebird most wanted by sports fans.

All this is a mere smattering of the features and values you'll be finding on the 1972 Pontiacs.

Pontiac Grand Prix, Grand Ville, Bonneville, Parisienne Brougham, Catalina, Laurentian, Luxury LeMans, LeMans, Ventura II, Firebird.

If this is the year you're looking for value, this is the year to look at Pontiac. Why don't you?

Lewis Plans Prices Board

KITCHENER (CP) — New Democratic Party Leader Stephen Lewis said Tuesday an NDP government would establish a price review board with power to roll back unjustified price increases in some areas.

His criticism of price increases concentrated on milk prices, which he said had increased four cents a quart in Ontario between Feb. 1 and Sept. 1, while farmers received only a half-cent increase in the same period.

"At no time have the dairies been called on to justify these increases," he told a news conference during his campaign for the Oct. 21 provincial election.

Earlier in the day, Mr. Lewis said in Brantford that General Motors of Canada Ltd. could have avoided layoffs of nearly 2,000 workers by reducing car prices and taking a cut in profits.

He called the layoffs, which will take effect by Nov. 1 in five Ontario plants and one at Ste. Therese, Que., "a totally irresponsible thing for auto manufacturers to be doing."

He said an NDP government would ask the auto manufacturers to prove economic justification for layoffs if the balance sheets showed the layoffs were not just.

At his news conference here, the NDP leader said he wouldn't be surprised if Ford and Chrysler follow with similar announcements of layoffs. Both companies have said they plan no layoffs.

On the subject of milk prices, Mr. Lewis said that under an NDP government a milk marketing board would monitor dairy balance sheets to ensure that middlemen did not eat up too much of the consumer's dollar.

A price review board would require companies such as dairies, steel producers and home fuel suppliers to justify increases and publicly disclose their balance sheets. If the board found the increases unjustified it would roll them back.

Mr. Lewis said there is "no use in having a prices review board without teeth" but it need be used only rarely.

"One assumes that the fact the company would have to appear before a board to justify increases would be a deterrent."

The NDP would establish a formula so that increases in farm production costs could fairly be passed on to distributors.

Mr. Lewis said the Ontario Milk Marketing Board could have all the power government agencies need to influence every step of the route from producer to consumer.

The board now sets production quotas and marketing arrangements for farmers and sets the prices dairies must pay the farmers, he said. But the board refused to play the same role between the dairy and the consumer.

The result was that when a farmer received a half cent more for raw milk, dairies used the increase as an excuse to raise consumer prices by one or two cents a quart.

Elsewhere during the day, Mr. Lewis visited the strike-bound Terpack Ltd. plant at Brantford, where a court injunction has limited to two the number of picketers at the plant gates after a series of violent incidents.

"This is incredible," said Mr. Lewis as a police car followed his bus to the plant and company security guards took pictures of the NDP leader and his entourage.

Nixon Wants Steady School

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon advocated Tuesday an accelerated provincial education program for Ontario, including year-round classes at the senior high school level.

Mr. Nixon, a former physics teacher who has sharply criticized government spending on education, said in an interview there would be a number of advantages from his policy.

First, he said, it would cut substantially Ontario's $2-billion-plus annual education budget.

He said it also would fully utilize schools and would allow the government to employ more students because they would be coming into the provincial labor market year-round, rather than just in the summer.

Mr. Nixon, who earlier in Belleville advocated an Ontario "peace corps" in which students would be employed by the province in such areas as research, Indian affairs, mining, forestry and conservation, said his system would provide more opportunity for young people.

"At present, if a young person wants to take a job as a ski instructor, it's impossible because of the present school set-up," he said.

But under his system, senior high school students and those in community colleges and universities would have the option of taking their holidays in winter.

He also said his government would top a year of the education system within three years of taking office so the public high school system would end after Grade 12.

Asked whether a speeded-up education system would put more pressure on universities, he said:

"There's not enough strain on universities now for the kind of financial commitment we make to them."

He said present government programs for employing young people have been inadequate.

"They (the government) had a short-term program for this summer." "Some of the usefulness of the program has been lost because of the superficiality of the (government) approach."

Mr. Nixon said part of the pressure which would be inflicted on community colleges by a speeded-up education policy could be absorbed because community college facilities are not being fully utilized.

He emphasized that the senior high school grades, 11 and 12, could be brought into the year-round work program.

With proper guidance counselling, he said, exceptional students, rather than taking time off, could accelerate the education process even more, but he wasn't advocating it as a general rule.

Mr. Nixon said he also is concerned that three schools in this area are being closed down despite the fact they still are functional and are not paid off yet.

Two Socreds Burke Members

TORONTO (CP) — An official of the Social Credit Association of Ontario compiled Tuesday that two party candidates for the Oct. 21 provincial election have broken their word in publicly revealing their membership in the right-wing Edmund Burke Society.

George McLenon, vice-president of the association, said Alan Overfield, 22, the candidate in Beaches-Woodbine, and Geza Matrai, 27, running in High Park, broke their agreement not to mention their association with the Burkers.

A news release announcing his candidacy said Mr. Matrai had proved his leadership and dedication as a founder of the Anti-Bolshevik Youth League at the University of Alberta in Edmonton, and as an active leader of the "anti-Communist, anti-socialist Edmund Burke Society" in Toronto.

"They were supposed to adhere to Social Credit principles," Mr. McLenon said in an interview. "There was an agreement which they came in under.

"We don't want to mix our group with theirs."

Mr. McLenon said his party hopes to field 50 candidates for the election. For have been nominated to date. Besides Mr. Overfield and Mr. Matrai, there are Vicki Andrews, 23, in Riverdale, and Charles Stewart, 32, in York Centre.

Mrs. Andrews is campaigning on the issue of education and Mr. Stewart on the high cost of housing.

Mr. Overfield is calling for police agencies to enforce the law before vigilante groups do it for them. Mr. Matrai is calling for the death penalty for traffickers in narcotics.

Police Aid NDP Enter Apartment

TORONTO (CP) — The New Democratic Party had to call the cops this week to gain entry to a city apartment building for a party canvasser for the Oct. 21 provincial election.

Canvasser Janet Grinshaw was refused entry to the building Monday night, and another NDP official had no success in trying to convince the building superintendent that the Landlord and Tenant Act permitted canvassers.

The dispute was resolved when the police station and advised that the act provides for a fine of up to $1,000 on conviction for violations.

Refurbished Houses Could Provide Homes

EDMONTON (CP) — The Canadian Catholic Conference should study a United States program to provide housing for lower-income families by refurbishing older developments, it was recommended today.

The suggestion came during a workshop, from Most Rev. F. A. Marrocco of Peterborough during discussion on housing and the role the Roman Catholic Church can play in providing housing for the needy.

By setting aside $25 of each month's rent in a rent-to-own plan, the residents are encouraged to take care of what eventually will be their property.

Most Rev. G. E. Carter of London, Ont., said a major obstacle to overcome in Canada is a "lack of proper organization on the part of government—provincial, municipal and federal."

Bishop Carter said his diocese had at least $1 million in its fund.

"I don't see why it couldn't be used for housing just as easily as it could be for building churches. It certainly would ease our social conscience."

Guild Inn Shore May Be Public

TORONTO (CP) — A three-way transaction may result in the Guild Inn and half a mile of Lake Ontario shoreline at Scarborough Bluffs soon becoming publicly owned.

The Guild Inn is a country resort hotel with 100 guest rooms. The property is worth more than $4 millions.

Involved in the purchase-and-gift transaction are the Ontario Heritage Foundation, the Metro Toronto Waterfront Advisory Board and H. Spencer Clark, who with his family has owned the Guild Inn property since the 1930s. The discussions are still in a preliminary stage.

The '72 Oldsmobiles are here.

You'll like the changes you see in the showroom. The ones you feel on the open road. And one you may discover in your local supermarket parking lot.

DELTA 88 ROYALE There's more built-in toughness. A new front bumper absorbs minor parking lot impacts. It flexes, gives a little—then returns to position. On the road, its "G-Ride" System helps deliver exceptional ride and handling, with Supershocks, computer-matched springs, and other interrelated components. And Delta 88 now includes more standard equipment: power steering, power front disc brakes, power ventilation, automatic transmission—and a long list of GM safety features. Delta 88: Strong. Tough. Smooth. Not just another pretty car.

CUTLASS SUPREME You want real luxury, comfort and room—but not a big car. You want handling and manoeuvrability, but not a compact. Cutlass Supreme gives you what you want on a 112-inch wheelbase for coupes and convertibles; 116-inch wheelbase for sedans. Formal roofline. Room for six. Deluxe interiors. Under the hood, a Rocket 350 V8. Luxury and class in a size and price range you can live with... that's Cutlass Supreme. Cutlass—puts you in an Oldsmobile a couple of years sooner.

TORONADO The one personal luxury car that pulls it all together in quite a different way. Pair 'Manipulated' Crowd Is Claim At B. C. Inquiry

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two persons observed manipulating crowds before the Aug. 7 Gastown riot had been involved in other violent demonstrations in the city, an inquiry into the incident was told Tuesday.

W. W. Scotland, a city police detective, said he had observed Kenneth Lester and Eric Somers at a number of demonstrations since March, 1970.

"I have seen Lester manipulate a crowd," he said. At earlier gatherings, the two had usually disappeared by the time violence began.

The inquiry, headde by Mr. Justice T. A. Dohm of the British Columbia Supreme Court, was told that Lester read a petition to the crowd.

The document contained demands for an end to alleged police harassment and brutality, legalization of marijuana and donation by Gastown merchants of 10 per cent of their profits to persons arrested in the refurbished former skid road area near the waterfront.

Scotland testified that Lester read a pro-marijuana chant, read an excerpt from the federal Narcotics Control Act and burned the paper it was written on. Somers "went along with the chants," he said.

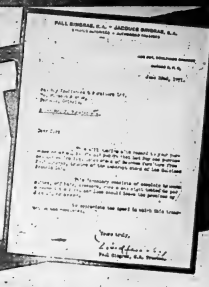
The mustachioed and sideburn-sporting police officer, who said his job was to keep an eye on persons who often go to demonstrations, testified that he clearly heard someone shout:

"There has been a suggestion that we move out and take to the streets."

He said that later, with about 2,000 clustered in a square in the area, the nucleus of the crowd shifted. After Insp. Robert Abercrombie, in charge of police at the so-called "marijuana smoke-in," tried to address the crowd there were shouts of "Sit down, sit down. The pigs are coming."

Some sat down, blocking one road into the square. Mounted policemen approached "at a walk" and those who refused to move were "brushed aside, knocked aside."

Constable Richard Steyens, 28, who took part in an undercover operation in the area against drug peddling, described a core group at the gathering as "very militant, anti-authority, anti-police, anti-establishment. . . ."



Earlier, the inquiry was told that police found a pile of broken bricks and other debris piled on the roof of a building in the area.

Constable Villy Anderson, one of several officers who had taken part in a two-week crackdown on drugs in the area immediately before the riot, told of finding the pile of debris about 7 p.m. the night of the riot.

Ann Landers
Friend Is Hung-up On Superstitions

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I had a date with a neat chick on Friday the 13th and she nearly drove me nuts. It began with she wore her dress backwards to "ward off the evil spirits."

Then she tied a red handkerchief over her head so "the swallows of sorrow would not nest in her hair." As we left her apartment she spit on her palm and stamped it before locking the door. Then she warned me not to step on a crack or it would break my mother's back.

Before we walked into the cafe she stopped, put her left shoe on the right foot, her right shoe on the left foot, and kissed the hem of her dress. When I told her to cut out the nonsense she replied, "This is Friday the 13th and I am not taking any chances. Please tell me if this girl has all her marbles. She's highly intelligent and I can't understand why she is so hung-up. P.S. I am not interested in marriage. I just want to go with her. Thanks for your help. — AUSTIN READER.

* * *

DEAR AUSTIN: Superstition is based on emotion — and has nothing to do with logic or intellect. She might make a wonderful wife — bite your tongue.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I got a kick out of your column a few days ago when Miss York, Pa. asked if she should marry a guy whose grammar was atrocious. He made such mistakes as "I seen" and "have went." You put her nose back in joint by telling her that might not be as far above you as she thought, since she misspelled the word grammar throughout her letter. You, Ann, misspelled the word misspelled. It's got two s's, dearie.—JUST CALL ME MISS PELL FROM KANSAS CITY.

* * *

DEAR PELL: Not guilty. I checked the mimeographed copy which was mailed to all my client papers and I spelled misspelled correctly. The mistake occurred at your paper. But before the typesetters climb my frame again, let me make it perfectly clear that in this day of automation it may well have been a computer error.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son and daughter-in-law just left. Mad. My husband and I are in our late 60's and not very well. They were here for Sunday supper, telling us in detail about the trip they are planning to South America. (They sail November 7th.) Very casually our son said, "We'll leave Prince Cornwall with you. Of course you'll have the instructions written down — the name of the vet in case he gets sick, a list of things he likes to eat as well as the things he doesn't like."

Before he went further I told him I wasn't up to taking Prince Cornwall, that Dad and I might want to go to Mexico City for a week, and I wish he'd make other arrangements. His wife cut in with, "you'll have to take him. He hates being in a kennel. When we left him there last year he nearly had a nervous breakdown. He wouldn't eat and looked ghastly when we came home." Well, Ann, one thing led to another and my husband lost his temper. The last thing my son said was, "You have really let us down. After all, what are parents for if you cannot count on them when you need them?"

I was so upset I didn't sleep last night. Please, Ann, tell me what you think about this. Have we failed our son?—LANSING, MOTHER.

* * *

DEAR LANSING: No, you have not failed your son and don't get to feeling guilty and collapse to his demands.

If his idea of what parents are for is someone to leave his dog with when he goes on vacation, someone should set him straight. It sounds as if your husband did. Now forget it.

The Looks of the 1930s and 1940s Set Tone of Fashions for Fall

By JEAN SHARP,
CP Women's Editor

Dark bright colors, mix-ups, absence of frills, a muddling together of the looks of the 1930s and 1940s set the general tone of fashions for the fall.

The blazer may be the single biggest item.

Mini lengths are still around, but the fashionable length is the classic one, not far below the knee.

Pant-suits are gone, though pants and hot pants are still fashionable. Pants have wider bells, a la John Held.

For a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press a fashion expert in Edmonton summed it up.

"If I could choose only one outfit this fall, I'd choose a blazer and skirt with a really flirting sweater underneath, varied with a womanly blouse. The skirt would have movement, be pleats, maybe, and come just to the knee.

"I'd have the jacket in a velvety fabric or in a plush corduroy in dark tones."

In Toronto the blazer is in every kind of fabric, with or without lapels, with or without braid trim. You wear it with pants, pleated skirts, or evening clothes.

Long evening and at-home skirts and dresses are available in everything from inexpensive tent-like caftan styles to elegant sleek. Hot pants as part of the evening dress scene are mentioned by buyers in Saint John, N.B., and Winnipeg.

Hot pants will also be around in leather, in suede and occasionally in slightly longer lengths than were worn in the summer. When they aren't covered by long skirts, they are worn with textured stockings or knee socks.

Spokesmen everywhere say dresses and skirts will come back into their own now that the burning issue of length has been more or less resolved.

Montreal buyers say every dress has a waistline, from empire to natural. Fabrics are soft, clinging. Womanly and feminine are used to describe them. They are knits and woven versions of polyesters, wools, man-made mixtures, chiffon and crepe.

Black is back and favorite colors are expected to be reds worn in a burgundy, plus browns and beiges.

With skirts that have pleats, you wear turtlenecks, blouses and sweaters. A new layered look is expected to be a winner. A Winnipeg expert describes it as "sweater over sweater over sweater." A Vancouver fashion co-ordinator says the short sweaters go over the long ones.

Another Vancouver expert says veiled hats are being worn by women who remember the last time they were worn. Younger women are wearing newsboy caps and big hats with floppy brims.

Boots are still to be worn with almost any outfit, especially laced-up "granny" boots.

Shoes are not quite as clunky as they have been for a season or two. They and the boots show most clearly the nostalgic look of much of the fall's fashion. They have slender straps, elastic inserts, buttons down the side.

St. John's, Nfld., fashion buyers are among those predicting that tweed coats will be big sellers for fall and winter. Tweeds and fur-trimmed coats with hoods are mentioned most often. The midi style may linger among them, especially on girls and young women. Most coats will just be longer than the skirts, though, which should make them slightly shorter than the midi length.

No one likes to talk about the midi, and it is the theory of several fashion commentators that fiasco has had much to do with the freeing up of fashion. It now is permissible for a woman to wear what suits her and her age, whatever that may be.

Women in Politics Must Be Knowledgeable

WINNIPEG (CP) — Women in politics shouldn't limit themselves to health, education and welfare, says Lillian Hallonquist, an aldorman for 18 years.

"If you're going to be in government, you have to have a working knowledge of everything."

Mrs. Hallonquist, 70, entered civic politics in a seat left vacant by her husband's death and is one of two women on Winnipeg city council now.

"I have done everything the men have done, and done it as well as they have," said Mrs. Hallonquist, who has decided against seeking further office.

She'd "dearly love" to run for a seat on the new central city council that is to govern Winnipeg from next Jan. 1, but said her health isn't up to it.

She's been a chairman of every civic committee and a member of every city board and commission and sees no reason why Winnipeg couldn't have a woman mayor, "if we get the right women."

Mrs. Hallonquist says women don't have to be "sweet and sugary" to be successful.

"I will not grovel. I will not be sweet. If I think someone is wrong, I say so."

But, she adds, "I have found everyone quite reasonable if you take the time to talk to them."

Church Groups

ST. COLUMBA WOMEN

The Presbyterian Women of St. Columba Church held their first meeting of the fall season on Monday night, Mrs. Nancy Barker, president, welcomed the members back and promised a busy and rewarding season. Mrs. Murphy gave the reading and a most inspiring message of encouragement for a new beginning.

A short business meeting was held, discussion mostly being centred on arrangements for future events which will require the help and support of all members — catering commitments; fashion show; rummage sale; Christmas cake baking.

Following the business meeting, Peter Beattie, delegate to the 1971 Presbyterian Congress in Guelph reported back to members his experience at the Congress, his own feelings at fulfillment and enrichment during his being part of this wonderfully successful gathering of Presbyterians from across Canada. Mr. Beattie gave a quick run down of the busy and inspiring program, together with short excerpts from the main addresses by Dr. Albert van den Heuvel from Switzerland, and Rev. Bruce Miles. And finally an account of the informal open air celebration of communion.

After listening to this vivid first hand account of such a big venture, St. Columba is justifiably proud that Mrs. Denton Taylor was the congress chairman and head of the planning committee.

The evening concluded with a lunch served by Mrs. Devolin and her committee.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

GAMMA MU CHAPTER

Gamma Mu's first meeting was held at the home of Mrs. T. Rowland, President, Mrs. C. Rowbotham opened the meeting with roll call of everyone's summer holidays.

The year's activities for social and service were discussed. Social convener, Mrs. A. Gray reported on beginning day held August 28 at the home of Mrs. P. Dorsey, a new member. The social committee served corn on the cob and salads followed by coffee.

During the evening members and their husbands exchanged summer experiences. Program convener, Mrs. T. Rowland distributed the new program books.

The executive for the newly formed Quinte area council was announced.

There being no further business the meeting was adjourned.

Mrs. R. Michaud introduced Mrs. T. Rowland and her program, "introductions and afternoon tea."

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Make Use of Eggs; Bake Large Chiffon Cake

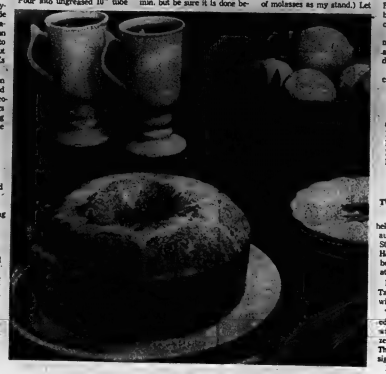
By MARY MOORE

Today's subject has a self-ish aspect. I wanted a piece of pineapple chiffon cake myself. What kind of an attitude is that for a food editor? Valid I claim. It is better than valid for it means it has to pass an extra strict test. But it all started from a reader's request.

Do you know that chiffon cakes are easy to make and serve a large number of people and call for lots of eggs which we should be using now to the optimum because of their low cost?

PINEAPPLE CHIFFON CAKE (10")

1 cup egg whites (about 7)
½ tsp. cream of tartar
2¼ cups sifted cake and pastry flour
1½ cups sugar
1 tbsp. single-acting baking powder
½ tsp. salt
½ cup cooking (salad) oil
5 large egg yolks
¾ cup canned unsweetened pineapple juice



Into beater bowl measure the egg whites and cream of tartar and beat until very stiff (the most important step in success).

Meanwhile sift and measure flour and sift with the sugar, baking powder and salt into a medium bowl. Make a well in centre and add oil, yolks and pineapple juice. With your hand rotary beater or wooden spoon beat until blended and creamy.

As soon as egg whites are very stiff and hold stiff peaks lift beaters and pour flour-yolk mixture over them and fold in, until evenly blended using a cutting motion through centre of batter occasionally. Pour into ungreased 10" tube pan with removable bottom and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. 1 hr. This cake may bake in 55 min. but be sure it is done before removing from oven. Suspend tube pan upside down on squat bottle, (I used the can of molasses as my stand.) Let hang 1 hr. Then carefully run slender knife around sides and tube to loosen and lift out. Run knife between cake and bottom and lift cake too fancy cake plate.

If desired drizzle top with mixture of ¼ cup icing sugar and 1 tbsp. lemon juice and dredge with sifted icing sugar.

A work of art. My crowd came back for seconds.

An Appetizing Dessert

Pinapple Chiffon Cake is a work of art and you can be the artist. It is a large cake and will serve at least ten people. Mary Moore gives explicit instructions for this cake which will give you the reputation of "expert."

Successful Living

Wife Pays Expenses

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: For two years I put my husband through university, then he dropped out before graduation. This was because, instead of studying, he spent every spare moment in the beer parlor.

Now he has a job at a gas station. He passed a test and qualified for a better job but he doesn't think it would interest him! No job ever seems to interest him.

He expects me to pay the bills and wait on him hand and foot. If I stopped working the roof would come down around my ears. — Ready To Give Up

Dear Ready: Perhaps Hubby needs to get back to square one and find out where he is going. A vocational counselor might help — but it still takes determination on his part. I'd suspect some jacks in his upbringing, wouldn't you?

Start leaning on him a little. Don't just resent the expenses or he will keep on thinking that money grows on trees. Proposition him into carrying the household expenses for a while, and save your income for some large outlay which he knows you need.

Praise him wherever he comes through properly.

* * *

Dear Doris: This may sound crazy but I'm 18 and in love with a boy who means everything to me. I am afraid I am going to lose him because of some of my mother's stupid rules.

She thinks she is protecting me from the world. All she is doing is making me lose respect for her. I feel she is trying to run my life for me, because she never had the chance young people have nowadays. — Mother Problem

Dear Problem: Until you tell me what those stupid rules are, I can't be much help.

Questions:

1. It seems your mother had enough "chances," at least, that she eventually married your father. Right?

2. What is love? If the introduction of rules is enough to detach your boy from you, would you say the love is properly required?

You are too young, too desperate, too sweeping in your statements, for me to worry too much about your losing this boy.

* * *

Dear Doris: A friend wrote to you and you were able to help her a great deal. Can you give me some advice?

Are there any agencies which would help a boy of 18, grade eight education, but with no definite skill or trade? He has been here for over six months and tried to find work, and now seems very discouraged. — Where To Turn

Dear here: That is the real question! We have an overload of ditchdiggers, garbage collectors, unskilled laborers.

Your young man either needs more academic education leading to what we used to call white-collar work, or. Before that, he needs vocational counselling.

What's troubling you? Putting it on paper to Doris is the first step towards solving your problem.

The Experts Say

Grow Herbs in House to Keep Summer Flavors

AJAX, Ont. (CP) — One way to keep some of summer's fresh flavors on your winter dinner table is to grow herbs in the house.

Elizabeth McKenzie says tarragon, rosemary, chives and basil will all do well in the house, as will lemon verbena and pineapple sage.

"I usually start dill and fennel seeds in September so I can have a pot of those in the house."

Mrs. McKenzie says her interest in herbs began with an interest in using fresh herbs to cook with. Now she has an extensive formal herb garden, a collection of 300 cook books, and she has written a book, Dining with Herbs.

Mrs. McKenzie says herbs are as easy to grow indoors as most house plants, with good care.

"Practically all of them prefer a cooler temperature than the average home. I have an English temperament, and I prefer a cooler home. When I go to a home where it's 80 degrees, I will, just as a plant will.

"Rosemary has to have its leaves springed once a week, and prefers to be watered from the bottom.

"You can grow herbs from cuttings. My lemon verbena began as a cutting and is now several feet tall.

"If you are using the herbs, you really should have two pots. You should feed whatever plants you're cutting with organic fertilizer because you know there are no poisons in it.

"Most herbs will transplant outdoors in the spring."

Mrs. McKenzie says herbs grown indoors are not usually as strong in aroma and flavor as those grown outdoors.

"If I were cutting marjoram or fennel, I would use an extra spoonful."

She says she considers the comparison between dried herbs and fresh herbs a controversial question.

"Every cook book tells you to use half as much dried as fresh. I think you sometimes have to use twice as much. It depends on the herb."

If you are interested in herbs, whether as cook or gardener, Mrs. McKenzie says you should begin by reading.

"Read everything you can find on herbs. The history of them goes back into antiquity. Many of the modern books just repeat one another, but there are some really mesmerizing old books.

"I think people should investigate, and the more you do, the more you read, the more you want to grow."

Her recipe book includes everything from soup to desserts plus preserves and drinks and some general hints on using herbs.

A lemon, orange and mint essence calls for: 2½ cups water, 2 cups granulated sugar or 1 cup honey, juice of 6 lemons, grated rind of 2 lemons, juice of 2 oranges, grated rind of 1 orange, 3 handfuls of mint, 1 handful of lemon balm or lemon verbena leaves.

Boil water and sugar or honey together for 10 minutes. Add the juice and rind of lemons and oranges and boil again for 5 minutes. Pour over mint and lemon balm or Cover closely and let stand for 2 hours. Strain through a sieve lined with fine cheesecloth. Keep refrigerated. Dilute to taste with water and ice.

Her book, sponsored by the Southern Ontario unit of The Herb Society of America, costs $1.85. It will be available in some book stores or at P.O. Box 141, King City, Ontario.

Blazer and Skirt A Popular Ensemble For Fall

NEW YORK (CP) — Fall '71 will probably go down in fashion history as the blazer season.

Blazers dominated most of the collections.

Many were in the traditional double-breasted style worn by cricketers and by pupils in England's public schools. It stands for the Establishment. Its reform will be a counterbalance to the way-out kicky costume party that has passed as fashion in the last few years.

Of course, there are modifications to the blazer look. Some have broadened shoulders; others have shaped waistlines.

But the blazer is back, a forerunner of the return of the well-dressed, more mature woman. She won't have to compete with her daughter this fall.

Blazers were seen in every fabric from wool and satin to suede and fake fur. They topped matching and contrast fabrics in both dresses and skirts with knit tops or shirts.

Adele Simpson combined two of fall's top fashions in one blazer outfit, using the new carpet or rug pattern in a velveteen blazer over a matte jersey dress, one of fall's most popular fabrics. Another of her blazers, in a bright red wool, was teamed with a red-and-plum checked knee-length dress.

Checks and plaids appeared with blazers in many collections, in both knee length and long dresses. Often the skirts were pleated.

Black blazers topped Anne Klein's green-plaid dress and Suzy Perette's red-edged style that matched the dress underneath. Pat Sandler used blazing red for a blazer worn over a red-ribbed sweater top and pleated skirt. Kimberly even introduced red-knit blazers to top a black-and-white tweed skirt with skimpy sweater top and also a black-ribbed dress. He also elongated the blazer into a coat, in a black-and-white houndstooth check.

This blazer coat look also was found in several collections. Calvin Klein showed it in knee-length weather-treated black velvet and also in grey flannel worn over matching pleated skirt, with grey-suede boots.

Klein is fond of blazers. One suede style barely topped short green pants. To the outfit was added a red knit turtle-neck sweater, one of the new tight-knit caps pulled close around the face, and plaid socks. He also showed a mock broadtail blazer and wrap skirt. And there was a fitted little double-breasted blazer in a quilted print worn over smooth warm pants, by La Plaque de Paris, a division of Cuddlecoat.

In Canada, Miss Sun Valley included a blazer in a co-ordinated wool print in a diamond pattern with chevron pockets. The other items were hot pants, knickers, skirt and long pants.

Gino Charles likes a pale pink-and-black tapestry blazer over a knee-length, waist-cinched black chiffon dress. Morton Myles, designer for Malcolm Charles, combined a velvet blazer and shorts, studded with gold stars and worn with a gold sweater.

Sequins are back in fashion and Charles introduced a red sequin blazer worn over a low-cut dress in wool crepe. In Jerry Silverman's collection, a white satin blazer tops both a short and long-matching and slit-front dress. And for casual evening elegance, Bill Blass likes an ankle-length plaid dress with a red-velvet blazer.

MISS JOANNE GAIL McNEIL, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brice A. McNeil, Trenton graduated on September 14 from the Women's College Hospital School of Nursing, Toronto, at graduation exercises held at Convocation Hall, University of Toronto. Miss McNeil who graduated from Trenton High School has accepted a position on the staff of the Trenton Memorial Hospital. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. Andrew Knott Sr., Belleville.

Fewer on Welfare

TORONTO (CP) — The number of persons receiving welfare benefits in Metropolitan Toronto dropped to 58,534 in June from 58,765 in May. The decrease—third in as many months—was announced by Controller Paul Godfrey of suburban North York, chairman of Metro's social services committee.

Brazilian Designer's Collection Based on Birds, Butterflies and Flowers

NEW YORK (AP) — Brazilian fashion designer Zuzu Angel, who dresses such stars as Joan Crawford, Kim Novak and Margot Fonteyn, had decided last spring to present a collection based on birds, butterflies and flowers.

But when her son Stuart disappeared after allegedly being tortured by Brazilian air force police, she embroidered cages over the birds, depicted cannon balls shooting "angels," and sewed on military caps and scrawny-looking children with black doves.

Miss Angel, who showed the dresses Monday night at the home of the Brazilian consul in New York, called it "the world's first political fashion collection."

For the last three months Zuleika Angel Jones—her real name—has been trying to discover what happened to her son Stuart, 26. He was born of her marriage with Norman demanded a government inAngel Jones, a Canadian brought up in Plymouth, Mass., and a naturalized American.

A Brazilian congressman vestigation after a top lawyer said Jones died in prison due to torture.

Brazilian police and armed forces maintain that Jones, a Brazilian citizen accused of subversive activitiie against the government, was never arrested and is still presumably at large.

Lawyer Helenlo Pragoso said last month in a letter to the Brazilian Human Rights Commission that members of the Brazilian air force arrested Jones in May, beat him in a Rio jail, tied him to a jeep and dragged him before taking his body off on a stretcher.

"I decided to put two and two together and transmit the message in my dresses," Miss Angel explained in an interview.

Zuzu Angel made her first impact in the United States last year when a major New York department store—Bergdorff Goodman—bought her entire collection.

Miss Angel has become Brazil's best-known designer in the last decade. She dressed Rio's beautiful people and was soon cutting clothes for the country's first lady.

One aspect of Electrohome value is most certainly the large selection of elegant stylings from which to choose. FOR THOSE TO WHOM THERE IS NO CHOICE BUT PERFECTION

Consider the question of balance. Should one select a console on the basis of cabinetry that quietly exerts itself as the focus of attention in any setting? Or must one trust a sense of sound, a perception of stereo performance that sweeps throughout the room in eerie realism?
Consider the question answered . . . by the Electrohome Connoisseur Collection of unchallenged stereo perfection. All models reflect the seldom-seen devotion of the true cabinet craftsmen. Every surface is lovingly hand-rubbed not once . . . but several times to create a warmth and glow no mere machine can duplicate . . . then finished with Duradeil to seal the beauty against accidental bumps and scrapes.
Outside, everything is Olde World in tradition and design. But within we discover tomorrow!
The Sheridan features a powerful yet refined 125-watt AM-FM stereo chassis and all new Dual 1214 automatic changer with exclusive magnetic cartridge. Control panel and changer are angly fitted within a new co-ordinated moulded interior. Cementmen Go Down Swinging at Builders

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Point Anne went down swinging, in more ways than one last night, as Rollins edged the Cementmen 3-2 to capture the Commercial Softball League championship.

A scuffle broke out in the ninth inning when Point Anne's Bruce Stickle stole second base with both benches clearing as players joined in the minor melee. Gerald Maher of Point Anne and Rollins' Wayne McTaggart were ejected from the game for their part in the proceedings.

While both teams managed to make a few connections in the fight, neither were making much progress against the offerings of Scott Reid and Don Holoway.

Reid whiffed 15 Cementmen to record a two - hit victory for Rollins, after dropping a pair of earlier decisions to Point Anne in the series. Holoway was tagged with his first loss of the finals despite a six - hit effort. He struck nine batters, while neither hurler walked a batter.

Defensive lapses accounted for virtually all the scoring before the contest settled into a pitching duel.

The losers drew first blood by plating a pair of unearned runs in the opening frame. Eric Maher led off the inning with a triple and two subsequent infield errors accounted for Point Anne's only markers.

First baseman Dale Duvall pulled Rollins to a one - run deficit in the second inning when he crashed a solo homer down the right field line.

Some heads-up base running by Paul Goodfellow helped knot the score in the third inning. The lanky shortstop lined a double to left field and kept right on running as the throw came into second base. A wild throw to third in an attempt to nip Goodfellow allowed him to come all the way home on the hit.

Point Anne's only other scoring threat came in the bottom of the ninth when Stickle smacked a single for the second and final hit off Reid. A walk to Mike Cook put the potential winning run on base for Point Anne before the Rollins hurler snuffed out the rally by recording the final two outs.

Duvall supplied the bulk of the Rollins' offence with a homer and two singles, driving in two of the winners' three runs. Goodfellow added a double to the output, in addition to providing the game's defensive highlight by ranging into left field in the seventh inning to make an over-the-shoulder grab of Holoway's base hit attempt. McTaggart and Ralph Plaice had the other safeties for the winners.

The new league champions will be presented with their awards at the league banquet to be held Saturday, Oct. 9 at the Royal Canadian Legion hall on Pinnacle Street. Tickets are $7 per couple and are available from Vern Whalen at 968-9618.

Point Anne	200 000 000—2 3 2

'Just Checking'

Point Anne first baseman Vern Whalen makes sure that Paul Goodfellow touches the base in the final game of the Commercial Softball League playoffs last night. The Rollins shortstop not only touched first, but second, third and home on the play displaying some alert base running to tie the score at 2-2. Rollins went on to record a 3-2 victory to give them the league championship four games to two.

BCI Had Enough Gas

The BCI juniors stepped on the gas and the Collegiate seniors ran out of gas, but both Belleville teams managed to come up with Bay of Quinte COSSA football opening wins.

The seniors opened up an 18-8 lead over Picton at halftime, but were forced to scramble to hold onto an 18-16 victory. "It was conditioning", was how BCI coach Bill Miller explained his team's second half collapse, "we were just walking out there in the final quarter."

John Ross and John Tracy were two Collegians who were running on the first half as Ross scampered 65 yards on an end sweep for a touchdown and Tracy added another major on a 25 - yard off - tackle carry. The other BCI score came on a six - yard plunge by Rick Bell.

Rookie quarterback Peter LeBaron played a strong offensive game for the winners while tackle Jeff Rae, linebacker John Roblin and corner back Rick Bell were the defensive standouts.

In the junior game the Collegians dominated play building a 18-0 half-time lead before going on to a 36-8 decision.

Quarterback Ross Simonds paced the scoring with a touchdown and a pair of two-point conversions, with the other majors going to Phil Harvey, Steve Rodrigues and Barry Van Zoren. Mark Walmsley added the other two points on a conversion.

The Junior Collegians face their big test of the season next Tuesday when they clash with the defending champion Moira Trojans.

Cosy Gals Grip Final Series Lead

Cosy Grill squeezed past Weese's Flowers last night, leaving the regular season pennant winners facing an even tighter squeeze if they hope to avoid playoff elimination. The 4-3 victory by Cosy gave them a 3-0 grip on the best - of - seven championship set.

Sandra Claus fired six - hit ball for the winners to record her third consecutive win of the series. She walked five batters and managed one strikeout. Donna Brunt was tagged with 10 hits on the losers' mound.

Verna Hill led the way for Cosy with two triples and a single, while Sharon Francis rapped a pair of doubles and a base hit. Other safeties for the winners went to Pat Robson, Sheila Ray and Dorothy Caverly.

The fourth game in the series is scheduled for tonight at the Alemite Park starting at 6.30 p.m.

Quinte Sweep no Snap

Quinte Secondary School managed to "set up" Trenton and Ontario School for the Deaf for a high school volleyball sweep but not before OSD was able to throw a scare into the winners.

The Quinte seniors found their toughest going in the second game against OSD finally emerging with a 15-13 victory in the hotly-contested bout. The Quinte juniors managed to sweep both Trenton and OSD to win their section.

Golden Milers Win Second Crown

Golden Mile peewees are two - for - one in the title department this season, coming up with their second championship of 1971 last night. The Belleville team stopped Thurlow Fosters 8-4 to add the Bay of Quinte championship to their city title.

Paul Weeks hurled five innings of no-hit ball for the winners before giving way to Brian Lovelace who yielded two safeties to the losers. Between them the winning hurlers fanned 12 batters and walked six. Brian Masterson and Randy Adams were touched for nine hits in absorbing the loss.

Andy Lapenette led the Milers with a homer and single while Stan Hymers chipped in a pair of singles. Other hits went to Scott Bowen, Steve Mott, Simon Bennett, Gary Stapley and Ed Stewart. Masterson and Sandy Waterson had the only Thurlow safeties.

Harness Entry Had Lots of Horsepower

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — There was an unexpected entry in the first race at Garden City Raceway Tuesday night —an old grey car.

As the nine trotters began to line up behind the starting gate, the car appeared along the outside rail facing the nine horses.

The car headed across the track in front of the starting gate passing the startled drivers and trotters. A few of the drivers backed their trotters off to make sure they were not hit.

The driver drove slowly around most of the five-eighth-mile oval track before pulling out through an opening in the outside rail.

Defensive Battle?

Denson Misses Stamp Game

MONTREAL (CP) — Tonight's Canadian Football League encounter between Calgary Stampeders and Montreal Alouettes shapes up to be a defensive struggle—the kind which will bring John Helton's name to mind by the time the smoke clears.

It used to be that mere mention of a game with the Stampeders would bring up the name of middle linebacker Wayne Harris, the outstanding defensive star.

Harris is still around but the name which instills respect in the rookies of opposing linemen is Helton, a giant defensive tackle.

"The best in the country," says Montreal centre Gene Ceppetelli, "and that's saying a lot."

"People are always referring to someone as the best in the country and they forget it covers a lot of ground.

"But, with the possible exception of Regina's Ed McQuarters, there isn't anybody who comes close to him like Helton," he said.

The tape protects an extended knee ligament that some people thought might keep him out of tonight's contest and Saturday's confrontation with the Toronto Argonauts.

"It'll be all right, just one of those silly injuries that come from getting kicked by a lineman falling away from the play," the big tackle said.

The Montreal camp was quiet Tuesday after running through a brisk final workout for the game to be televised nationaly by the CTV network.

Kickoff time is 8:05 p.m. EDT.

Coach Sam Etcheverry decided to keep Moses Denson on the 30-day injury list and will go with backs Bill Massey and Bruce Van Ness.

Etcheverry said Denson was ready to play even though his injured ankle is still not 100 per cent.

"If it were a playoff game or something, that is the way I would have gone," Etcheverry said.

"But, if we cut a player now he'll be picked up and we'll be out a running back.

"Then if Moses got hurt again we'd really be up the creek—this is no time to be breaking in an import running back."

Argos Can't Satisfy Fans

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts have lost their initial bid to mollify ticket-starved fans.

General manager John Barrow said Tuesday the club had tried but failed to have Saturday's Canadian Football League game between Calgary Stampeders and the Argos shown on closed-circuit television here.

Negotiating with networks, the Canadian National Exhibition, importing equipment from the United States, renting, clearing lines with Bell Telephone and printing tickets were some of the details that threw Argos for a loss, Barrow explained.

The Argonauts, who have won seven games and lost two in lead the Eastern Conference this season, have been playing to capacity crowds.

Off and Pedalling

Crowds line the streets in Montreal Tuesday to watch the start of the bicycle marathon "Tour de la Nouvelle France" comprising 48 European riders. The five-day 550-mile race through Quebec province will stop overnight in Drummondville, 98 miles away. (CP Wirephoto)

Cyclists Enter Second Stage

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que. (CP) — Roger de Vlaeminck goes into today's second stage of the five-day Tour de la Nouvelle France with an 11-second lead and a promise that he will win North America's first all-professional cross-country bicycle race.

The 24-year-old native of Eekio, Belgium, and member of the Mars-Flandria team, covered Tuesday's 98.1-mile Montreal-Drummondville lap of the race in three hours and 41 seconds but was awarded a 20-second bonus which cut his time to 3:40.21.

During the tour, the 48 European contestants will vie for bonus seconds and money during each lap. Each sprint winner will receive five bonus seconds and a cash prize.

Winners of the final sprints to the finish wire of each stage will receive 20 bonus seconds with the second-place finisher picking up 10 seconds and the third-place finisher six.

Another Belgian, Guido Reybroeck, 29, a member of Italy's Salvarini team, finished second with a time of 3:00.33 while Jan Janssen of the Netherlands placed third with 3:00.37.

Bombers Share Glory

TORONTO (CP) — Although quarterback Don Jonas of Winnipeg Blue Bombers is commanding considerable attention as scoring leader of the Western Football Conference, he may soon have to share some of the glory with a team-mate.

Western Football Conference statistics, released this week, show that Herron has returned 28 kickoffs for 791 yards. The single season CFL record is 32 set by Calgary Stampeders' Pete Thodos in 1952. Dave Ramsey, now with Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Conference, holds the yardage record of 930, set with Winnipeg Blue Bombers in 1908.

Jonas's 88-point scoring total was built on three touchdowns, 29 converts, 12 field goals and eight singles.

Gendron Paces Flyers To Third Straight Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Philadelphia Flyers and Pittsburgh Penguins are dominating their rivals in National Hockey League pre-season exhibition games.

Flyers and Penguins each scored their third consecutive victories Tuesday night as Philadelphia defeated Buffalo Sabres 9-1 and Pittsburgh beat California Golden Seals 4-2.

In another game, Vancouver Canucks downed Los Angeles Kings 3-1.

Jean-Guy Gendron was the hero of the Flyers' win over the Sabres before 3,000 fans at Ottawa. He scored four goals, one into an empty net after Buffalo coach Punch Imlach lifted his goalie with 30 seconds remaining.

Other Philadelphia snipers were Bill Lesuk, Frank Spring, Jim Johnson, Bob Kelly and Larry Wright. Richard Martin netted Buffalo's only goal on a third-period breakaway.

At Oshawa, Ont., Bob Leiter paced Penguins with two goals. Rene Robert and Bob Birdsell scored one each. Bob Sheehan and Gary Croteau tallied for the Seals.

JEAN-GUY GENDRON

Vancouver goals were scored by Mike Corrigan, Murray Hall and Wayne Maki. Ross Lonsberry got the only goal for Los Angeles before 4,200 Edmonton fans.

Meanwhile, in off-ice activity, NHL president Clarence Campbell said in Montreal he had been asked by the management of the Seals to investigate a trade made recently with Chicago Black Hawks.

The California club is asking that the trade which saw goalie Garry Smith go to Chicago in return for goalie Gerry Desjardins, forward Gerry Pinder and minor league forward Kerry Bond be declared void.

The Seals claim Desjardins reported with an arm injury.

"I'll have to get the facts from both teams as to what the deal was," Campbell said. "Then I'll have to find out if I have any jurisdiction in a matter of this sort."

At London, Ont., Boston Bruins coach Tom Johnson said defenceman Ted Green has a groin injury and will miss Boston's next two exhibition games. Centre Phil Esposito also is a doubtful starter for tonight's game against New York Rangers at Kitchener, Ont.

Esposito has cramps in the rib cage and has been sent to hospital for x-rays, Johnson said. Green was injured Monday during an exhibition game against Montreal Canadiens in Halifax.

Falls Suffers First Loss

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — St. Catharines Black Hawks defeated Niagara Falls Flyers 4-0 in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A exhibition game Tuesday.

It was the first loss for the Flyers in three pre-season games and the second victory in five games for the Black Hawks.

The Flyers outshot the Black Hawks 28-19.

HAMILTON (CP) — Skip Fosbery, centre for Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, scored three goals Tuesday to lead his team to a 5-3 win over Hamilton Red Wings in a pre-season game.

For Hamilton, Willie Wing, Dave Murphy and John Heffren each scored one goal.

Tuesday's win was the fourth straight for Peterborough in six pre-season games. Hamilton has won two of its five.

WELLAND (CP) — Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series downed Welland Sabres of the Southern OHA Junior A 10-3 in an exhibition game Tuesday.

Brawlers Pay Price

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Clar-Ontario Hockey Association, announce Schmalz, president of the nounced fines totalling $675 Tuesday and one-game suspensions to the coaches of London Knights and Kitchener Rangers after a fight during a game here Saturday.

There were 50 penalties for a total of 376 minutes during the three-four 45-minute game which saw both player benches emptied during a melee in the third period. A crowd of 2,000, mostly children, watched the OHA Junior A series exhibition game.

Coaches Bronco Horvath of London and Ron Murphy of Kitchener were fined $50 each and suspended from the teams Oct. 8 game at Kitchener.

McNally Tames Yankees for Fourth Straight 20-win Season

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dave McNally, veteran left-hander of Baltimore Orioles, tamed the New York Yankees 8-0 on five hits Tuesday night for his 20th victory of the season.

McNally, the winningest pitcher in Oriole history with 134 victories, is the first American League pitcher to win at least 20 games in four consecutive seasons since the Yanks' Red Ruffing did it from 1936-39.

And the Orioles' southpaw did it this year despite missing 38 days of the season because of an inflamed muscle in his pitching arm.

The Orioles' victory, coupled with Detroit Tigers' 3-2 10-inning loss to Boston Red Sox, reduced Baltimore's title-clinching number to three over the second-place Tigers. The Orioles lead Detroit by 7½ games. They have eight games remaining to the Tigers' seven.

Meanwhile, Oakland Athletics, having already wrapped up the West title, lost a fight-marred twi-night doubleheader with Chicago White Sox, the White Sox winning the opener 5-1 and the second game 6-2.

Washington Senators trounced Cleveland Indians 9-1 before the league's owners approved the moving of their franchise to the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

Kansas City Royals defeated California Angels 6-2 and Milwaukee Brewers downed Minnesota Twins 4-2.

McNally, 20-5, moved the Orioles closer toward clinching the East championship by shackling the Yankees on seven strikeouts and only one walk. Paul Blair's fourth-inning homer gave the Orioles an early lead.

They added three runs in the eighth on Andy Etchebarren's bases-loaded single and Dave Johnson's steal of home.

Boston dimmed Detroit's slim title hopes, edging the Tigers on Luis Aparicio's run-scoring single in the 10th. The hit scored rookie Cecil Cooper, who had led off the inning with a pinch single and was sacrificed to second.

The fight in the Oakland-Chicago doubleheader erupted with one out in the White Sox' ninth. It was triggered when Chicago pitcher Bart Johnson hit the Oakland's Mike Epstein with a pitch in the eighth. Epstein tossed his bat towards the mound and exchanged angry words with Johnson as he went to first base.

Then, in the ninth, Oakland reliever Rollie Fingers threw a pitch at Johnson. The White Sox pitcher batted the ball towards Epstein at first, Epstein chased Johnson back toward the plate and knocked him down by slamming the ball against his jaw.

Both benches emptied and a wild melee ensued.

In the second game, Carlos May knocked in two runs and Pat Kelly had three RBI, with a pair of singles. Sal Bando cracked his 23rd homer for Oakland.

Only 1,311 fans showed up at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium for Washington to watch the lame-duck Senators beat Cleveland behind the seven-hit pitching of Dick Bosman. Dave Nelson collected three hits, including a homer, drove in two runs and stole two bases for the Senators.

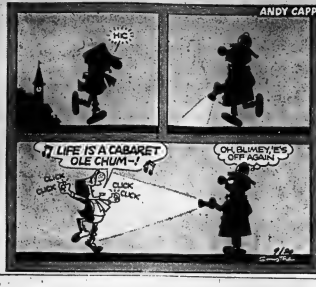
Dick Drago posted his 17th victory, most by a Kansas City pitcher in one season, checking the Angels on seven hits.

Johnny Briggs' two homers powered Milwaukee past Minnesota. The Twins' Harmon Killebrew hit his 29th homer of the season and 618th lifetime, pulling him into sole possession of seventh place on the all-time list, one ahead of Ernie Banks and Eddie Mathews.

Senators Leave Capital in Lurch

BOSTON (AP) — Owner Bob Short and his financially-troubled Washington Senators are headed for the lush Dallas-Forth Worth area and the nation's capital faces a lack of major league baseball for the first year since 1961.

Short, who claims to have lost $3 million since he purchased the club for a reported $9.4 million in 1968, won the fight to move late Tuesday night as American League owners voted 10 to 2 in his favor, with only Baltimore Orioles and Chicago White Sox opposed.



League president Joe Cronin, who as a young player-manager led Washington to its last pennant in 1933, announced the action after a 13-hour meeting of owners, their top aides, attorneys and baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

The transfer marked the second time in a decade that Washington has been voted out of baseball.

However, after the franchise moved to Minnesota in 1961, the league found another club for the capital by expanding.

Cronin said the transfer was conditional, but that merely appeared to be a formality.

The conditions include expansion of Turnpike Stadium in Arlington, between Dallas and Fort Worth, in the next two years and indemnity payment to the Texas League for displacement of the Dallas-Forth Worth Spurs.

Giants Cling to Slender Lead

San Francisco Giants and Los Angeles Dodgers continue to play like broken records, spinning around in circles and going nowhere fast.

It is possible Atlanta Braves can still waltz away with the National League's Western Title, considering the way the Giants and Dodgers have been playing lately.

The Giants held on to a 1½-game lead over the Dodgers in the West despite themselves as they lost their 13th game in the last 16, a 3-1 decision to Houston Astros Tuesday night.

The Dodgers also continued their inept play as they dropped a 9-3 contest to Cincinnati Reds for their fifth loss in seven games.

The third-place Braves, meanwhile, kept their dim title hopes alive with a 5-2 victory over San Diego Padres. The Braves moved within two games of Francisco and in order to win the West, must take all their remaining six contests while hoping the Giants lose their last eight and the Dodgers slump badly.

In another top National League game, St. Louis Cardinals beat Pittsburgh Pirates 6-4 as the Pirates failed for the second time to nail the East Division pennant. The Pirates still need just one victory to clinch the title.

Elsewhere, Chicago Cubs downed New York Mets 3-0 and Philadelphia Phillies whipped Montreal Expos 5-4 in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader before losing the night-cap 4-0.

Rookie catcher Larry Howard was the difference for Houston, lashing a two-run, tie-breaking homer in the seventh inning off San Francisco starter John Cumberland.

Cincinnati's Lee May smashed Los Angeles with a home run and double, good for five runs batted in.

Hank Aaron's 46th home run, a career high, plus a two-run shot by Darrell Evans and a solo blast by Ralph Garr led Atlanta over San Diego.

Rookie Burt Hooton pitched a two-hitter and Ron Santo ripped his 300th career homer as Chicago beat New York. Pitcher Billy Champion capped a five-run seventh with a two-run double as Philadelphia beat Montreal in the opener and Bob Bailey knocked in four runs to bring the Expos the second-game victory.

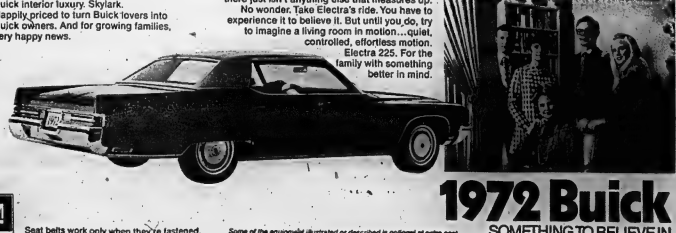
The 1972 Buicks: cars for people with something better in mind.

The 1972 Buicks have a great deal in common with every Buick built in the past 69 years. You might call it engineering integrity; a preoccupation with excellence. And over the years it's made Buick a car to admire. Now, with our model lineup ranging from the modestly-priced Skylark to the incredibly luxurious Electra 225, just about every new car buyer can own a Buick.

Take our most popular full-size Buick, the LeSabre. Three-speed Turbo Hydra-Matic transmission, power front disc brakes and variable ratio power steering are all standard. And Buick-pioneered exclusives like nickel-plated exhaust valves, a semi-closed cooling system, and more.

If you have something better in mind this year, see the 1972 Buicks. They're something to believe in.



Centurion The 1972 Buick Centurion. A clean, personal car with spirited styling. It has our biggest engine, the 455-cubic-inch V8 that runs on low-lead, no-lead or regular gasoline. It has Buick's traditional comfortable ride, but its stability comes from AccuDrive, Buick's suspension system that helps take bumpy roads, tight curves, even heavy crosswinds with ease. Centurion. For people who like the personal car idea. But also have families who need room.

Skylark The Buick that makes it possible for younger families to move up to a Buick much sooner than they could ever have imagined. And because Skylark is a Buick, it doesn't shortchange you on the things you expect to find. Like a 350-cubic-inch V8 as standard equipment. Buick's exclusive semi-closed cooling system that should never overheat. And, of course, traditional Buick interior luxury. Skylark. Happily priced to turn Buick lovers into Buick owners. And for growing families, very happy news.

Electra 225 Once you've owned one, there just isn't anything else that measures up. No wonder. Take Electra's ride. You have to experience it to believe it. But until you do, try to imagine a living room in motion...quiet, controlled, effortless motion. Electra 225. For the family with something better in mind.

Camaro—it's everything a sports car should be, plus it has four seats. Camaro clings on corners. Handles beautifully. And when you hit the straight-away you'll know Camaro has all the power you need. Camaro. You can tailor it just the way you want. Camaro. Closest thing to a 'Vette yet.

Kingswood Estate Wagon

'72 Kingswood Estate

When you look at a wagon, you always look at the tailgate. Take an extra look at ours. It's different. Turn the key and the rear window automatically glides into the roof. Another turn and the counterbalanced gate drops down, and slides under the floor with one easy push. (Or you can even order a power gate). This is the tailgate for people who think a tailgate only gets in the way. It's the same with the rest of the Kingswood Estate wagon—good ideas and good engineering. And the luxury look outside. It's hard to believe this much wagon sells at a Chevrolet kind of price.

'72 Impala

The '72 Impala adds a lot to your driving. By taking away the strain of manoeuvring with standard power steering. By putting standard power disc brakes up front. By making the Turbo-Hydra-matic automatic transmission standard with any V8. By putting, at each wheel, a big coil spring that's been computer-matched to your particular Impala's weight. And the beautiful thing about the looks of an Impala—is that it looks like an Impala. Beautiful.

DELAWARE, Ohio (CP) — Two Canadian-owned colts drew into separate division of Thursday's $102,954 Little Brown Jug, premier three-year-old pacing classic held annually at the fairgrounds here.

Airy Way, normally trained and driven by co-owner John Hayes of Oshawa, will be driven from the rail post position in the first division by Keith Waples of Durham, Ont., a veteran driver whose lifetime win total is approaching 2,500.

Albatrops, beaten only once in 17 starts this year, is the favorite but drew the outside post in the second division.

Albatrops has partial Canadian interest in the fact that Ted and Elgin Armstrong of Brampton are members of the syndicate which earlier this year bought the outstanding three-year-old for $1.25 million.

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — Wimbledon Champion Evonne Goolagong of Australia will not compete on the United States winter tennis circuit and was never offered $50,000 to complete, her coach said today.

Vic Edwards said Miss Goolagong was committed to the Australian circuit and would play only in tournaments approved by the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia.

Commenting on reports that Miss Goolagong had been offered $50,000 to play in the U.S., Edwards said he had been misquoted.

TORONTO (CP) — Bob McKillop of Kitchener Panthers, who had an outstanding record as both a pitcher and hitter, Tuesday was named the Most Valuable Player for 1971 in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League.

McKillop's 4-0 won-lost pitching record and his .367 batting average helped lead Kitchener to the league title and championship playoff.

McKillop had a 1.85 earned-run average. His batting average was fourth-highest in the league and his 30 runs-batted-in tied him for the league lead in that category. McKillop was used as a catcher as well as a pitcher.

Osborne's batting average of .358 was the fifth-best in the league.

QUEBEC (CP) — Camille Henry, a former forward with New York Rangers and St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League, has been appointed recreation director of the nearby town of Villeneuve. Henry, 35, retired as a player two seasons ago and coached Kansas City Blues of the Central Hockey League for part of last season.

Wrong Tier For Lupe

City junior hockey product Dancy Lupenetta is trying out for Cornwall Royals, as Tuesday's Intelligencer reported.

However, the Royals are listed by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association as a Tier One" Junior team, not "Tier Two" as erroneously stated.

Warlocks Repeat Feat

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Windsor Warlocks captured their second Canadian Senior B lacrosse championship in a row here Tuesday night by defeating Burnaby Kekanoes 12-8.

The victory, before a crowd of 2,987, gave the Warlocks a 4-1 victory in the best-of-seven series.

Joe McCrea, on loan from the Owen Sound North Stars, scored two goals and two assists and ties. The referees should have assists for the Warlocks aginst the injury-riddled Kekanoes.

Regulars Soben Gill, Jack Barclay, Don Boyd, Art Dickerson, and Verne Bahrer were out of the Burnaby lineup with injuries and Rick Little played despite a bruised hip.

Burnaby coach Jack Dale criticized the refereeing of Ontario Lacrosse Association officials who handled the game, calling Tuesday's game "the worst-refereed game in a poorly-refereed series."

"The referees were un out by giving us all those cheap penalties. The referees should have been wearing green uniforms (Windsor colors)."

Burnaby trailed 2-1 early in the game, then came back to tie the score twice in the second period, but Windsor put the game out of reach by outscoring the Kokanee's 5-2 in the third period.

Windsor became only the second team in the eight-year history of the national Senior B final to win the President's Cup twice in a row, Brantford Warriors, this year's Mann Cup champions, won in 1967-68.

Bruce Belland, Ken Ouellette, Chuck Almilie, Joe Krasnaj, Mido Martincllo, Darrogh Scollard, Ron Pither, Thom Vion and Brian Thompson added a goal each for Windsor.

Pete Backs to Wall

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Peterborough, Ont., POCs have their backs to the wall as they approach the sixth game of the Minto Cup Canadian junior lacrosse final here tonight.

The eastern outfit trails Richmond, B.C., Roadrunners 3-2 in games and must win tonight if they are to stay alive in what has been the most entertaining Minto Cup series seen in the West in recent memory.

The series has been a battle of the goaltenders with the exception of the second game, which Richmond won 18-6.

Foreman Finishes Fight in Two Rounds

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — George Foreman, the No. 1 heavyweight contender, needed less than two rounds to defeat Leroy Caldwell of New Orleans Tuesday night in a scheduled 10-round fight. Foreman, 21, the 1968 Olympic gold medal winner, knocked out Caldwell, 182, with a flurry of lefts and rights to the head and body at 1:54 of the second round.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Classy little Donnie Fadzane of Montreal outslugged Dennis Riggs of Jacksonville Tuesday night to take a unanimous decision in a 10-round middleweight boxing match. Fadzano, 22-year-old former Canadian welterweight champion who has moved up to the middleweight division, came out of the fight with a 24-3 record, and Riggs now is 25-18-1.

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Dave Downey of Halifax will defend his Canadian middleweight boxing title Nov. 26 at Halifax against Johnn Louw of Edmonton, it was announced Tuesday by R. B. (Dick) Pearson, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Professional Boxing Federation. Pearson said the federation had sanctioned a 12-round bout.

Coho Need Cold

TORONTO (CP) — The coho salmon—and salmon-watchers —are waiting for a crisp, frosty night to start the fall spawning run.

Al Wahlo of the department of lands and forests, with several university students, has a coho watch on the Credit River. The workers will tag fish and check weight, length and lamprey scars in the run upstream from Lake Ontario.

As yet, there has been only a trickle of coho heading upstream to spawn.

"It's the temperatures, all right. Not cold enough yet—that's what slowed them down," said Mr. Wahlo.

"I expect about 2,000 coho to come up this fall, 800 more than last year. We've tallied 190 so far."

Coho plantings of 100,000 salmon smelt in 1969 in the Credit and Humber rivers and Bronte Creek were made to establish a fishery in Lake Ontario.

The lamprey scars on the fish observed to date are no worse than last year, Mr. Wahlo said.

"We expect the stream treatment program carried out this spring to kill lamprey will start to show some effect next fall."

The lamprey will not be eradicated by the treatment, Mr. Wahlo said, but it is hoped they will be controlled. Lampreys have virtually eliminated lake trout in the Great Lakes.

Some of the coho have poor memories and forget in which stream they were planted and should return for spawning.

Because they are hatchery fish "the memory inspires me where we planted them isn't too strong," Mr. Wahlo said. "But wait until their young start coming back—they'll know."

UC Seeks Abortion Regulation Revisions

TORONTO (CP) — The United Church of Canada has repeated its call for an extensive change in Canadian abortion laws in a booklet released today and titled Abortion.

It calls for abolition of the hospital committee system, but stops short of endorsing abortion on demand. It maintains that "abortion under any circumstance is a serious and moral issue," but says that the woman involved must play a major role in the final decision.

The long-range answer to the abortion problem, it says, is contraception. The booklet contains a strong call for the church to exercise a "courageous witness" by declaring that birth control is "a Christian duty" if a child is not wanted.

It says "limiting access to abortion is an ineffective, immoral and socially disastrous way of maintaining standards of sexual morality."

Taking a long-range look at the whole question, the United Church comes out strongly in favor of the widespread distribution of birth-control information, sex education in the schools, and provision for sterilization for those who request it.

Also rejected is the traditional Catholic view that the foetus "from the moment of conception is a human being. Rather, the foetus is viewed as being a potential human being in its early stages.

The United Church says its view and that of the Roman Catholic Church may not be as irreconcilable as they appear.

"Our assertion that embryonic human life has value, and that abortion thus is always a moral issue, provides some point of contact with traditional Roman Catholic thought."

8 Charges Laid

TORONTO (CP) — Eight charges of fraud were laid Tuesday against John Edward Taylor, 61, of Toronto, involving $15,000 in office supplies and furniture billed to the Ontario Educational Communications Authority.

Taylor was arrested last week on a theft charge. A provincial police spokesman said the charges against Taylor relate to funds issued to him by the authority, which runs Channel 19 in Toronto. Taylor is an employee of the Ontario Housing Corp.

LAST DITCH by John Winspear

The British people in 1940 after the collapse of Europe, were left to face alone the Nazi onslaught. Only a narrow stretch of water divided them from the continent and day and night the battle for the Channel was waged. This is the story of the men in the little ships: Motor torpedo boats, gun boats, destroyers. Among the many scenes of action are the evacuation from Dunkirk, the relentless shelling of convoys and the raid on Dieppe.

ACCIDENTAL AGENT BY John Goldsmith

This story of John Goldsmith's adventures as an SOE agent in France during the Second World War leaves any spy novel far behind. They are all here — moonlight rendezvous, hair-breadth escapes, torture and retribution. Goldsmith found himself in the world of espionage almost by accident; at the war's end he was the possessor of two British and four French decorations.

THE STORY OF PEARLS by Shohei Shirai

The process of culturing pearls developed in Japan 74 years ago and has grown into an industry exporting countless beautiful gems to the nations of the world. Nevertheless, little was known to the general public about the methods used. In relating the story, the author discusses the history of pearls and their fame as ornaments, the most noted of the world's great pearls, the way pearls are processed, and finally how they are combined with precious metals and stones to create jewels of great beauty and value.

BIRD AMBULANCE by Arlie Thomes

In this delightful book, Mrs. Thomas, a volunteer with one of the bird-saving corps of the Audubon Society, describes some of the birds and small creatures she has nursed. Her "ambulance" is a cardboard carton which has carried a variety of patients and their personalities and behavior are described with humor as well as special methods of treatment which have been improvised.

ESCAPE ROUTE GREEN by Warren Tute

Mr. Tute has turned from fiction to a true-life escape story. In 1943 Leonard Green and Angus Paton, disguised as business men, neither of them fluent in German, escaped from a POW camp in Poland. They made it to Sweden and safety, through a combination of cunning, ignorance, and a great deal of luck. Told as a straightforward narrative, there is suspense, humor and human emotion.

WATER, THE WONDER OF LIFE by Rutherford Platt

In this fascinating volume, the immense force, beauty, and significance of water in the origin, development and balance of life. He looks at the jellyfish, cuttlefish, sea squirts and octopuses and finds that they tell much about the evolution of animals right up to man. His chapter on the rel reads like an adventure story. In conclusion Mr. Platt describes the watery richness of North America, tells how it is threatened and how some of the problems are being met.

Island Birds' Future Is Dim

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Thousands of migratory birds may be the chief victims if Canada and the United States fail to settle their territorial dispute over windswept Machias Seal Island.

A lonely 15-acre ridge of granite in the cold Bay of Fundy, the island sparked an official protest by Ottawa last month when Canadian and American fisheries officers clashed over lobster-fishing regulations.

The Maine coast is 10 miles to the west; New Brunswick's Grand Manan Island, 11 miles northeast.

Both countries claim Machias Seal as their own but it isn't mentioned in boundary treaties and ownership is as shrouded as the foggy island itself.

But more important, some claim, is the future of bright-colored birds that flesh along its rocky shores—puffins, Arctic terns, razorbills, leach's petrels, savannah sparrows and laughing gulls.

Jack Russell, 53, one of three Canadian lighthouse keepers on Machias Seal, wants to save the birds from predatory gulls and Bonaparte tourists.

"It doesn't matter who owns the island but it would be a shame for the birds to become extinct just because there's not a bit of money to protect them."

He makes daily trips along the mile-long island to chase away gulls that swoop down on eggs and young birds.

Transport department plans call for a fully-automated lighthouse on Machias Seal within the next few years, meaning the island's three lighthouse keepers will disappear.

David Christie, curator of the New Brunswick Museum's natural science department in Saint John, believes the Canadian wildlife service should put a warden on the island.

"If nothing is done, a new dispute over the ownership of the island will develop, this time not between nations but between bird species," he predicted.

New Engine Wipes Out Pollution

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — Industrialist William P. Lear said Monday he has achieved "a breakthrough" which should permit perfection of a nearly pollution-free vapor turbine automobile engine by the end of the year.

Lear, developer of the Lear Jet, who said he is spending $30 million on his engine experiments, told a Society of Automotive Engineers gathering that his engine would meet the federal government's tough 1976 emission-control standards.

Lear said General Motors is co-operating with him in his efforts to develop his engine and that the Dow Chemical Co. provided a break-through within the last several weeks by perfecting a fluid Lear calls "Learium" which is used instead of water in the engine's vapor generator.

Lear, who once described Learium as "any fluid we end up using," said the brand Learium is similar to a liquid now sold by Dow as a truck antifreeze, but with a different inhibitor.

Pope Will Be 74 This Sunday

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul will be 74 Sunday, one year short of the age at which some Vatican officials believe he may retire.

Rumors that the Pope was considering retirement first cropped up in 1967 when he paid homage to the rough-hewn cell south of Rome where Pope Celestine of the 13th century spent his last years. Celestine has been the only Pope so far to resign.

Looser Ties with U.S. Urged

EDMONTON (CP) — The 156,000-member Canadian Union of Public Employees demanded Tuesday a loosening of economic ties with the United States and the creation of new publicly-owned Canadian industries.

Delegates to the union's annual convention passed a resolution condemning the federal government for allowing Canada to become economically dominated by the U.S.

The resolution said the government's passive acceptance of the recently imposed U.S. surcharge on Canadian exports will result in further unemployment and threaten the country's economic security.

It said Canada's present inflation and unemployment problems are the result of the government's "unenlightened economic policies". The union would actively oppose any attempt to introduce wage guidelines or a wage-price freeze to solve these problems.

The loosening of economic ties with the U.S., expansion of trade with other countries and massive public investment in new Canadian industries, housing, schools and health facilities were put forth as an answer to the problems of inflation and unemployment.

Waiting for Feed

Cypriot farmers line up to get feed grains supplied by the World Food Program, which has supplied a heavy infusion of grains to help start a mixed-farming project sponsored by Cyprus ministry of agriculture and natural resources. Catholics See Role in Solving Indian Problems

EDMONTON (CP) — The Roman Catholic Church can have a valuable role in solving the problems of Canada's Indians and leading the way to better housing for low-income groups, it was agreed Tuesday at a meeting of the Canadian Catholic Conference.

The conference, an association of cardinals, archbishops and bishops, meets twice annually and is preparing this week to send a six-man delegation to the synod beginning in Rome Sept. 29.

Indians and housing were two of the major issues discussed Tuesday at 10 simultaneous workshops, five in English, the others in French.

Delegates, working in groups of seven or eight, agreed that Indians could be helped by development of industries on or near reserves and that church funds might be put to good use as housing loans.

Canada's Indians "are confused and don't know which way to turn," said Most Rev. Fergus O'Grady of Prince George.

This confusion is compounded by "communist groups" and other organizations who lead Indians and Metis astray because these groups are against churches of any kind, he said.

Most Rev. F. A. Marrocco of Peterborough, Ont., said Ottawa's attitude has a bearing on the fact hat although the church wants to keep close to the Indian people "they tend o want to go on their own."

"They're trying to keep the Indians on the reserves doing nothing," said Bishop Marrocco. "How in the name of God can you expect this?"

He admitted the church has a responsibility.

Malaria Ravages Miners

CARACAS (Reuter) — Malaria and yellow fever are ravaging fortune-hunters who have flocked to a million-dollar-a-day diamond strike in the Venezuelan jungles, it was reported Tuesday.

Epidemics of the two diseases have forced the health ministry to impose a 10-day malaria treatment—a course of pills—on all those seeking to find the diamond bonanza near Santo Angel in the state of Bolivar.

Illegal miners from Brazil and Colombia are reported to be discovering precious stones worth almost $1 million every day.

Food prices in the new diamond area have soared, according to mines ministry officials. Later reports claimed "traders" were asking for $10 for a soft drink and miners were paying for their food with diamonds.

Tuesday Night's TV Offers Wide Variety of Shows

NEW YORK (AP) — Network television entertainment on Tuesday nights is a cut above that of most other nights—several pretty good action series, a couple of variety hours, a new movie-for-TV and a doctor show.

Since no one can see all the shows, viewers must make some difficult decisions.

A tough one involves the early evening when ABC's Mod Squad and NBC's Ironside are in head-on competition. This is deliberate programming by NBC-pitting its most popular police action show against ABC's most popular police show. The winner of the rating contest is likely to be CBS's Glen Campbell, with whodunit fans split between two programs of the same genre opposite him.

The singer's second program of the new season looked a lot like his variety hours of last season—lots of singing, a little comedy and brief turns by the guest stars—Bob Hope, the Smothers Brothers and Dionne Warwick.

It is a nice, easy program with unfailing good taste and handsome production value, but also is a little bland.

That dedicated, understanding general practitioner, Marcus Welby, was busy on ABC at evening's end, mending the torn fabric of an 11-year-old orphan's life and patching up the deteriorating marriage of the couple who adopted her.

Robert Young continues to portray convincingly the concerned man of medicine who was making a 3 a.m. house call in the episode—and the story was less drama than a lesson in human relations.

The new season has its first drop-out. Quarterly Report, which had its premiere on NBC Sept. 9, will be a one-time program. The sponsor has pulled out of what was to be a series of four programs. Word around the network is that the underwriting company found the program too controversial.

Feature Times

AT THE DELLE — "Gone With the Wind" is the feature at the Delle Theatre, One complete showing at 7.30 p.m.

AT THE PARK — In Color—Starring today action and comedy is provided for your entertainment. George Peppard supplies the action in "One More Train to Rob" and also directs and supplies the comedy "They Might Be Giants," starring George C. Scott and Joanne Woodward. One complete evening show commencing at 7.45. Adult entertainment.

Economic Council Head Named

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's economy has recently been showing signs of a new wave of economic expansion which may be nullified by President Nixon's economic measures, says the new chairman of the Economic Council of Canada.

Andre Raynauld, appointed to the position by Prime Minister Trudeau Tuesday, said in an interview that positive signs of economic growth in Canada may be reversed by American import duties.

"The Canadian economy has always been based on the openness of the American economy," said Mr. Raynauld. "Anything that reduces this openness is a threat to Canada. Applying surcharges to imports is a very serious measure."

Mr. Raynauld, who will succeed Arthur Smith who resigned in July, said the new American policies may indicate a need for an appraisal of Canadian economic priorities, a task that may be assigned to the council.

The new chairman said he plans to study the role of the economic council and decide whether to make any suggestions towards modifying the council's methods and priorities.

Mr. Raynauld, 43, was a member of the council from 1966 to 1969 and also served on its executive committee. He was born in La Pocatiere, on the south shore of the St. Lawrence River 160 miles northeast of Quebec City.

He is a graduate of the University of Paris and the University of Montreal where he is a professor of economics and director of the centre of economic development research.

He has held positions as president of the Canadian Institute of Public Affairs, administrator and member of the executive council of the CBC and member and economic councilor of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

Mr. Raynauld said he believes the connection between "political agitation" and the economic situation in Quebec is minimal.

"The recession in Quebec began long before violent agitation became a serious problem. In the early 1960s there was already a flow of capital from Quebec to Ontario. Agitation here has been much less acute than in the U.S. and I don't think it is the cause behind our economic problems.

"French Canadians want more status and autonomy. They are nationalistic and rightly so and I share their ideals for survival of the French-Canadian culture. Violent flare-ups and a threat

Food Prices Up . . .

A sharp increase in food prices last month sent the consumer price index up sharply in August to 135.0 from 134.1 in July, Statistics Canada reported. The index, based on 1961 prices equalling 100, stood at 130.5 in August last year. (CP Newsmap)

Chinese Embassy Acquires Reputation for Steady Efficiency

OTTAWA (CP) — When 38-year-old Huang Hua was named five months ago as first ambassador of the Chinese People's Republic here, a Canadian diplomat aware of his background called him good value.

That expression, with its connotation of business-like efficiency and steadiness, sums up well the image created by the embassy itself during its nearly 10 months of operation.

They make their rounds wearing conservative business suits, just like envoys from other countries—and without Maoist buttons in their lapels.

The embassy offices are on the top two floors of an expensive high-rise apartment building, and the affable Mr. Huang—known as one of his country's foremost and most sophisticated diplomats—gets about in a chauffeur-driven Mercedes.

For his first big reception, the ambassador hired a large room at the Chateau Laurier Hotel and invited 275 Canadian government officials, diplomats, businessmen and a few journalists.

It was, by all accounts, one of the big social events of the year in Ottawa.

But observers here do not believe the Chinese have gone bourgeois.

"They know that when in Rome you do as the Romans do," remarked an external affairs official.

Ambassador Huang grants no interviews, though he has received a number of callers for private chats.

The Canadian Press was turned down when it sought an interview with some embassy official who could answer questions concerning the experiences of the Chinese diplomats in getting settled in Ottawa.

However the embassy, which has a total staff of 20, does make occasional long-distance contact with Ottawa reporters —by sending out mimeographed copies of official Chinese government statements issued earlier, usually weeks earlier, in Peking.

The Chinese have shown themselves deeply anxious to influence Canadian public opinion in matters relating to China.

"They really have a belief in people-to-people diplomacy," said the external affairs official. However, they are selective in those with whom they deal.

For instance, they have been known to receive a group of young people on a spontaneous basis. They are particularly receptive to academics.

Among academics who have been received are a number of United States professors anxious to improve relations between China and the U.S.

The embassy is believed to have received a flood of visa applications from businessmen, journalists and ordinary tourists —many from the U.S., as well as Canada—wishing to visit China.

A spokesman said all such applications must be referred to Peking. But he wouldn't say whether the embassy advises for or against particular applications.

There has been widespread speculation that one of the embassy's primary tasks is to act as a listening post on the U.S., and perhaps even as an unofficial centre of liaison with Washington.

Mr. Huang has been careful to emphasize that he is China's ambassador to Canada, not America at large.

Canadian diplomats say privately there is no doubt the Chinese here are paying close attention to developments in the U.S.

They would be fools if they didn't take advantage of the opportunities," said one.

Canada scrupulously avoids playing bridge-maker between Washington and Peking.

"Bridges get walked on," explained one diplomat.

In their short time here, Ambassador Huang and embassy counsellor Hsu Chung-fu, charge d'affaires for five months before Mr. Huang arrived, have gained a solid reputation as gracious hosts as small, informal dinner parties.

The Chinese are not without a sense of humor, particularly if the joke is on somebody else.

When an African country that doesn't recognize Peking sent the embassy an invitation to the country's national day reception, the Chinese went—even though the invitation had obviously been issued by mistake. And they stayed right through the reception, much to the embarrassment of their hosts.

Not long after arriving, the Chinese complained to the external affairs department about what they considered offensive cartoon drawings of Chairman Mao in Canadian newspapers.

But it was clear they were just going through the motions.

"I am sure they realize we can't be responsible for every single thing that happens in the press," said a department official.

Unemployment Down

The number of unemployed in Canada decreased in August to 455,000 or 5.1 per cent of the labor force, Statistics Canada and the Manpower Department report. In July the figure was 5.7 with 514,000 people jobless.

U.S. Consumer Price Index Shows Sharp August Rise

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The U.S. consumer price index rose 0.4 per cent in August, doubling the 0.2 per-cent July increase, the labor department reported today.

But the department said the rise in the cost of living does not reflect the total effect of the wage and price freeze since some of the data was collected before and some after President Nixon's Aug. 15 announcement.

Horse Population

The United States Census Bureau estimates the country's horse population at about 7.3 million.

Food prices rose 0.1 per cent, the same as in July, but the index for commodities other than food jumped 0.5 per cent following July's 0.1 per cent gain.

This was due mainly to a 3.7-per-cent increase in gasoline prices, the largest rise for this commodity in more than a year.

Another two years brings it into line with a similar five-year agreement with 29 other countries. That agreement still has two years to run, so the accords with all 63 countries will expire at the same time in 1973. The treasury said the whole situation will be re-examined then with a view toward further reductions.

Commonwealth Nations Can Cut Sterling Fund

LONDON (AP) — Commonwealth countries will be able to reduce by 10 per cent the amount of currency reserves they must hold in sterling, British sources said today.

A treasury spokesman said the reduction was "the first wave" in 'a phased operation to reduce compulsory sterling holdings over a period of several years.

The operation is aimed at phasing out sterling as an international reserve currency with Britain's planned entry into the European Common Market.

The sterling balances were held under a 1968 agreement designed to prevent massive withdrawals of sterling by Commonwealth countries and their conversion into dollars at a time when the pound came under severe pressure.

The agreement involving 33 countries holding sterling was due to expire Friday. The treasury announced Tuesday night it had been extended for another two years with an added provision for a "uniform reduction."

The amount of the reduction was not specified but sources gave the 10 per cent figure today.

The extension of the agreement with the 33 countries for

CP Fares Won't Rise

MONTREAL (CP) — CP Rail has no immediate plans to increase passenger fares, a spokesman said today.

He was commenting on a CNR announcement Tuesday that its fares will be going up by as much as 15 per cent, effective Oct. 1.

CP Rail last increased its fares June 1, by an average of 11 per cent.

Its one-way coach fare from Montreal to Winnipeg is $40, compared with the new CNR fare of $33 on days when travel rates are cheapest.

The cheapest Toronto-Winnipeg coach fare is $37 on CP Rail and $31 under the new CNR scale.

Plane Hits House Girl, 16, Is Rescued

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A small plane crashed today into the bedroom of a 16-year-old girl, who was then buried under collapsing portions of the house, and the pilot was killed.

All five members of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Collier, including the daughter, Margaret Ann, survived. Neighbors spotted Margaret Ann's arm sticking out of debris in the basement and pulled her out seconds before the house burst into flames.

Collier said the impact of the plane imbedded the engine into the wall above Margaret Ann's head. Oil from the engine dropped into her hair.

"She was only three feet from where they found the dead pilot, and then she gradually fell through the floor, into the basement as the house gave way."

The girl was taken to hospital with a broken collar bone. The house, valued at $35,000, and the plane were destroyed.

Other children in the house were Robert Jr., 14, and Debbie, 7.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Hypochondriacs Will Live Longer

Hypochondriacs live longer. This is no hard and fast rule. As always, there are exceptions. I recall one fatalist who lived into his 80s. He took all kinds of chances with his health, with his life — yet he survived.

Then there was a man we might call a hypochondriac. He was afraid of dying early. He watched his diet carefully, stayed within normal weight, did not under- or over-exert, took vacations regularly, did not smoke or drink, and lived what you might call the exemplary life. He died at 38 of leukemia.

As I have often said, such are the exceptions. It makes good sense to believe that the man or woman who takes good care of his machine has much better chances for a healthier life and longevity.

For example, the man who refuses to be a "sissy" and buckle his seat belt is the one most likely to an accident to go crashing through the windshield or be thrown out on the road.

The one who refuses to have periodic examinations is more likely to overlook serious illness like heart disease, TB, or cancer.

The man who refuses to look in both directions as he crosses the street is more likely to be run down by a car.

Likewise, the one who refuses to go to his doctor because he has what he himself thinks are symptoms that are unimportant, is more likely to be struck down by serious or fatal illness.

So ends today's lecture. I have given it at the request of a reader who has sent me the following note:

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband is 35. We have three children and everything to live for, but he refuses to go to the doctor for examination. He has been complaining of a cough, has lost about 20 pounds, and is so tired that he can hardly get up in the morning to go to work.

He laughs off my suggestion that he see our family doctor. He calls himself a fatalist. What can I do to make him change his mind?— Mrs. Z.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: When I was young I used to have nervousness a week before my periods, which doctors called premenstrual tension.

Now that I am in my menopause, I still get especially nervous a week out of every month. Is there any connection? — Mrs. L.

Comment: I have seen this in many patients, and think a name more suitable than premenstrual tension is cyclical tension, something that recurs monthly in some women.

It usually wears off in later years, but tranquilizers and other medications can help smooth the way.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have a tumor under the skin on my right side just above the hip. I have had this for about 10 or 12 years. It does not move, it is not painful, and has grown only slightly in the year I have had it. What are the chances that it is cancerous? Please help me. — Mrs. P.

COMMENT: Most doctors would guess it is a benign insignificant tumor called a lipoma, or a fibroma. But this is only a guess. Why keep worrying unnecessarily? See your doctor. He can, really relieve your mind.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Power in Mob's Hands Bad

Some of the banners raised by the anti-war demonstrators proclaimed: "All Power to the People". While I agree with the aims of the demonstrators, I fear that their slogan is mindless and menacing to the future of democracy.

Power is dangerous in anybody's hands; it is most dangerous in the hands of a mob — and a mob is what "people" become when they are not constrained by law.

The U.S. Constitution wisely separates and divides power, so that even the majority itself cannot ride roughshod over a minority without abusing and distorting constitutional safeguards.

If the demonstrators' slogan were to become a reality, they would be the first to suffer under it. There is good reason to believe that most of the "people" in the U.S. today are hostile, or at least indifferent to, the Bill of rights. Given full power, these people would treat the demonstrators far more severely than even the Nixon administration has.

Many, if not most, people do not believe in democracy for others; and most contemporary Americans would not sign the Declaration of Independence if it were offered them today; it is too "revolutionary."

In point of fact, the founders of this country wisely turned down "all power" for ourselves, knowing how quickly and easily such uncontrolled power could be used for the tyranny of the mass, which is the worst tyranny of all.

Those who claim to speak for "The people" usually express and embody the most irrational elements in our nature — a Hitler or a Stalin can then operate on the blackest of impulses under the cover of "representing "the people" when what they really represent is our appetite for vengeance and our search for scapegoats.

Ironically, if the people were given power right now, their first act would be to crush the kind of dissent manifested by the demonstrators. It is only the law — fragile and perverted though it may have become — that prevents them from exercising such despotism against minority groups. "All power" granted to the majority would be the death of democratic dissent.

The U.S. was established to avoid the excesses of an elite on the one hand and the mass on the other. If we are ruled by an elite, the way to reform it is by fairer use of the law, not by tearing down the institutions and processes that alone make democracy possible. In so doing, the apostles of "power to the people" merely pave the way for a dictatorship under which they will be first to go.

Both Librans and Virgoans born today are graceful, highly intuitive, and wary, adventurous people. The Librans will travel much more extensively, while the Virgoans tend to seek service where accuracy is the main factor.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Tact brings its logical result, except any benefits gracefully; share with your old familiars.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Allow for unpredictable moods, fractious behavior. Don't take advantage if it's in your favor; postpone your pitch if it's not.

GEMINI (May 21 — Jun 20): Abrupt decisions cause neglect on important ideas. Wait a bit, take time for deliberation and deeper study. Asking opinions of others brings little immediately useful results.

CANCER (June 1 — July 22): Life smooths out according to what you've been sexing. Where you've been reasonable and willing to give and take, things look splendid.

LEO (July 3 — Aug. 22): Bright surfaces and glib words do not guarantee anything. Get expert advice, check out whatever you're into before you accept at face value.

VIRGO (Aug. 3 — Sept. 22): It's about the last minute for further important doings you look on some time back. Get an early start.

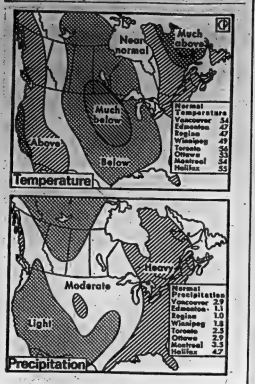
LIBRA (Sept. 23—Oct. 22): Your use of yesterday's openings leads to a sense of achievement and merit. You have add assistance from surprising sources.

SCORPIO (Oct. 3—Nov. 1): See whether you can inspire cooperation amongst opponents or people undecided up until now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Early busy, late lazy, — take it in stride, leave puzzles for tomorrow.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The trick is to balance internal pressures against external routines. Have the discipline and patience to wait for other people to decide before you add extra considerations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): A heavy duty day which ends up cheerfully. Relax among interesting, intelligent companions. Even talking shop is all right for once.



PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Diplomacy is needed in preparation for quiet but fundamental changes, improvements. Getting overly personal would hinder your way later.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: Could you name a few good parks in Prince Edward Island and Cape Breton Island please?

ANSWER: Prince Edward Island National Park is a 25-mile strip of pink sand beach and treed campsites along the north shore of the island province just 15 miles from Charlottetown. Extensive camping facilities are among the most modern anywhere, and only a short walk from the ocean. The water temperature is about 72 degrees during summer months. You can dig for clams along the shore or go salt-water fishing.

Cape Breton Island National Park rises to 1,700 feet above the Atlantic ocean to the east, and Gulf of St. Lawrence to the west. The Cabot Trail around the park exposes rugged seascapes and rocky hills and valleys reminiscent of the Scottish Highlands. As many as 150 species of seabirds have been recorded here. Lakes and streams bear good crops of sea, lake and brook trout. There are seven campgrounds (three serviced) six with trailer sites.

QUESTION: I am spending a week at Virginia Beach in September. Could you name a few of the ship museums to visit?

ANSWER: Virginia Beach is one of the best centres in North America for a tourist who likes to settle in one spot, take leisurely drives each day then return to relax in the evening.

And if you want to wander just a little farther afield you can visit the site of the first British colony on these shores, at Jamestown, and colonial Williamsburg, where a whole town operates as it did in other centuries.

The area has another big asset, too. Summer lingers a little longer there, well south of Ontario and its sudden shift to autumn.

The approach to Virginia Beach from the north via the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-tunnel is dramatic. It has two steel bridges, 12 miles of concrete trestle bridges, two mile-long lands and a natural island. The distance from shore to shore is more than 17 miles.

You can save money by buying the combination ticket which will also permit you to use the Hampton Road bridge-tunnel.

One unusual feature of the bridge which you might like to try is a 225-foot fishing pier at which motorists can stop and drop a line in 30 to 40 foot depths. It comes with the price of admission, though if you want to rent rods and equipment there's a charge.

In Virginia Beach itself, an old lighthouse provides a gold viewpoint from which to watch ships entering and leaving Chesapeake Bay.

The Mariners Museum is perhaps the finest maritime museum in North America. It has many full size vessels and a vast collection of models.

There are eight galleries of exhibits of every significant maritime event since the building of the Ark.

The development of the steamship from its earliest beginnings is also depicted and there are several models of nuclear submarines.

It is in a century-old courthouse building that was completely transformed and now houses a collection of MacArthur memorabilia including the staff car the general used when he was Supreme Commander, Allied Powers, in Japan.

The U.S.army Transportation Museum is the best-known of all the museums in the area. The museum is on the grounds of the army base at Fort Eustis and displays the many types of vehicles used by the army throughout its history, everything from cannon to rocket belts.

Off-shore surfing is another attraction of the sea, which draws enthusiasts from all over the eastern seaboard to a surfing carnival held late each summer. The water is warm enough for swimming through September and there are golf and fishing, along with places to visit.

Opposition Stands Firm On Prairie Farm Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The government made another stab Tuesday at winning Commons approval for its Prairie farm income stabilization fund, but found that summer holidays have not mellowed opposition critics.

The proposed legislation, which would give western farmers a special $100-million payment to make up for cancellation of the Temporary Wheat Reserves Act, has drawn steady fire from Conservatives and New Democrats since its introduction in the House last March.

Debate on the bill continues today.

The opposition got a running start Tuesday as Conservative House Leader Gerald W. Baldwin sought to have the Commons debate a motion to impeach Liberal cabinet ministers for not making payments to farmers under the reserves act.

No monthly payments have been made under the act, as the law requires, since July, 1970. The stabilization bill would cancel the reserves act retroactive to then.

But Speaker Lucien Lamoureux ruled that no impeachment procedure exists under Commons rules.

After the impeachment ruling, debate resumed on the stabilization bill for the first time since the Commons returned from summer recess Sept. 7.

The bill would set up a stabilization fund by having farmers pay in two per cent of their gross income and having the government contribute twice that amount. When farm receipts fell below normal, payments would be made from the fund.

Opposition MPs repeated many of the same criticisms they have made in previous debates.

Indians Lay Claim To Vast Territories

OTTAWA (CP) — Do Indians hold a legal claim over vast parts of Canada, including all of Quebec, by reason of aboriginal rights?

The Supreme Court of Canada will provide at least a partial answer in late November when it hears an appeal by the Nishga Indians who seek a declaration that they are owners of about 4,000 square miles of land in northwest British Columbia because of their long-time occupation of it.

Rise in Taxes Faster Than Over-all Growth

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal, provincial and local government revenues have increased 20 per cent faster in the last five years than the country's over-all economic growth, newly-compiled federal statistics show.

At mid-1971, the combined revenues of all levels of government, including contributions to such funds as medical care insurance and the Canada and Quebec pension plans, amounted to $21.4 billion. For the year as a whole, they will run to about $45.6 billion.

But officials of Statistics Canada explain that this includes nearly $18 billion of transfer payments among governments —money that one government collects and turns over to another to spend.

Transfer payments are made mainly under federal-provincial agreements, provincial grant programs for municipalities and provincial and municipal grants to hospitals.

Net revenues of all governments this year, therefore, are estimated at $32.8 billion, using figures for the first half of the year and adjusting them to an annual basis. This amounts to 36.1 per cent of the country's gross national product—Canada's entire output of goods and services—which at mid-year was running at an annual rate of $91 billion.

Since 1966, when net revenues of all governments was $18.7 billion, and the gross national product was $61.4 billion, government revenues have risen by more than 75 per cent. The gross national product rose in the same period by 48 per cent.

The speed at which government revenues have exceeded the general economy's rate of growth in the last five years contrasts with what happened in the previous five years.

Between 1961 and 1966, government revenues did increase by almost the same rate—72 per cent—to $18.7 billion from $10.8 billion.

But in that period, the GNP rose by 57 per cent, to $61.4 billion from $39.1 billion.

One contributor to the accelerated rate of government receipts in the last five years is the introduction of the Canada and Quebec pension plans. Contributions from all workers to the pension plans started in 1966, when they totalled $719 million. This year, they are expected to be twice that, or $1.58 billion.

Provincial revenues—including transfers to the provinces from the federal government—more than doubled in the five years before 1966, and more than dobled again in the last five years.

They were $1.98 billion in 1961, $4.08 billion in 1966 and an estimated $9.13 billion this year.

Municipal revenues grew by 70 per cent or more in each five-year period, from $2.8 billion in 1961 to $4.4 billion in 1966 and to $7.7 billion this year.

New Lake Planned In North Hastings

York Dam Backed By County Council

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A proposed 30-mile man-made lake in North Hastings has raised prospects of a large tourist industry and work programs for the Bancroft area.

The proposed development would be a dam across the York River in Carlow township to create an artificial lake, which, with shoreline improvements, would encompass about 25,000 acres in four townships.

The lake would cover parts of Monteagle, Carlow, Dungannon and Mayo and would extend south from Boulter almost to Highway 500, running east from Bancroft.

Hastings county council will lend its support to the York River Development Committee in North Hastings in a request to have ARDA carry out the dam project, first proposed by Ontario Hydro nearly 30 years ago.

Estimated cost of the project has been set at approximately $30 million, to be borne jointly by the provincial and federal governments.

S. J. Carr, reeve of Monteagle township, told county council yesterday that the dam project had been proposed originally by Ontario Hydro to provide a reservoir for the Madawaska river system hydro stations.

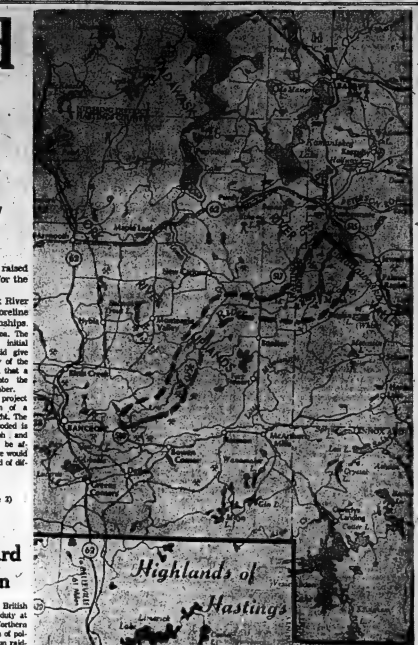
Survey crews had completed the necessary survey but the project had never been carried through.

Efforts to have ARDA take on the project have been going on for several years without results and this year the York River Development Committee was formed to bring more pressure on the two senior governments.

Yesterday's discussion in County Council was the first public announcement of the proposed project.

Speaking from Queen's Park this morning, Dr. F. T. Potter, MPP for Quinte and member of the provincial government's treasury board, said he "didn't see how the proposal could have government approval as yet".

A spokesman for the Department of Lands and Forests in Tweed said there is "nothing concrete" on the proposal at his level.



Ontario Hydro dropped the project so long ago that no reference can be found to it in files at the Belleville office.

Douglas Tipper, county agriculture representative, was in on the initial planning stages some time ago. He said close half the land involved belongs to the crown, and work on the project would be phased over a number of years.

It has been suggested that clearing of land to be flooded would take at least five years and provide jobs for many people in the area. The lumber cut in the initial clearing operation would give a boost to the economy of the district. It is suggested that a chip mill might go into the area to handle the timber.

Reeve Carr said the project would require erection of a dam only 40 feet in height. The ultimate area to be flooded is mostly low-lying marsh and only one cottage would be affected. The proposed lake would be spotted with a myriad of different sized islands.

LRC - Turbo Successor? - Visits Belleville

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The LRC, a prototype of Canadian National Railway's newest experimental train, streaked into Belleville yesterday on its second day of trials before being placed on display in Ottawa later in October.

Called LRC, standing for Light, Rapid and Comfortable, the new train runs with diesel motive power, but with suspension modifications, can give similar performance as the now defunct Turbo.

Using the principal of you have to crawl before you can walk, the LRC was let loose on the track previous to its Belleville-Montreal run, for a moderate speed test run between Montreal and Saint John, New Brunswick. Its average speed on this run was approximately 60 miles an hour.

"Yesterday on its maiden voyage to eastern Ontario, the three-car train was boosted to speeds of 85 miles an hour and averaged 90 miles an hour," said a test engineer travelling with the train.

"The real advantage that the Turbo had over the other trains was that it could maintain high speeds all along the line, and not have to slow down when entering a grade or curve," said one CN spokesman.

"This characteristic has been duplicated in the LRC by banking mechanism, which lessen the train into the curve, said the same spokesman.

Created by Dofasco, the truck suspension takes a reading of the condition of track by using a monitor at the front of each car, and then sets the angle at which the car should rest while travelling through the curve.

The streamlined, profile of the LRC is reminiscent of the Turbo and "through the use of aluminum for body construction will give the same kind of performance as its predecessor."

"The LRC is completely experimental at the moment," said Rideau area manager George Van de Walle, and another spokesman said "after the testing the Turbo took it is probable that the LRC was designed to take its place."

The train that came to the city yesterday was pulled by a standard diesel engine, much the same as any other engine on the CN line but company officials say, "the only difference between the LRC engine and the normal engine is that the LRC is more streamlined and shinier. They both have the same insides."

One of the many major problems with the Turbo was the difficulty in obtaining parts. With the new engine, all parts will be interchangeable with any other diesel in the CN yard.

Banks of electronic equipment were loaded into a special car, for the Belleville trip designed to test the performance of the train. Technicians responsible for the operation of this equipment claim, "the train ran surprisingly well considering this was its first high-speed run."

An area of key concern to the technicians was the accurate setting of the monitoring system which banks the cars.

"The system works, we are just tuning its rate of response, so that it senses the curve in the track and reacts to it," said a technician.

The LRC was scheduled to travel to Ottawa today on a similar test run, "but for some unexplained reason," a Belleville CN spokesman said, "they couldn't make it."

In October, the LRC will make a trip to Ottawa to be placed on display.

No one at the CN wants to make any statement on when the train could possibly come into service on a full time basis, said, "the evolution of equipment is a constant thing and right at the moment the LRC is hungry for a new train."

Picton Arena Asks For $3,000 Grant

PICTON (Staff) — The Prince Edward Community Centre Commission has petitioned county council for $3,000 to support its operations but must wait until next month's meeting of council's finance committee to discuss the request further.

Commission representative Archie Kingma informed county council last night approximately $3,300 is needed to pay for the cost of heating in the arena.

Mr. Kingma informed council about $2,800 remains in the bank and in accounts receivable. A $3,000 grant, he said, would allow this money to remain in reserve to allow for normal operating costs.

Originally the arena commission requested a county council grant of approximately $8,300 for installation of heating and was granted $3,000 with the suggestion the town of Picton and the commission itself, should match this grant to arrive at the required total.

Mr. Kingma also pointed out the commission had asked for summer wages for the arena manager in its budget, estimating the expenditure at $2,100, compared with $1,800 paid last year.

Sophiabburg reeve George Peck told Mr. Kingma, "it seems very puzzling to me when we've met our obligations that you would come to us at this time of year. Where would you get the $3,000 at this time of year?" he questioned.

Deputy reeve of Athol Keith MacDonald suggested the arena commission is convinced by a debt for heating installation costs which must be paid.

It was noted apparently the arena manager's former wages of $1,800 were included in a grant to the Prince Edward Agricultural Society and used through it to him.

This year the agricultural society's grant, according to Mr. Kingma, was the same but no provisions were made for the manager's summer wages to be transferred to the arena commission for payment.

Mr. Kingma observed the arena commission would discourage use of the building by raising its rental fees and admission charges "right out of the sky" and concluded, "We are trying to do our best to keep that building going and to put things in it that people will appreciate instead of letting it rot to the ground."

Warden Anderson reminded council no action could be taken by reason of bylaw until the matter has been discussed by the finance committee for presentation to council.

Mr. Kingma agreed to attend the finance committee's next meeting, October 14, to explain the commission's position.

To help toward raising money to match the county's original $3,000 grant the arena commission is sponsoring dances at the County Centre.

The first one, held a few weeks ago, earned only $76 for the fund. Mr. Kingma said last night he expects the next dance on September 25 will raise approximately $400 for the commission.

Square Dancers Have A Ball In Belleville

About 450 square dancers were in Belleville Saturday, Sept. 18, for the Fifth Annual Square Dance Jamboree at Centennial Secondary School.

The dancers were treated to the expert calling of Bud Redmond of Lewiston, N.Y., Ralph O'Hara of Belleville and for round dancing, Bill and Irene Morrison of Whitby.

Playing host to the fraternity, which encompassed, dancers from Sarnia to Ottawa to Elmira, N.Y., was the Quinte Twelvers Square Dance Organization.

With more than 600 adults and 300 children currently enjoying the pastime in the Quinte area, the organization plays an active role in community affairs. Most recently it has been involved with the Santa Claus Parade, the Winter Carnival parade and square dancing on ice, demonstrations at various civic functions, entertaining children's groups and at Hastings Manor and instruction classes for children at the School for the Mentally Retarded.

The Hastings County Board of Education encourages these activities by allowing the use of school auditoriums by the various clubs and classes through the city recreation commission.

Since expert callers for the Jamboree must be booked long in advance, plans are already under way for the Sixth Annual Jamboree in September of 1972.

New Lake

The entire west side of the proposed man - made lake would provide miles of sandy beach.

The intention would be to operate the dam for recreational purposes, with the water being maintained at a constant level.

This would be a requirement laid down by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests and would make for a lake clear of dead floating trees and other debris.

Clearing of the property and construction of the dam would provide a much needed "make work" program for county residents, Mr. Carr said.

Reeve Carr is chairman of the York River Development Committee, with the four townships concerned having membership on the body.

Ceiling Too Low For PE Hospital

PICTON (Staff) — William Coke, administrator for Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital has stated only through a cutback in staff and services can the hospital remain within its budget set - down by the Ontario Hospital Services Commission.

He was referring to a recent news report that the OHSC will permit a maximum increase of seven per cent for operating costs in 1972.

The administrator observed the bulk of PECM's operating costs are in wages and salaries.

The hospital is not using generic drugs at this time as a cost reducing method, but according to Mr. Cooke, some drugs are supplied to hospitals at appreciable discounts.

Electronic Checking System

On the maiden voyage of Canadian National's newest experimental train, a crew of technicians, operating sophisticated operations checking systems, were loaded into one of the cars to keep an eye on the operation of the prototype model. Technicians claim, the LRC ran "surprisingly well" for its first medium-high-speed trip yesterday between Montreal and Belleville.

Council Votes for Penalty

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County council Tuesday voted to assess an $800 penalty against the H. J. Mcfarland Construction Company, Picton for failure to complete surface treatment of county roads within the time limit specified by a contract.

The motion, penalizing the contractor for 16 working days at $50 a day, was contained in a road committee report read to council by chairman and Reeve of Sophiasburg, George Fosser.

Lewis Wight, deputy reeve of Hillier, challenged the motion and suggested the contractor, who had "dug the county out of some snow" last winter, might take "a dim view."

Deputy reeve of Picton James Bird reminded council it could oppose the road committee's motion if there was a quarrel with the decision to penalize the contractor.

The report was adopted promptly after Ameliasburg reeve Norman Post's comment that there was no point in further discussion since the contractor went into the agreement "with his eyes wide open" and was 16 days late in completing his work.

Car Crushes Trenton Man

TRENTON (Staff) — A retired Trenton man died yesterday when the car he was driving slid off its jack and crushed him while he worked beneath it.

According to a relative John Marsh, 60, of 19A Dundas St. E. had bought the car recently and was hooking up the drive shaft at the time the mishap occurred.

Mr. Marsh was crushed by the automobile as it fell down on him shortly before 5 p.m. in an alley behind his residence near the town offices.

He was pronounced dead on arrival at Trenton Memorial Hospital by coroner, Dr. J. V. Byrne.

Man Died At Wheel

TRENTON (Staff) — According to a coroner's report released today, Frederick Hill, 60, of Trenton died of a heart attack at the wheel of his car and not as a result of a two-vehicle collision here Monday.

Early reports had stated only that the man was dead following the early evening accident at the corner of Dundas and Byron Streets.

During the crash, the Hill car careered into the path of another automobile driven by Robert Knight, 29, of Middleton Park.

Dance for Arena

PICTON (Staff) — A dance and buffet styled after Picton's "Armory dances" has been planned for Saturday, September 25 in the County Centre to raise money toward the cost of heating installation in the County Centre.

Music for the dance beginning at 9 p.m. will be supplied by The Sounds of 70, a six-pieece orchestra.

Admission to the dance, sponsored by the Prince Edward Community board, is $4 a couple.

The heating installed in the arena for the enjoyment of hockey fans and spectators for other events on ice cost $5,400, several hundred dollars less than the original estimate.

Additional funds are needed by the arena commission, however, to pay for installation costs and to open this year's hockey and skating season.

Spokesman for the commission, Archie Kingma, said in a presentation to county council this week that raising admission and ice rental rates would be the county board's only recourse.

He was applying to council for a $3,000 grant in addition to the $3,000 grant made earlier by the arena commission.

Junior Education Course in Madoc

The Hastings County Board of Education will sponsor a Department of Education course, known as Junior Education in the Madoc Public School on Thursday evenings throughout the next season from September until April.

The course will include approximately 125 teachers from a number of area counties, including Hastings, Peterborough, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Northumberland.

No Criminal Cases On Court Docket

A total of 86 cases have been entered for the fall assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

The session began before the Honorable Mr. Justice Lacourciere Monday afternoon at Hastings County Courthouse.

No criminal cases are scheduled to be heard. In addition, none of the ten docketed civil jury cases are likely to reach court since most have been settled in private and negotiations are under way outside the court on the others.

Justice Lacourciere will hear 24 civil non-jury cases, more than half of these involving claims for damages arising from motor vehicle accidents. The rest of the session will be made up of 52 divorce cases, six of which will be contested.

Engineers Suggest Two-dam System For Ice Control

Consulting engineers retained by the Moira River Conservation Authority and the engineering section of the conservation authorities branch disagree on ice control measures needed to prevent springtime flooding in downtown Belleville.

Crysler and Lathem, consulting engineers, favor a two-dam system — a low uncontrolled weir dam for Front Ice at the Lott site near Reid Street and a second dam north of College Street to create a primary ice storage basin.

On the other hand, the engineering section of the conservation authorities branch favors a single dam at the Lott site.

A special meeting of the authority executive was held earlier this week to consider the alternate proposals and, as a result, a meeting of engineers is called for later this week in Toronto.

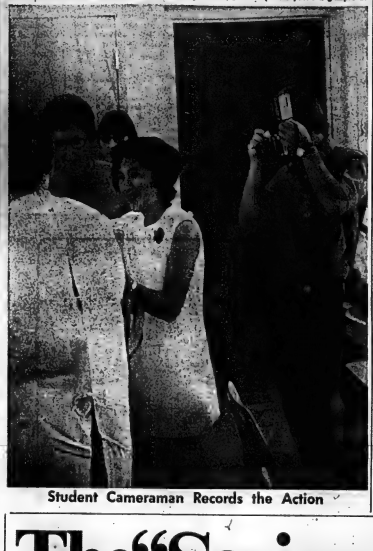
After a lengthy discussion, authority executive members decided to have their consulting engineers meet with representatives of the egineering section of the conservation authorities branch to reach an agreement on which of the two alternatives should be proceeded with.

Quinte Secondary Students To Appear on Japanese TV

Quinte Secondary School students will be the subject of a program to be aired on Japanese television.

The school will be featured in a television documentary on Canadian education. Filming has been going on for several days around the school.

The program came about when Mrs. Frank Makiwa of Belleville paid her brother in Japan, Masahiro Suyama, a visit in July and August of 1971, the first trip to her native home in 18 years. Mr. Suyama is a producer of education English programs for high school students in Japan. He works for the Nihon Hoso Kyokai (National Broadcasting Corporation).



When he mentioned the possibility of pictures of Canadian students being taken for his program, Mrs. Makiwa suggested a study of a typical Canadian high school. The aim of the documentary is to get a look at the organization of the school and observe students' and teachers' behavior in particular situations.

Mr. Makiwa has been touring a wide variety of classes including a nursing class, English and Man in Society. With the aid of a tape recorder and student photographers Curtis Nickle and Bob Boudreau, she will give the Japanese public a glimpse at the variety of opportunities available to Canadian students.

Born in Cumberland, British Columbia, Mrs. Makiwa went to Japan in 1946 where she attended university and worked with the American Armed Forces as a secretary, and interpreter. She returned to Canada in 1955 and lived in Toronto before moving to Belleville in 1959. Her husband, Frank, works for Northern Electric in Belleville and the couple have four children.

J. S. Heyman, principal of Quinte High School, said, "It is certainly an honor for Quinte to have this opportunity to be able to show the people in Japan by means of television an insight into the educational system of an Ontario school."

Though the students may not see themselves in the final production, the general consensus is that it's a treat to be on television and staff and students alike have enjoyed the venture.

Councillors Explain Anti-festival Action

Hastings County lost out in its legal battle to stop the rock festival held in Madoc township in August, but Warden Kenneth Smith still feels the county was justified in its action.

Warden Smith referred to the Madoc festival in a brief address to councillors as he opened the September session Wednesday.

"Anyone who attended the festival can be proud that the county took action in an attempt to stop it," he said.

In other business, council heard a report from Deputy Reeve Gordon Wilman of Sidney on the renovation plans for Glenanore House, which is to become the new Hastings County Museum.

He said that a tender for $70,000 was the lowest bid received for interior renovations and because of lack of money, specifications would be redrawn to eliminate some of the work.

"It looks as though at least part of the renovations will have to wait for another year," he said.

In any event Mr. Wilman said there was no possibility that the museum could be opened before next spring.

Council concurred in a county of Kent resolution asking an amendment to the Public Libraries Act so that levies made by counties to the local municipalities may be made on a per capita basis rather than on an assessment basis.

Council also concurred in a Haldimand county motion asking that the Department of Transportation and Communications be requested to provide summaries of motor vehicle accidents which have been reported by the Ontario Provincial Police and all local police departments.

Madoc township Reeve Cecil Woods was critical of what he termed the belated interest of the Ontario Health Department.

Reeve Woods said the health department knew as early as last February that a festival was planned for Madoc township, yet no apparent interest was taken until only a few days before the event.

Then, the reeve said, Dr. McNally contacted him to say that unless proper health precautions were taken a complete disaster could result.

"What did he take that long?" the reeve asked.

Reeve Woods was also critical of Hastings county medical officer of health Dr. C. R. Lenk and also of The Intelligencer which he said for quite a while had taken a one - sided view of the festival.

Money No Object

The annual revelations of the Auditor-General relating as they do to government extravagance, make melancholy reading for the long-suffering taxpayer. There is Maxwell Henderson doing his thing, socking it to the administrators and upsetting not a few, notably Treasure Board president Charles Drury.

Of course we are speaking of events of a few months ago, yet like death and taxes the subject is always with us. Just a week or so ago Prime Minister Trudeau conceded in the Commons that some of his trips on Government planes since the June 1968 election were personal.

Mr. Trudeau had been asked about these matters by Robert Coates (Conservative MP for Cumberland-Colchester North) and the Commons return, as the answering document is called, showed that he had logged 191,090 miles on Government aircraft.

Some trips were classed as "personal and Government," which presumably lets Mr. Trudeau off the hook to some extent. But there was one to Nassau last November which was personal only and included three guests. Also in the personal category was the wedding trip to Vancouver in March with two guests (Mr. Trudeau's brother and his wife if memory serves us correctly), and there was one guest to Nassau in April. Mrs. Trudeau was listed as a passenger on this trip.

While names of all aboard Government flights were listed Mr. Trudeau's office refused to list the names of those along as guests on personal trips.

So be it, but maybe as a result of Mr. Coates' inquiries the Prime Minister will be more careful about the use of Government aircraft and tax dollars for his own personal use and that of his friends.

Cabinet ministers also got around, as answers to another question by Mr. Coates on travel expenses indicated. External Affairs Minister Sharp had the biggest expenses at $28,784, with Labor Minister Mackasey next at $21,490.

Mr. Trudeau listed expenses of a mere $6,313 and Secretary of State Pelletier $6,015. Transport Minister Jamieson managed to get along on $2,144. There is a strange piece of irony here: Mr. Jamieson made 75 flights on Government aircraft and Mr. Pelletier 21, but we are told that use of the aircraft was not included in their expenses. Yet comparing the number of flights and the expenses the ministers incurred suggests intriguing elements of frugality and extravagance the full details of which likely will never be made known to the public.

Still we hope the Auditor-General will continue his good work and that the Government will take heed, to the extent of curbing the very real extravagance which, regrettably, does occur in the course of the administrative process.

Mixed Bag

Many and varied are the pearls of wisdom and knowledge to be gleaned from television . . . On TV tell the Truth the other night was a doctor who runs a New York clinic called Hangover Heaven. The doctor claimed his staff could fix a hangover in 45 minutes and noted that some patients book in advance.

Then there was the news item about an ex British model who is making a killing with those faded jeans so popular here and in the United States. She has imported a hefty consignment from the U.S. and they are selling like the proverbial hot cakes.

Said one London lass, asked to explain the phenomenon of the grubby, unkempt look that is the essence of patched and aging jeans (and now must be lived in way that the manufacturers): "they are gorgeous." How do you counter such a single-minded appraisal as that?

From the ridiculous to the slightly more sublime there are now all kinds of public service announcements which reflect some of the ills of U.S. society as well as our own. There is one in which a father and mother get very emotional over the discovery that their son is on drugs; predictably the youngster storms out of the house and the-burden of the ad is that parents, instead of losing their grip, should consult people familiar with the problem of drug misuse. Another ad, sponsored by the Council of American Pathologists, advises the public to eschew violence.

All of which is excellent advice — if only on the other channel someone is not watching the FBI or some other program devoted to murder, rape and sudden death, or still others are not watching something on drugs.

Just to Make The P.M. Feel Wanted

George Hees' Lesson in One-upmanship at Picton

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — If Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield cannot handle Pierre Trudeau in the truly Trudy style, former Tory Trade Minister George mounting confidence.

Which, mind you, is not to say that Robert Stanfield can not handle Pierre Trudeau in his own quiet and perhaps increasingly effective way as he has been demonstrating with Hees can mounting confidence.

It is just that Bob Stanfield as almost achingly earnest parliamentarian, is so astonishingly sincere and dedicated to the unspectacular details of the serfdom business of the nation's affairs, you suspect he does not even begin to understand the Prime Minister and his often fun-ways of keeping national shop.

George Hees does.
They think alike.

As members of the George Hees fan club suspect he would phrase it, he can rap with Trud; because they have "good vibes".

George Hees has been around a long time, entering Parliament 21 years ago as an experienced political hand having campaigned for Conservative Leader John Bracken and MP Garfield Case against the Mackenzie King Liberals and candidate General A. G. L. McNaughton in the wacky but wonderful Grey - North byelection of 1945.

By comparison, Pierre Trudeau is a parliamentary freshman of only six years, if a former long time reform-radical political sidekicker.

Now Parliament may be a big stage — move-around room for a cast of 264 players — but not starlight enough for a couple of caper-cutting characters like Pierre and George to share.

Both are born scene-stealers, masters at the art of the put-down, keen competitors in the techniques of one-upmanship.

So Pierre figures he will hit George with a high - voltage charge of Trudeaumania brainwa where it hurts, in Hees' Prince Edward - Hastings.

He choppers to Picton, in Quinte, an important sector of the riding of his rival - in - parliamentary - fun - and-games he sometimes kids as "George, Prince of Edward and Hastings".

So he is going to make a little political hay, steal a campaign march, woo some votes, and "copter back to Ottawa chuckling at the pleasant prospect of confronting "Prince George" in the Commons with teazing tidings of what a pushover the aerial invasion had been.

Only George has seen him coming.

And is there to meet and greet him as he emerges from a cloud of manure-scented dust the chopper churned up on the grounds of the County Fair.

"Welcome, Pierre, welcome to Picton," beams George as if he were the Prince, or even the Reeve of Prince Edward County, thrusting out his hand and grinning "it's always wonderful and exciting to see you, Pierre, even if you do always kick up a little dust."

The Trudeau team — staff stalwarts from the PMO's office and his RCMP bodyguards — insisted that "of course" they had known all along that George would show up.

But they were not so wise and all knowing — and were far from pleased — when certainly large if not larger, than life and bubbling over with his "he's boy" enthusiasm, he waded into the welcome ceremonies as if they were all being staged for him.

It was the most unconditionally outrageous and humorously blatant bit of political scene-stealing the accompanying press corps had ever sampled.

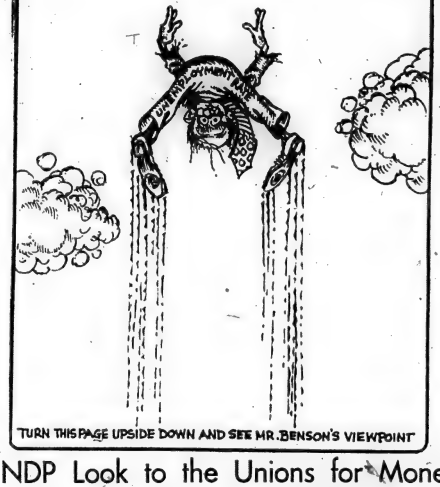
As Pierre pranced along behind the mounted police the crowd, smiling his little boy smile, twinkling his eyes so mischievously, signing autographs and chatting it up — there was George right alongside with an endless flow of "hiyas" and continuous "hello there" waves.

For once, Pierre seemed bemused if not completely baffled.

"Nice of you," enthused George, "to come on over and see us."

Pierre grinned helplessly, shrugged and continued with the people-meeting business.

"Just going to climb right aboard the bandwagon and cut in on all this political promotion," laughed George with what must have been enraging frankness, "in case you were wondering."



But Pierre did not really have to be told.

And when he made his way back to the helicopter to fly out, who was there to say the goodbyes and God-blesses but George.

"See you in Parliament," laughed George as he patted Pierre on the back.

"I don't mind seeing you," countered Pierre, finally betraying irritation through an even, frozen smile, "it's hearing you that bothers me."

There was more of the same when they met in the Commons with George explaining, amid howls of Liberal protest and howls of Conservative laughter, that he had showed up at Picton "just to make the PM feel wanted".

Anyone reading the report of the activities of the Women's Auxiliary of the Belleville General Hospital can not help but be impressed by the splendid work being done by this group. The Auxiliary has provided much needed equipment at the hospital, for instance the mobile X ray unit purchased a year or so ago and which cost over $1,500. When the new wing was built to the hospital, the Auxiliary furnished a room at a cost of $350 and also furnished a waiting room. This year a laundry press is to be purchased. The above are just somee of the major expenditures that have been made since the organization of the Auxiliary three years ago.

Much interest taken by citizens in the Belleville Hospital for the Aged was shown by the large number who attended a reception given at the home of the ladies of the Women's Christian Association. Mrs. W. Mikel, president of the Association and other officers were present to many visitors, all evinced a keen interest in the work of the Home and expressed great satisfaction with the accommodations and the conduct of the Home.

NDP Look to the Unions for Money and Manpower

By IAN PORTER
Canadian Press Labor Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Some adept footwork may be required of New Democratic Party candidates in the Oct. 21 election campaign on questions about the relationship between the party and organized labor.

Not that there is any secret about the alliance between the two. That was made official in 1961 when the Canadian Labor Congress helped form the NDP to replace the CCF.

But this time more than ever, unions will be a main source of money and manpower for the party's campaign.

Voters—many already confident they know the source of Conservative and Liberal campaign funds—may well be curious to know what line labor would favor in the event of an NDP victory.

The issue obviously has been well chewed over by both party and union officials. By now, they are armed with answers.

First is NDP Leader Stephen Lewis who clearly anticipates the question.

"We've told them (the unions) what to expect. We are going to represent all the people and if elected, we'd probably bend over backward not to be seen as serving a special interest."

At the same time, Mr. Lewis has made clear an NDP government would sympathize with such labor goals as the extension of collective bargaining into new areas of the economy. Existing labor legislation would be subject to revision. The use in labor disputes of outside, non-union workers would be prohibited.

Union officials—many of them active in the party—tend to talk in more general terms.

They speak of an NDP government as being more responsive than the older parties to labor's point of view.

Unions and party might disagree on policy they admit. But at least unionists would know their objection had been weighed carefully.

Not all union members are satisfied organized labor should be trying to correct any political imbalance through support of the NDP.

They argue that unions have enough to do at the bargaining table without seeking political power. Some feel partisan political involvement is a mistake.

Others, a sizable minority, are active supporters of the traditional parties and resent allocations of their unions' resources to the NDP.

For them, there is small comfort in exercising their right to withhold the five-cent-a-month political dues levied that members of affiliated local ties have failed, Mr. Hartford said.

"You can't be active in union affairs for long without meeting politicians," Mr. Hartford said. "And if our rank-and-file guys could see these fellows on their own ground, most of them would ever vote Liberal or Conservative again."

Lynn Williams, a district representative of the United Steelworkers of America, is a member of the provincial NDP executive. In his opinion "unions can't cope with the problems they face effectively without getting involved in politics."

"A lot of our members may not vote for the NDP," Mr. Williams explained. "But most of them seem to feel instinctively that it's a good idea to have the NDP supporting labor politically."

Not only on economic matters, however, is labor seeking a bigger voice and more weight.

"The labor movement is established now. It has enough income to have now a real community presence," says Mr. Williams.

"People are beginning to see that we were right on a lot of the social issues we used to give away at. We can bring a lot of knowledge about the problems to these issues."

Hardly surprising, then, is the conclusion of Morden Lazarus, political education director for the Ontario Federation of Labor.

"Insofar as unions become involved in social issues, they're going to be involved in politics."

Canadian Schizophrenic Foundation Makes It Easier to Spot Symptoms

By DORIS CLARK

Dougie is a little boy who is schizophrenic. Three years ago he was a very sick, frightened child who saw vultures and strange people and heard weird voices telling him to do bad things. Thanks to modern treatment, Dougie is now healthy and the fearful sights and sounds have disappeared.

All schizophrenic children and adults can be helped if, as with Dougie, the illness is detected and treated effectively. The Canadian Schizophrenic Foundation helps bring this about by interpreting the disease to us and making it easier to spot the symptoms.

Write to me if you have questions about it.

• • •

Dear Doris: Read about the lady whom you gave advice on the upgrading course. I am interested in it, since my children are all in school.

I completed my grade eight years ago. So would you please fill me in with all the details.

I've had jobs before I was married but not since. — Mother Aged Thirty.

Dear Mother: What you learned at business may go into the pot as part of your educational background.

All provinces now have continuing education courses to help adults upgrade themselves. To move with this fast-changing world, keeping one thumb in a study book is practically essential. Even if you can't help Junior with his new math, you can get an inkling of what school is all about, if you put your mind to it.

Telephone your local board of education or write to your provincial department, for details. Then if you need help with a special problem, write to me again.

Do let's have a report from you later — to give a little more nerve to the timid ones.

Dear Doris: My daughter's wedding ceremony is at 3 p.m. the reception at 7, with a dance to follow.

Many guests will drop in at our home after the ceremony while the bridal party is being photographed. I want to serve them punch, but what should I serve with it?

Should the bridesmaids wear their large, white hats for the first dance and then remove them? I have noticed groomsmen who were very uncomfortable with these large hats hitting them at eye level. — No Experience.

Dear No Experience: This is an informal gathering. Serve something light. Cookies, or thinly sliced fruit bread.

Yes, remove hats by all means. And I am glad you are doing something about that hiatus between wedding ceremony and reception.

Are you in doubt about the proper etiquette to use for your special occasion? Ask Doris, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for her reply.

WEDDINGS

FERGUSON — MARETT

St. Andrew's Church, Maxmore was the setting for a fall wedding on Saturday afternoon, September 11, at 3 p.m., when Miss Anne Louise Marett, only daughter of Mrs. Donald Pearce Marett, and the late Mr. Marett, became the bride of Mr. Murray Snyder Ferguson, elder son of Mrs. Walter Ferguson and the late Mr. Ferguson, of Alberton, Ontario. Rev. John Peters officiated, and Mrs. Eldon Killian presided at the organ. Mrs. John Beatty sang the solos.

Frank D. Marett, Peterborough, gave his sister in marriage. She wore a floor-length, long sleeved gown, and sleeveless coat, of polyester white crepe. The sleeves were gathered at the shoulders and a narrow stand-up collar and cuffs, were enhanced by an organza ruffletie. The focal point of the sleeveless coat was a hood, which was the bride's headpiece. The ensemble was completed with the repetition of the organza ruffletie around the edge of the hood, and down the front edges of the coat, which flared out into a train. She carried a nosegay of white aster pompoms, and white heather, and a tiny bow of white aster pompons, and ed inside.

Mrs. Ronald Ovens, was matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Karen Ferguson, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Jane Davern, cousin of the bride.

Their gowns were identical floor-length, polyester organza, in aqua, green, purple, and deep rose, in a plaid design over deep rose. The dresses had long full sheer sleeves, a narrow stand-up collar, and a narrow ruffletie down the sides of the bodice front, and with a double flounce around the bottom of the dress.

A long sash enhanced the dress, worn just above the normal waist line. They carried nosegays of feathered asters, graduating from deep rose to pink, and were the same colored aster petals in their hair.

The best man was Lloyd Ferguson, the bridegroom's brother, and the ushers were William Marett, brother of the bride, and John Anguish.

The wedding reception and dinner was held at the Rock Haven, Peterborough, followed by an evening of dancing.

Mrs. Donald P. Marett, the bride's mother received the guests, assisted by Mrs. Walter Ferguson, the bridegroom's mother. Mrs. Marett wore a purple polyester sheer, long sleeve dress, and sleeveless coat. The narrow stand-up collar and cuffs were trimmed with beaded sequins. Her corsage were mauve pom asters, and she wore a purple rose "whimsy" hat. Mrs. Walter Ferguson, the bridegroom's mother, assisted in receiving and wore an ensemble of polyester crepe, small flowered dress coordinating with a hunter's green coat and matching green felt hat.

For travelling the bride wore a tan and beige polyester crepe pant ensemble, and tan accessories. After a trip to Pennsylvania, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Ferguson will live in Alberton, Ontario

One-year Course for Thinking Models

It is the brain child of Valerie - Jean Hume, 26, of Toronto, who will direct it.

Miss Hume says she believes it will turn out a thinking model because she will teach students to understand that modelling is more than just wearing pretty clothes. She wants them to understand what the designer hoped to achieve. She wants them to grasp fashion-basics so they will not turn up for an assignment with accessories that are wrong for the clothes they are to wear.

Miss Hume, called V-J, says the idea for the course developed out of the series of mini-careers she has packed into her life.

A native of Saskatoon, she graduated from the University of Saskatchewan and Saskatchewan Teacher's College and taught school for a while.

She has worked as a fashion model, worked in radio and TV and taught speed reading.

At the beginning of this year she was working at five jobs at once. One was modelling for students in Sheridan's photographic studio. That job is one she now intends to have her students do as part of their training.

CWL Canada Plans Year's Study on the Role of Women in the Catholic Church

REGINA (CP) — A year-long study into the role women can and should play in the Roman Catholic Church will be carried out by the Catholic Women's League of Canada starting this year.

The study was approved at a pre - convention executive meeting Tuesday, said Mary Dobell of Toronto, chairman of the church life committee. More than 1,000 delegates start business sessions today at the league's annual meeting.

"When you mention the role of women in the church, so many women immediately jump to the idea of women being ordained as priests," Miss Dobell said in an interview.

"But there are many more ways that women can be involved in service, which is really what the work of the church is."

The study will examine the implications of the changing role of women in society, she said.

During Tuesday's pre - convention sessions, the executive also sent a telegram to the Canadian Catholic Conference meeting in Edmonton asking the Canadian delegation of bishops to Rome to speak for equal rights for women.

Mrs. J. J. Matthews of Toronto, second vice - president of the 100,000 - member league, said the telegram urged the removal of discriminatory barriers in church law, tradition and practice.

Various Ideas Fit Different Categories

By MARY MOORE

Various small ideas have been collecting for a week that fit different categories so I will assemble them and you can choose to make the ones that fit your needs or fancy.

For Reducers or Low Fat Dieters

Cut medium tomatoes in halves crosswise. Place on buttered baking dish. Sprinkle sparingly with non-fat popcorn salt and lemon pepper. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 15 min. or until heated through. Absolutely delicious and very low in calories.

Drain. Add 2¼ cups water. With your finger tips butter the skin side of chicken breasts. Sprinkle with rotisserie seasoning. Place skin side up on buttered baking dish and bake 40 min. at 325 deg. Fahr. A quick and welcome change.

For tender stomachs on "no roughage" diets

PERFECT SAGO PUDDING (easy — serves 4-6)

Soak ¼ cup sago 2 hrs. in top of double boiler in 2 cups milk and cook in double boiler covered for 30 min. Beat 2 eggs with 1-3 cup sugar and 1 tsp. vanilla and stir into sago-milk mixture. Cover and cook 30 min. longer stirring once. I hope you all make this for the whole family will love it.

WYN'S CREAMY EGG
(Serves 4)

In double boiler heat 1 cup milk. Break 6 eggs into a bowl and add tiny pinch of thyme, ½ tsp. salt and if desired and allowed ¼ tsp. white pepper. Pour into hot milk and at once start beating with rotary beater to break and blend in eggs. Scrape down sides and up from bottom with rubber scraper when it begins to set. When softly set remove from heat at once and serve on preheated plates. If butter is allowed on diet stir in 2 or 3 tablespoons just before serving. Wyn gets a big merit mark for this method.

Elderly Woman Prefers Pets to Her Family

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I liked your answer to the lady who showed pictures of her dog when the women she worked with bragged about their children and passed around snapshots. I have both children and pets, and I can tell you quite honestly that I've had more pleasure from my pets than I've had from my three sons. I have never demanded anything of my children, just hoped to raise them to be good citizens and independent. They are both, I am now in my 70's, live alone (wouldn't have it any other way) and I have two Yorkshire terriers and a Persian cat. The four of us get along beautifully. I am just as proud of their little shenanigans as I am of my sons' achievements — which are considerable. The terriers ("Midcoin-the-Moose" and "Super-Star) have distinctive personalities. The cat (Madam La Zonga") is a real aristocrat. They are wonderful company. I am never lonely.

I'm sure some of my neighbors think I am odd but I don't care. My pets fill a void in my life and I am not ashamed to admit it. — YOUR NEIGHBOR TO THE NORTH.

DEAR NEIGHBOR: Thank you for writing. I can't help but feel a little sad for the mother of three sons who must look to a cat and two terriers to fill "the void in her life." I hope your sons are happy with their "achievements."

* *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read the letter from the big galoot who signed himself "Color Me Gone." I'm so furious I can't see straight. My sister was married to a bully like that and I'm sure if she had shot him, no jury would have convicted her.

There are thousands — maybe millions — of women in this country who wish they could color themselves "Gone," especially after the brutes they are married to have colored them black and blue a few times. But it isn't so easy to pick up and leave a man when you have small children, no money, and no parents who will take you in. So these trapped, miserable women make the best of it.

"Color Me Gone" has a lot to say about his wife's excess weight and the fact that she is a bore and not up on things. He also criticizes her for not being a good sex partner. I wonder when he last brought her a little gift, a handful of flowers — told her she was important to him. Most men who criticize their wives for being slobs treat them like hired help. They save their company manners for some tramp who isn't fit to be in the same room with their wives.

If I sound like a bitter woman, believe me I am not. My own husband is a wonderful man. He has made me feel wanted and loved. But my little sister's life has been hell because she married a rat. I've seen her change from a delightful, fun-loving girl into a sick old woman.

I hope you will print this letter, Ann. It will be a welcome change from the pro-male letters I have read so often in your column. — CHATTANOOGA READER.

DEAR CHAT: Here's your letter. I agree that every story has two sides. Sometimes three.

Community Shower Held

RAWDON — On Friday evening Mount Pleasant Church hall was filled to capacity for the shower held in honor of a newly married couple Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hodgins (nee Carol Sharpe). Relatives were in attendance from Warkworth, Thomasburg, Frankford and the Stirling area.

Rev. W. C. Cox extended congratulations. Mrs. Robert Hoard and Miss Brenda Williams were in charge of the sing-song. The program was interspersed with a four act pantomine given by Mrs. Claire Knight and Mrs. Walter Wrightman assisted by Mrs. Herbert Smith and Mrs. Harry McAdam.

Vocal solos were contributed by Marsha Clancy, June Watson and Marguerite MacMullen while piano solos were played by Mrs. Mac Sharpe, Mrs. Harry Brown and Miss Joanne Campbell. A humorous number was given by Mrs. Robert Hoard. Selections were read by Mrs. Vernon Harry and Mrs. Ron Parr. Mrs. Percy MacMullen recited a number.

The honored couple were given seats of honor and Howard Jeffs read the address and made the presentation of a gift of cutlery. They also received a church plate from the UCW.

Quebec Plans New Family Allowances

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP) — Quebec plans to introduce a new family allowance plan in the summer of 1972, Claude Castonguay, Quebec minister of social affairs, announced Wednesday.

Mr. Castonguay told a news conference that the new program, based on an agreement with the federal government, will involve family allowance payments only to families with an income below a certain figure.

The plan would involve increased federal payments and would represent no additional cost to the province.

Mr. Castonguay, on a tour across the province, said he firmly believes an agreement on social security will be worked out with the federal government.

Quebec has been seeking jurisdiction in the field of social security and rejected the proposed Victoria constitutional charter in June when the charter did not clearly guarantee the province the right to establish its own programs.

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa has said he would accept the charter if he could successfully negotiate the right to introduce provincial family allowance payments while Prime Minister Trudeau said the federal government was willing to discuss social security with Quebec only if it would lead to consensus on the charter.

Mr. Castonguay said Quebec "would have postponed or modified its announcement of its own program if there had been no hope of an agreement with the federal government."

Quebec had waited until after federal legislation had been tabled in the Commons to announce its program "because of last minute readjustments."

The Quebec program would take into account the number of children in a family, their ages and family income, as would the federal bill.

It would call for payments of $15 a month for each dependent child, with the amount increased to $20 if the child had passed his 12th birthday but had not reached his 18th.

It would also grant an additional $15 a month for the fourth child and subsequent children in a family.

Animal Tests Are Protested

TORONTO (CP) — A Roman Catholic society for animal welfare is trying to stop the use of live animals in automotive crash tests in Detroit.

Helen Jones, president and founder of the National Catholic Society for Animal Welfare, said in an interview that General Motors uses baboons in tests at Wayne State University. She says the animals are strapped into sleds which are sent into obstacles at high speeds to determine the effect on the animals.

"It kills them," she said. "So I can't see what it is they're trying to prove.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"...and hurry! My wife is down in the basement trying to hold it back."

Bishops Critical Of Big Companies

EDMONTON (CP) — International corporations which take more out of a country in profits than they put in as capital investment were blamed by Canadian Roman Catholic bishops Wednesday for being major contributors to the widening gap between rich and poor nations.

The topic was discussed during a meeting at the Canadian Catholic Conference, an association of cardinals, archbishops and bishops preparing for the synod in Rome which starts next week.

It was introduced by several bishops during workshops Tuesday but the main accusation Wednesday came from Romeo Maione of Montreal, executive-director of the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace.

Mr. Maione said the church must take a stand on parasitic nations which suck life-giving resources out of poorer nations with the help of mammoth multi-national corporations.

"The church officially must condemn this and identify the countries that operate that way," he said, drawing general agreement from the more than 70 delegates.

Texpack Offer Rejected

BRANTFORD (CP) — Employees on strike at Texpack Ltd. Wednesday night turned down a new company offer for an increase of 27 cents an hour over a two-year contract.

"The company will have to make a more serious offer," said Kent Rowley, national president of the Canadian Textile and Chemical Union, which represents 220 employees at the plant. "The union is still seeking something much more substantial."

Until Wednesday, the last offer made by the company was 20 cents an hour.

Prison Guards Seek Reform

ALBANY, N.Y. (Reuter) — State prison guards will look all convicts in their cells "and feed them and nothing else" unless prison reforms are instituted by Oct. 7, the head of a union representing the state's prison guards said Wednesday.

Jerry Wurf, president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, said his threat stemmed from the four-day rebellion at Attica state prison, which ended in the deaths of 30 convicts and 10 hostages.

Besides demanding immediate reforms at Attica and other state prisons, Wurf called on Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to borrow riot equipment until the state can purchase additional helmets, tear gas and masks. At present, Wurf said, New York state prisons are equipped with "Second World War vintage equipment."

Hospital System Is Under Fire

TORONTO (CP) — Admission and admitting privileges of doctors at hospitals sometimes mean that patients who most urgently need care don't get the available beds, a North York doctor told a committee of inquiry into hospital privileges Wednesday.

Dr. Claude Macdonald said a doctor is allotted a certain number of beds and these beds are used for his patients whether or not more seriously ill patients of another doctor are waiting.

Munro Will Not Drop Ban on Cigarette Ads

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has "no intention of backing down" on its legislation to ban cigarette advertising, Health Minister John Munro said Wednesday.

He was asked by reporters whether the government would withdraw its bill now that the tobacco industry has announced it will cease advertising cigarettes on radio and television.

No, said the minister. The government had set out its intentions in the bill—to ban all advertising including that in the print medium—and it intends to proceed with this.

But he said that with the heavy legislative load facing Parliament there was no point in sticking to the Jan. 1 deadline for the ban.

Since the bill was introduced in June, Mr. Munro has received many submissions on the legislation.

In reply to reporters' questions, Mr. Munro said none of the representations has convinced him to make any substantial change in the legislation, apart from the date

Suggestion Box Valuable

OTTAWA (CP) — Suggestion boxes in federal offices have saved the government an estimated $15 million since 1825.

Frank Adams, executive secretary of the civil service commission's incentive board, said Wednesday the boxes saved taxpayers about $1.25 million last year alone.

Suggestions ranged from a cost-cutting way to handle machine-gun ammunition to a new design for shipboard cabinetry—the latter possibly inspired by the infamous Bonaventure refit.

THE PICK OF Punch

"I don't believe it's been touched! Where are the reassuring oily finger marks on the steering wheel, the greasy smears on the upholstery, the smudges on the paintwork, the footprints on the carpet?"

Health Parley to Learn How to Stop Smoking

LONDON (CP) — Health officials from 23 countries were to be presented today with a University of Toronto study on withdrawal from the smoking habit.

Dr. George Moss, Toronto's deputy medical officer of health, was to present the paper, prepared by himself and chest surgeon Prof. Norman Delarue, to the officials attending the second World Conference on Smoking and Health.

The study, carried out between 1966 and 1969 with 472 participants, achieved a success rate of 28.6 per cent total abstention for one year after completing the course. In men, 33.9 per cent were successful, and in women 20.8 per cent, the report says.

"Simple appreciation of the risks of smoking had no significant deterrent or motivating influence. On the other hand the smokers reported that they were impressed by the concern shown by study-centre staff and obviously responded favorably to any evidence of personal interest in their welfare."

U.S. Press Better

LONDON (AP) — "The American press is a far better watchdog for the public interest than the British press," says a new book on Britain's Official Secrets Act, an 82-year-old law that prevents British newspapers from prying into government business.

The book argues that British reporters are barred from the kind of investigative reporting that wins prizes in the United States. It says "Britain today has the most closed government in the free world."

Two of Three Jobless Have Kinfolk Working

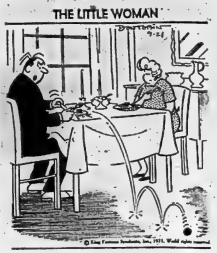
OTTAWA (CP) — Nobody brings home a paycheque in one out of every three Canadian families hit directly by unemployment. In the other two, at least one member of the family is still working.

On average, last year, for example, 396,000 families experienced some unemployment. Of those households, about 140,800 —35 per cent—had nobody working. But one or more members of the remaining 255,000 families remained working while a father, son or other kin was jobless.

The figures are contained in a study of unemployment published Thursday by Statistics Canada under the title Facts About the Unemployed. It contains breakdowns of statistics during the last decade.

Data on the impact of unemployment on family units are averages of figures assembled throughout the year during four months in spring, summer, fall and winter. The numbers thus present a typical situation, although patterns normally fluctuate with the seasons.

The statistics suggest that, while unemployment has worsened in recent years, the proportion of affected families without at least one member working has declined.



Compared with the 35 per cent of affected families with nobody working last year, the proportion of families in the same situation during 1965 was 39 per cent.

Similarly, among all the unemployed last year, 37 out of 100 were heads of families whereas 43 of 100 unemployed were the family's chief breadwinner in 1965.

That proportion fluctuates with the seasons.

On average throughout last year, the study shows an unemployed total of 492,000. Of those, 47,000 were living singly.

Kitchener Welfare Cut For 73 Single People

KITCHENER (CP) — The Kitchener welfare department is continuing its "get-tough" policy with youths who fail to obtain jobs because of their appearance.

J. A. Bernstihl, welfare administrator, has told city council's welfare committee that 73 single persons have been dropped from public assistance since August, when the committee decided to drop two long-haired youths from the rolls.

Mr. Bernstihl told a committee meeting Monday that since then, more than 40 welfare recipients have reported that they have obtained jobs and want assistance to tide them over to their first paycheques.

Mr. Bernstihl said each month benefits will be stopped to a few more persons who have been on the rolls for many months without obtaining jobs. They would be given applications to appeal to a provincial review board.

Mayor Sid McLennan said that many persons are using welfare payments to purchase drugs and alcohol, and those who ended up in hospital with bad drug reactions were costing taxpayers even more.

He suggested that the provincial department of social and family services be asked to send an adviser to Kitchener to study the problem.

Mr. Bernstihl said in an interview Wednesday that the number of persons using welfare money to purchase drugs appears to be increasing.

"In the last few months we have been averaging about five cases a month who require payment of hospital bills resulting from treatment for bad trips," he said.

Lortie Found Guilty

MONTREAL (CP) — Bernard Lortie, looking tired but calm, at one point smiled Wednesday night when he was told that he had been found guilty of kidnapping Pierre Laporte, Quebec labor minister strangled last October.

The unanimous guilty verdict was made at midnight after 3½ hours of deliberations by the 12-man jury hearing his case.

The 19-year-old trade school dropout is to be sentenced Nov. 22. He faces a possible sentence of life imprisonment.

Mr. Justice Jean-Paul Bergeron told the accused after the verdict was rendered that his actions during the trial were "execrable."

Lortie also was charged with contempt of court for throwing a small paper ball at the judge at the start of last Friday's morning sitting of the trial held in Court of Queen's Bench.

No date has been set for proceedings with the contempt charge.

Shipping Revival Possible

OTTAWA (CP) — New developments in shipbuilding could help revive Canada's nearly-extinct deep-sea merchant marine, says a special report to the Canadian transport commission.

It says supertankers and giant bulk-carrier ships, coupled with increased automation, could allow countries like Canada to compete in world shipping markets despite lower costs elsewhere. But government aid would be needed.

The study was carried out for the commission by a consulting group headed by Hedlin, Menzies and Associates Ltd. of Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

The 305-page report examines the economic feasibility of a Canadian ocean-going merchant marine from 1970 to 1985 and concludes that ships of more than 90,000 tons deadweight could be economically worthwhile for Canada if used to carry coal, iron ore and crude oil.

Smaller ships would be less beneficial or uneconomic.

The study did not include the Great Lakes and coastal trade.

The report says Canada's deep-sea merchant marine has tumbled to 29th in size among world fleets from fourth place in 1945. It now totals three vessels.

Ocean-going cargo ships account for only 70,000 tons of a 885,000-ton salt-water fleet. The remainder of the fleet aside from the three ships comprises government, coastal and fishing vessels.

Operating costs are far higher for Canadian ships than foreign vessels, the report says—higher crew wages being a major reason. But bigger, more-automated ships could carry small crews, reducing the importance of high wages.

U.S. Views Egg War With Alarm

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada's "chicken-and-egg war," resulting from overproduction, is causing deep concern in the United States where reverberations are being felt, says an agriculture department expert.

"Protective policies of some provincial marketing boards" and increased production in 1970 has driven Canada's output to record levels, writes William C. Bowser in the department's magazine Foreign Agriculture.

"By the year's end, stocks of poultry meat, especially in Quebec, and egg stocks in Manitoba and Ontario and some other provinces had become burdensome," he adds.

One situation that already has had a sharp impact on U.S. sales abroad came last February when the Canadian government to help Quebec producers, authorized subsidy payments on [illegible] of three million pounds of broilers and parts destined mainly for Japan and Hong Kong, two traditional U.S. markets.

A formal U.S. protest brought assurance from Canada that the sales were a one-shot deal.

Monetary Experts Plan Series of Talks

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is prepared to support almost any plans for an international money cure that abolishes President Nixon's 10-per-cent import duty as quickly as possible, government sources said Wednesday.

Federal ministers, backed by officials, will participate in a three-way round of international meetings in the next 10 days.

Allstair Gillespie, science minister and former vice-chairman of the Commons finance committee, flies to Nassau to represent Canada at a Commonwealth finance ministers meeting today and Friday.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson will go to Washington for a Sunday meeting of the 10 leading trading powers of the Western world, plus the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund and World Bank for Reconstruction and Development. That starts Monday. Mr. Benson is scheduled to address the meeting Tuesday.

Officials here say they are not confident anything really concrete will come of the series of conferences. They suggest it may take six months or a year of living with President Nixon's new economic policies, and further international negotiations, to produce a solution.

The problem is a long-standing one, climaxed Aug. 15 when President Nixon untied the U.S. dollar from the price of gold, recognized by governments for the settlement of international debts.

Technically, gold is still priced at $35 an ounce, in U.S. dollar terms. But since Aug. 15, the U.S. will no longer buy and sell gold at that price.

At the same time, President Nixon ordered a 90-day domestic wage and price freeze, to be straint program after mid-November. He asked Congress to speed up some pending tax cuts followed by some kind of reand other tax measures to encourage business expansion. He slapped a 10-per-cent extra duty on U.S. imports of most manufactured goods.

It was the latter move that hit Canada hardest. It was called temporary and Canada asked for a quick general exemption from it. But it is now becoming apparent that duty may remain indefinitely, probably at least until after the presidential elections in November, 1972.

The surcharge exempts Canadian raw materials such as petroleum and ores, which feed the big U.S. industrial machine.

But it hits, with an impact still being measured, secondary industry—the manufacturing jobs centred in Ontario that employ more manpower.

And Canada, as both the largest customer and the largest supplier of the U.S. has been the first to react to the surcharge with a scheme to compensate companies proving damage from the surcharge.

It is the considered view of many officials as well as the government of Prime Minister Trudeau that the Nixon hard line has seriously worsened Canada's fight against economic afflictions at a time when recovery was beginning to show.

But a solution is difficult to visualize soon.

Freeing the U.S. dollar from its old tie with the official U.S. price of gold forced most nations to give up struggling to hold their currencies at a set par value. All major currencies now are floating in international markets except the French franc for official purposes—though even the franc is floating in the investment money market.

Canada's dollar was unpegged from a value of 92.5 cents U.S. at the end of May, 1970. The federal treasury could no longer withstand the pressure from the rest of the world wanting Canadian dollars. That demand was caused by purchases of Canadian goods, investment in Canadian enterprises or simply as a speculative investment, hoping the government would be forced to revalue the Canadian dollar upward.

The particular U.S. problem is rooted in the steady economic expansion of the 1960s, combined with the costly Vietnam war, heavy internal spending, international aid programs and military spending elsewhere.

Large U.S. corporations investing abroad have subjected the U.S. home market to a flood of foreign-made goods.

All this could be financed as long as the U.S. was selling more to the rest of the world than it was buying, and there was a net inflow of money into the United States. But in recent years, the U.S. balance-of-payments position has worsened to the point that U.S. gold reserves became dangerously low.

Minor Hockey Expanding Fast

by

Mauriee Switzer

Sports Editor

MINOR HOCKEY is more than a month distant, but Friday the line begins forming at the rear.

The estimated 1,500 boys who will be participating in the 1971-72 edition of Belleville minor hockey begin signing on the dotted lines in registration sessions at the Memorial Arena tomorrow evening from 7-9 p.m., and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., with the same arrangements the following weekend.

In between, registrations will be taken from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. weekdays at the Pinnacle St. Recreation Centre.

"Our executive has been averaging two meetings a week planning for this season, and we're going to have 25 or 30 volunteers working 12 hours each at registering, so the least the parents could do is take a few minutes to come down and register their boys," minor hockey association publicist Austin Watkin says.

He was referring, of course, to the perennial scattering of adults who either forget or don't bother to align their sons up for the house league season. Latecomers must wait on the sidelines until vacancies are created.

HIGHER FEES this year—(single registration is up a dollar to $6, family plans up to $12 from $10) — will bring an average 16 additional hours ice time per boy, largely due to the addition of a long - overdue second artificial ice surface in the city.

That myth, incidentally, about the Dicks Ellis Rink housing all minor hockey action is not entirely true, Watkin hastens to point out. The peewee house league, largest group in the system with 22 teams anticipated, has the Memorial Arena booked Saturdays, while the six city OMHA "all-star" teams will retain their traditional Sunday schedules in the old arena.

In addition to sheer numerical growth, there are other signs of development in Belleville's minor hockey operation. Beginning this year, the tyke (7 and 8-year-olds), novice (9-10), peewee (11-12), and bantam (13-14) house leagues will be divided into minor and major divisions so that first-year players in an age group won't be pitted against older, and usually larger boys.

MORE ICE availability is a welcome blessing to boys in all age groups. "Where they played 50-minute games last year, they'll all be an hour this year," says executive member Watkin. The tykes, who previously played three house league games simultaneously the width of Memorial Arena will now play two games at once in each half of the Dick Ellis Rink.

"Last year the average boy got 39 hours of hockey a season," Watkin informed. "This year it will be in the area of 55."

Sponsorship is also on the upswing. Last year, some 25 of the 68 BMHA house league teams were unsponsored, which meant, in effect, that the taxpayer, through city grants to minor sport, picked up the tab. This time around, it appears all of the planned 80 teams will have private backing.

"But it's a funny thing," Watkin mused. "About four house league champion sponsors dropped out. I don't know what that means."

The association is still in the market for about 40 coaches and assistants, as well as referees, for whom clinics are being planned in the near future. Volunteers should contact Blake Moynes, vice-president in charge of the tyke, novice and peewee divisions, or Bob Cook, executive co-ordinating the bantam, midget, and juvenile house leagues.

FIRST vice-president Russ Soule will have his usual handful exercising the all-star teams, who begin practise Oct. 9.

In fact, none of the minor hockey figureheads has what you'd call an "executive job." Registrar Russ Cook will spend much of his time scanning the scoresheets to weed out habitual absentees, who will be suspended to make room for boys on the waiting list serious about playing.

In addition to their other chores, six of the seven BMHA executives, including president Don Gavey and referee-in-chief Les Williams, also donate their services as officials. And that's what's called practising what you preach.

First baseman Leah Harper of Wesse's Flowers leans into a pitch in last night's Women's Softball League finals match at the Airmile Wesse's came through with an 8-7 win over Cozy Grill after dropping the first three games in the best-of-seven championship series.

Grill Fire Doused

Wesse's Flowers managed to put out a last - inning fire by Cozy Grill to word off elimination from the Women's Softball final series.

A seventh inning rally by Cozy fell just short as Wesse's recorded an 8-7 win after absorbing three straight setbacks in the series.

Donna Brant hurled eight-hit ball to record the victory, striking out three batters and walking an equal number. The Wesse's hurler pitched herself out of a jam in the final frame recording the last out after Cozy had plotted four runs and left the bases loaded.

Sandra Claus was tagged with the loss giving up 16 hits and two walks, while starter Brakenreo at Cobourg, 7:30 p.m.

Hunter Takes Reins Of Junior Fairways

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

"It's the same game, whether it's peewee or the NHL," is how Murray "Moe" Hunter feels about taking over the coaching reins of the Belleville Junior B Fairways.

If the philosophy holds true for junior hockey, then the Belleville sportsman will be well equipped to guide the Fairways' fortunes this season. Hunter has had wide experience in the coaching ranks, having handled bench duties in bantam, peewee and novice divisions of minor hockey as well as filling a similar position two years ago with Picton of the Intermediate "B" league.

A former Belleville Junior "B" competitor himself, 'Moe' has played in the Intermediate league with Picton for the past six seasons. He has had experience with junior age players as coach of the Kinsmen Juniors baseball team last year and part of this season, before participation in the Commercial Softball League forced him to relinquish the coaching duties.

Hunter will succeed Floyd Crawford who has handled the coaching reins of the Belleville B's for the past three campaigns, guiding the team to fourth - place finishes the past two seasons. Crawford and Fairways' manager Jim Matthews were unable to come to terms for the 1971-72 season.

"I'm sure that Moe will do a good job with the club, the kids like him, and that's half the battle," offered the retiring Belleville coach. "I won't be connected with the team in any official way, but I'm going to be there rooting for them. I'd just like to thank the players, parents, fans and everybody who helped out in the last few years."

The new Fairways' pilot feels that handling junior age players will not deviate too much from his Intermediate experience, "although I think you can demand a little more from them because they're not tied up with job commitments."

He is enthusiastic about Belleville's chances for this season in the 71-72 Eastern Ontario Junior B campaign. "From the names we have on paper I'd say we should fare pretty well. I think that we'll be very strong defensively," he offers. Candidates for the defence corps are expected to include John Mulvihill, Peter Ackerman and Kevin Dockrill, all standout performers last year.

Wins Via Different Routes

Quinte Juniors took the high road and the seniors took the low road, but both football teams opened with wins in Peter Bay of Quinte COSSA schedule.

The junior Saints utilized strong outside running and a potent passing attack to down Centre Hastings 25-1, while the seniors were using a strong defensive effort to come out ahead 27-0 of their Madoc opponents.

A pair of gallops by halfback Mike Taylor sparked the Quinte juniors to a 17-1 halftime lead in their contest. Taylor counted majors on runs of 25 and seven yards, while Terry Marek hauled in two-point conversion passes from quarterback Dave Bird on both plays.

Singles by Taylor and Centre Hastings kicker Larry Green accounted for the other first half scores. Murray Hannah added the final Quinte touchdown in the fourth quarter on an off-tackle plunge, with Marek picking up another two-point reception.

The defending Bay of Quinte champion seniors picked off three errant Madoc passes to help themselves to the 27-0 win. Touchdowns landed winners went to Terry Meagher, Paul Hall, Paul McQuaid, Stu Boardman, Bill Kirkham and Al Hayman, while Hall booted a convert for the other point.

Mills Chosen

George Mills will be calling the signals for the Belleville Minor Baseball Association in 1972 after being elected to the post of president at a general meeting held at Ben Bleecker Auditorium last night.

Mills can be assured of experienced back-up help in his new position with the election of last year's president John Emerson to the post of first vice. Splitting the duties of second vice - president will be Gerry Masterson and Layne Cronkright.

Returning from the 1971 executive to the same positions will be third vice - president Mrs. Jean Reid and secretary-treasurer Cy Bochnek. The equipment manager will be Chuck Bartlett.

Als' Blitz Belts Keeling

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes beat Calgary Stampeders 26-11 in a Canadian Football League exhibition game Wednesday night and Calgary coach Jim Duncan said: "They lined up and ran over us."

With 20,821 watching, Montreal linebackers blitzed the Calgary quarterbacks time and again.

Terry Evanshen and Tom Pullen scored touchdowns for the Als and Justin Canale kicked four field goals and two converts.

The only Calgary touchdown was scored by Herm Harrison. Larry Robinson kicked a field goal, a single and a convert.

"They haven't shown as much blitz as they did tonight," said Duncan. "We knew they were going to line up and come after us, but, frankly, I didn't think they would blitz as much as they did."

Duncan was unhappy with the way his offensive line handled the blitz.

"We didn't get ourselves in the right frame of mind to accept the fact they were coming at us that hard."

On one of the Als' sorties into the Calgary backfield late in the second quarter, first string quarterback Jerry Keeling was belted by a Montreal linebacker.

"Keeling's got a separated shoulder," said a team trainer. "We won't know how serious it is until we have x-rays taken."

Rookie Jim Lindsey came in and threw a 24-yard TD strike to Harrison early in the fourth quarter.

The Stampeders took a 3-0 lead at 6:49 of the opening quarter when Robinson booted his field goal from the Montreal 32.

Less than seven minutes later, Alouettes' quarterback Sonny Wade found Evanshen alone in the end zone and fired a 20-yard touchdown pass to the flanker.

Montreal coach Sam Etcheverry said that Calgary may have been looking past Montreal towards their game against the Argonauts in Toronto this weekend.

"A lot of people said the Calgary-Toronto game was going to be a Grey Cup preview. So maybe they were looking past us."

Duncan denied this, saying his club "hadn't thought about Toronto at all."

Etcheverry said that halfback Bill Massey ran the ball "with more authority" as he gained 146 yards on 14 carries. Massey, a rookie from the University of Hawaii, also caught three passes for 23 yards.

Cahill Rehired

TORONTO (CP) — Leo Cahill said Wednesday night he has agreed to terms of a new contract as coach of Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League.

Cahill, who had been working on a four-year contract that was to expire after next season, would not reveal the terms, but it is believed his new contract will run through the 1973 season.

* * *

TORONTO (CP) — Ten days after he saw his first game of Canadian football, Ohio State star Tim Anderson was getting his first on-the-job training.

"At first he looked a little slow, but now he's as fast as anybody . . ." says Leo Cahill, head coach of Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference.

"He's got good moves. He made a fine run after his interception in Ottawa on Sunday."

Anderson, first round draft choice of San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League, has played five games at defensive halfback and has made two pass interceptions.

Anderson says he has discovered there is more room to move on the larger Canadian field which is 15 yards wider, 10 yards longer and 15 yards deeper in the end zones.

"I guess the hardest thing I found is the sideline isn't where it used to be."

Justin Canale of Montreal Alouettes moved into a tie for third place with Leon McQuay of Toronto Argonauts in the Eastern Football Conference scoring race Wednesday night when the Alouettes trounced Calgary Stampeders of the Western Conference 26-11 at Montreal.

Canale booted four field goals and converted two touchdowns to harvest 14 points for a season total of 48. McQuay has the same number of points from eight touchdowns.

Mikita Ejected for Argument

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago stars Stan Mikita and Bobby Hull took local exception Wednesday night to a National Hockey League rule that calls for a minor penalty for a goaltender delaying a game.

Although Hull escaped a penalty, Mikita was banished from the game in the third period as Toronto Maple Leafs tied the Black Hawks 4-4 at Toronto.

Mikita was in the dressing room when Norm Ullman deflected the puck past goalkeeper Tony Esposito with 27 seconds remaining after Leafs had removed their goalie, Bernie Parent, for an extra attacker.

Boston Bruins' superstar Bobby Orr was also ejected from a game at Kitchener, Ont., where New York Rangers scored their first victory, 6-3, before 7,000 fans.

Elsewhere, Buffalo Sabres broke Pittsburgh Penguins' three-game winning streak with a 2-2 tie at Brantford, Ont., Philadelphia Flyers defeated California Golden Seals 4-1 at Kingston, Ont., and Los Angeles and Vancouver battled to a 3-3 tie at Calgary, Alta.

The dispute at Maple Leaf Gardens between Mikita and referee Bruce Hood occurred after Esposito was penalized for scooping the puck over the boards.

He was charged with delaying the game, the second time the Hawks were called for that infraction.

"I mouthed off a little, I guess," said Mikita, "but all I was trying to tell him (Hood) was that Esposito was trying to clear the puck off the glass."

"It's a stupid rule anyway," exclaimed Hull, who argued that the games are often delayed for TV commercials.

STAN MIKITA

Ullman's goal climaxed a Leaf rally after Pit Martin gave Hawks a 4-3 lead at 8:32 of the third. Martin beat Parent, who replaced Jacques Plante midway in the game.

Ullman also scored in the second period, along with Dave Keon, after Darryl Sittler gave Toronto a first-period lead. Two Chicago goals were supplied by Lou Angotti and one by Cliff Koroll.

At Kitchener, Pete Stemkowski paced Rangers with two goals. Rod Gilbert, Ab Demarco, Jack Egers and Bill Fairbairn scored the others.

Johnny Bucyk, with two, and Derek Sanderson were the Bruins' snipers.

Orr was a victim of another new rule in the NHL this season, invoked by referee John Ashley. He was charged with interfering in a fight. Bruin defenceman Dallas Smith also was banished for the same reason.

"The third man who becomes physically involved in a fight gets the penalty and an automatic $100 fine," explains Frank Udvari, eastern supervisor of NHL officials.

"He's the guy who causes an unfair advantage and leads to other players coming off the bench."

Plante Finally Starts Training

TORONTO (CP) — When Jacques Plante moved in to Toronto Maple Leafs' goal at the start of the 1970-71 National Hockey League season, many wondered where the veteran fitted into the club's avowed youth movement.

But no one could complain about the way he maintained a goals-against average of 1.88 in his 40 games last season, backing the Leafs in 24 victories, including four shutouts.

And now, at 42 and in training camp for his 18th season of professional hockey, the grey-haired netminder is astounded at how good he feels.

So what's the explanation for this rejuvination of Plante who played his first pro game in 1951 with Montreal Royals of the old Quebec Senior League?

"This was the fist summer in my life when I trained," said Plante.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Peterborough, PCOs forced a seventh and deciding game in the Minto Cup Canadian junior lacrosse finals Wednesday with a solid 13-11 victory over Richmond (B.C.) Roadrunners.

A total of 130 minutes in penalties were handed out in a game that had to be called briefly in the second period after a lengthy fight between Ron Ryan of Peterborough and Gord Oslichuk of Richmond.

The deciding game will be held here tonight. The West has not won the Minto Cup since 1962.

Peterborough stormed to a 5-2 first-period lead and led 10-4 going into the final 20 minutes. Richmond outscored PCOs seven goals to three in the third.

Richey Quits Davis Cup Team

NEW YORK (AP) — A bitter Cliff Richey has quit the United States Davis Cup squad, criticizing officials for failure to consult with players on the selection of the captain and the playing surface for the 1971 Challenge Round.

The action further cripples an American squad already weakened by loss of Arthur Ashe, Jr., Bob Lutz and Charlie Pasarell to LaMar Hunt's pro tour.

The U.S. is scheduled to meet a tough Romanian team of Ilie Nastase and Ion Tiriac on clay courts in Charlotte, N.C., Oct. 8-10.

Richey, 24, of San Angelo, Tex., No. 1 in the U.S. rankings and rated one of the world's best clay court players, was the individual standout of the U.S. victory over West Germany in Cleveland last year.

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves' outfielder Rico Carty was cleared Wednesday of charges of striking a police officer and creating a turmoil in August.

Municipal Judge R. M. Sparks, in dismissing the charges against Carty and his brother-in-law, Carlos Ramirez said the incident was "shamefully handled by city police."

Three city police, five of them off-duty at the time of the trouble, were earlier fired from the city force following a hearing before the police board.

NEW YORK (AP) — The North American Soccer League announced Wednesday night two plans which they feel will lead to the eventual North American-ization of the eight-team loop.

At a news conference, NASL commissioner Phil Woosnam announced that next February the league will conduct a draft of college seniors in co-operation with the Intercollegiate Soccer Football Association and the Canadian Soccer Association.

In addition each club will be required to have at least two U.S. or Canadian citizens on its roster by the beginning of the 1972 campaign with that number increasing to three the following year and four in 1974.

MONTREAL (CP) — George Athans, recently-crowned world water ski champion, would like to win a gold medal for Canada in the sport when Montreal plays host to the 1976 Summer Olympics.

But there are a couple of drawbacks.

First of all the sport hasn't been officially added to the roster of competition for the 1972 Summer Games at Munich and will be handled on a demonstration basis only. And by the time the August International Olympic Committee approves it as a competition for 1976, Athans figures he may not be around.

Athans, a 19-year-old native of Kelowna, B.C., and now a second-year arts student at Montreal's Sir George Williams University, won the over-all world title at Banalon, Spain, last weekend.

Athans, whose father Dr. George Athans of Kelowna was a British Empire Games diving champion, said he would like to study architecture at the University of British Columbia eventually, but has no immediate plans to move back West.

The 1972 Mercurys. We've made them the way you want them.

Montego MX Brougham 2-door hardtop

Over the years, we've been in touch with thousands of you. You've been telling us what you want. We've been listening. And we've been learning from you.

One thing we've learned is this: if we don't make our cars the way you want them, you won't buy them. And we'll be out of business.

We've learned you want to feel safe. You want your car to be reliable. You want it to be comfortable. And you want it to be good looking.

Yet, you're a lot of different people. And you don't all want the same kind of car.

Some of you want small, economical cars. Well, we've made them. In Europe. And in North America.

Some of you want the feel of a sports car while others want a car that's big and luxurious. To others, it's quietness. To some, ride is the most important factor. And still others feel that size and ease of handling come first.

We've taken all these factors into consideration. And further, we've tested our cars. Tested the body styles. Tested the comfort, ride and quietness factors. We've built safety features into our cars and anti-pollution systems.

The result: The 1972 Mercurys. We've made them the way you want them.

Expos Take First Step Out of National League Basement

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos clinched fifth place in the National League's East Division Wednesday night with a 2-0 blanking of Philadelphia Phillies.

Bill Stoneman handcuffed the Phillies on eight hits, striking out 11 and walking eight to pick up his 17th win of the year, a career high for the right-handed ace. It was the sixth time this season that he had struck out 10 or more batters in a game and ran his season's strikeout total to 242—third in the league behind New York Mets' Tom Seaver and Ferguson Jenkins of the Chicago Cubs.

Stoneman dealled with Rick Wise, the Phillies ace, through four innings before the Expos gave him a working lead in the bottom of the fifth.

Pirates Clinch Eastern Flag

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"On to the World Series," crooned Willie Stargell, leading the celebration after Pittsburgh Pirates nailed down the National League's East Division championship with a 5-1 triumph over St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night.

While Pittsburgh locked up the East, the West Division remained a hot item although in better perspective than recent days. The front-running San Francisco Giants topped Houston Astros 3-1 and moved their lead to 2½ games over Los Angeles Dodgers, who lost 4-1 to Cincinnati Reds.

The third-place Atlanta Braves, meanwhile, were mathematically eliminated after losing 7-3 to San Diego Padres.

In the other NL games, Chicago Cubs bounced New York Mets 4-1 and Montreal Expos beat Philadelphia Phillies 2-0.

"This club had pressure on it," said Pittsburgh manager Danny Murtaugh, "but it responded well. We went into a little slump and came out of it."

The slump to which Murtaugh referred was a five-game string of losses Sunday and Tuesday as the Pirates failed to clinch the title while lugging the champagne around.

The East title was the second straight for the Pirates, who lost last year's NL playoffs to Cincinnati.

Luke Walker and Dave Giusti combined for a six-hitter as the Pirates clinched the division title five days earlier than last season. Walker pitched the first six innings and yielded four singles while Giusti finished up for his 29th save.

Bobby Bonds knocked in two runs, including a tie-breaking homer in the fifth inning and Juan Marichal pitched a six-hitter in San Francisco's victory that gave the Giants a little breathing room over the Dodgers.

Gary Nolan pitched a five-hitter and George Foster smacked a two-run double as Cincinnati dealt a blow to the Dodgers' pennant hopes.

Powell Pounds Pair Off Yanks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boog Powell slammed his 30th and 31st home runs of the season on Wednesday night, each a two-run shot, as Baltimore Orioles pounded New York Yankees 10-1 and clinched a tie for the American League's East Division title.

One more Baltimore victory in seven games or one more loss by second-place Detroit Tigers in six games will make the Orioles East Division champions for the third straight year and put them into the AL playoffs against Oakland's West Division winners.

Both East teams are idle today, so the earliest pennant clinching could be Friday when the Orioles play the Indians in a twi-night double-header at Cleveland, and the Tigers entertain the Yankees.

The Tigers' pennant chances were virtually extinguished Wednesday night when they dropped a 3-2 decision to Boston Red Sox. Elsewhere in American League, Chicago White Sox blanked Oakland 3-0; Kansas City Royals walloped California Angels 10-3; and Washington Senators edged Cleveland Indians 3-2. The Milwaukee at Minnesota game was rained out.

Powell's two homers boosted his runs-batted-in total for the season to 87 and his batting average to .283, the first time he has been over the .250 mark this year.

Powell was not the only Orioles' hitting star. Rookie Bobby Grich hit his first major league homer, a three-run shot in the fifth, and Ellie Hendricks collected four hits, drove in two runs and scored one.

Detroit's Mickey Lolich, the winningest pitcher in the majors, was folled in his bid for his 26th victory when Boston rallied for three runs in the eighth inning to overcome a 2-0 Tiger lead.

Serling's Night Gallery Not to Reviewer's Taste

NEW YORK (AP) — Some weird things are turning up on Rod Serling's Night Gallery, expanded this season into a weekly series.

Tacked on the end of NBC's Wednesday night schedule, the hour-long show seems to be the opposite of Love, American Style, a number of short, unrelated pieces but with the macabre substituted for love and gruesome for comedy.

The most recent contribution opened with E. G. Marshall playing a gentle funeral home proprietor who collected bodies. Another long segment had Vincent Price play a professor training a seminar of robot students to become racists and bigots.

There were two short blackouts. One, which telegraphed its ending early, had Imogene Coca building herself a suicide cell. The other, presumably designed for grisly humor, involved cannibalism.

Maybe the whole thing is in fun. But for some the program seemed a tasteless exercise in horror, light years away from the sort of thing Alfred Hitchcock produced with sly grace.

Earlier, also on NBC, Marshall Sam McCloud reappeared — still a determined, matching-chewing country lawman outwitting the big city criminals and even the city police department to which he is temporarily assigned.

The gimmick of McCloud is the innocent deceptive way the New Mexico marshal questions the suspects. However, the awkard dialogue given to Weaver would have made even a juvenile delinquent suspect what he was up to.

The first of the season's McCloud shows had the hero exposing a complicated scheme involving an astrologer, his wealthy wife, a kidnapper and a time bomb. Sebastian Cabot played the villian, but it was hard to believe in him after all those seasons when he was the lovable gentleman a gentleman of Family Affair.

Tweed District News

TWEED — The following persons attended the Phillips — Fitzgerald wedding on September 11 at Hyde Park Presbyterian Church, Niagara Falls, N.Y.: Miss Annie Holmes and Mr. John Holmes of Stirling; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Holmes, Madoc; Mr. and Mrs. James Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holmes, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Armstrong, Tottenham, Ontario; Mr. and Mrs. George Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Fox, and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Pack," all of Marmora.

Mrs. Simpson McCrea, of Bridge Street, Tweed, is still a patient in Belleville General Hospital, and celebrated her birthday on September 22. She is now in the extended care of that hospital.

Over 30 young 4-H showmen participated in a special barrow show at the Napanee Fair earlier this week, the results were both bitter and sweet to all the youngsters. Judge for this year's event was Carl Clayton of Bath, Ontario, director of the Ontario Pork Producers Association. Meeting Chinese Important

OTTAWA (CP) — Meeting the Chinese was the most important accomplishment of the trade mission he led to the People's Republic of China, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin told the Senate foreign affairs committee Wednesday.

As a result of that contact, Canada was granted "the extraordinary privilege" of annual consultations in which it would be informed of China's import needs for the following year. The first consultation was scheduled for Peking in December.

"This is a good position to be in — it is of great importance," Mr. Pepin said.

Pepin Will Not Tell GM What to Do

OTTAWA (CP) — Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, who raised opposition ire in the Commons Wednesday for not reporting to Parliament on his talks with General Motors executives, said outside the chamber the government "has no intention of telling General Motors what to do."

John Minifie, GM vice-president in charge of finance, and John Barbeau, executive vice-president, met Mr. Pepin early Wednesday to discuss GM production reductions that will affect about 1,925 employees in five Canadian plants.

Mr. Pepin, who evaded reporters after the morning meeting, told an afternoon news conference that GM is a U.S.-owned company with all its decisions made in the U.S. "They decide there where to put plants and what styles they will produce."

Although the two executives talked to Mr. Pepin about future company plans, he said he was not at liberty to say what those plans were. The government will not interfere with company operations.

In the Commons, opposition members jumped on Prime Minister Trudeau when he said there was no parliamentary rule requiring the industry minister to report on his talks with the GM vice-presidents.

New Democrat Leader David Lewis said Mr. Trudeau was treating the Commons with contempt by failing back on a technicality.

A motion by New Democrat Edward Broadbent (Oshawa-Whitby) that debate on grain legislation be adjourned so Mr. Pepin could be called in to report on his morning talks with GM was defeated 151-to-27. Liberals and Conservatives voted solidly against the New Democrats and Social Credit members.

Outside the Commons, Mr. Broadbent said Mr. Pepin "got exactly what he said he would.

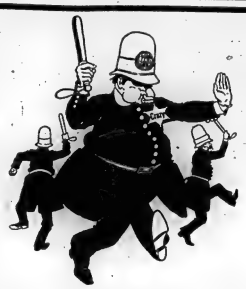
"He said he wouldn't ask for anything and that's what he got," said Mr. Broadbent.

Mr. Pepin said Canadian auto unions should be putting pressure on GM about the production slowdown—"They should do something about it."

But, he added, none of the workers will be "thrown into the street."

Most will receive 90 per cent of their income—tax free—for a year after their jobs and from unemployment insurance. Others will be leaving the company "through the normal process of attrition and transfers."

The company executive would not say how long the production reduction was expected to last, nor whether the company had any specific plans to reduce the layoffs.



Participatory Democracy Flouted Claim Members

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal claims about participatory democracy are just window-dressing, opposition MPs contended Wednesday, citing the government's attitude on grain legislation as proof.

"People just won't tolerate this type of nonsense," Lorne Nystrom (NDP—Yorkton-Melville) warned as the Commons continued debate on the government bill designed to provide income insurance for grain farmers.

Richard R. Southam (PC—Qu'Appelle-Moose Mountain) said the government's position was outrageous in view of the avalanche of western mail protesting the bill.

The opposition contention was that the government was dangling a $100 million carrot to force the House into accepting the prairie grain income stabilization bill, meanwhile refusing to make some $37 million in overdue payments to farmers under grains legislation still on the books.

Dust Collector

This is not a pipe organ, but an advanced design anti-pollution dust collector developed by Wheelabrator Corp. of Canada Ltd., Oakville, Ont. The Ultra Jet employs grids of pipe-like air nozzles under which fell bags are suspended and dust-laden air enters the unit housing the jet and downward pressure forces the dust to adhere to the bags. A jet of air shoots into each bag to jar loose caked dust, which falls to the floor for collection in a hopper, and clean air is then allowed into the atmosphere. The unit is designed for high-dust industries including cement, grain elevators and ore processing. (CP Photo)

Scientists to Try to Talk to Other Worlds

WASHINGTON (AP) — An International group of scientists thinks it is now feasible and worthwhile to try communicating with their extraterrestrial counterparts.

Dr. Carl Sagan and Dr. Frank Drake, two Cornell University astronomers, said this conclusion was reached at the First Soviet-American Conference on Communication with Extraterrestrial intelligence held at Byurakan, U.S.S.R., Sept. 5-11.

While the participants by no means agreed on every detail, they did decide that the promise of contacting beings from other worlds "is sufficiently high to justify initiating a variety of well-formulated search programs."

There are, unquestionably, problems involved. For one thing, the closest likely solar systems which just might carry intelligent life are at least 100 light years away, and radio signals travel at the speed of light.

"Suppose we got off a signal asking, 'How are you?'" Sagan said. "And 200 years later the answer came back, 'Fine.'

The immediate advantage would be rather limited."

KILLING YOURSELF

STOP

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My wife who is 58 is a chronic beer drinker. Every day at 4 p.m. she starts drinking beer, and then has a can of beer and a cigarette every half hour until 9 p.m., at which time she goes to bed. This has been going on for the past four years. I am worried about her. Every morning when she gets up to fix my breakfast she has a cigarette or two. All she has for breakfast is a cup of black coffee. She has a sandwich for lunch and hardly anything for dinner. This is all she eats all day, yet she is fat and has a big stomach.

I have tried to tell her she is drinking and smoking too much. But she says she enjoys it, why should she stop?

I have had my share of beer in my lifetime, but it was only at parties — never sitting home and drinking all the time. My wife has no activities at all. Just housework. So she just sits and drinks and smokes day after day. I hope you can tell her how much harm she is doing to her health. Maybe she'll listen to you. — Mr. M.

* * *

Comment: I'd have to know more about your wife. Why is she drinking and smoking so much? Boredom seems to be one answer. Or doesn't she seem to care anymore what happens to her? Unless she finds some motivation to want to get better, I am afraid whatever I say will not help.

I think you will admit her present way of life is like taking slow poison. It is possible that she is in a deep depression of some sort.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I agree with Mrs. C., who wrote in a recent column that no child should ever be beaten with a stick. But a child needs discipline, and a switch is sometimes needed for use in an intelligent and moderate manner.

Parents should have the Bible in one hand and a switch in the other. If they are wise parents. But common sense should tell a parent that "the rod" mentioned in the Bible in Proverbs 22:13-14, is used as a figure of speech, and no child should be beaten unmercifully.

COMMENT: Amen.

For Mrs. M.: Bell's Palsy is not a stroke. It is a paralysis of one side of the face due to involvement of the facial nerve. Most people recover from this paralysis and good results depend upon early treatment.

Couple of Beers An Hour Too Much

Sydney J. Harris Says

Mediocrity in Demand

Thoughts at Large:

The tragic irony of our century was our belief that we could eliminate "fanaticism" by disavowing religion, and produce reasonableness by preaching the gospel of science — but succeeded only in reaching new heights of fanaticism through the political religions of fascism and communism.

* * *

The destruction of tyranny is less a guarantee of justice than an invitation for the opposite sort of tyranny to assert itself.

* * *

We are all willing to admit that there is some trace of madness in the most sane of men; what we are unwilling to admit is that there is always some reason in the madness of men, screaming to be released from its prison of insanity.

* * *

The same person often demands constancy in love, but variety in sex; but not even the most agile of emotional contortionists can bring off this trick successfully.

* * *

The public's insatiable cry for new television shows was anticipated some 70 years ago by Thomas Bailey Aldrich, when he observed: "There is always a heavy demand for fresh mediocrity — in every generation, the least cultivated taste has the largest appetite."

* * *

The chief effect of argument is to strengthen one's own opinion, and sometimes indeed, to drive us to more extreme positions than we would take without the spur of controversy.

* * *

Possibility of a U.S. detente with Russia and China must frighten the skin right off hundreds of politicians: if they lose an outside aggressor to "view with alarm" most of their campaign appeal will be gone.

* * *

(Incidentally, it is an interesting political observation that conservative administrations can take steps in foreign relations which, if undertaken by liberal administrations, would promptly be labeled as "soft on communism"; and it might be plausibly argued that while reforms and reproachements are initiated by liberals they are effectuated by conservatives.)

* * *

Whatever is given us costs more in the long run than what we pay for.

* * *

If you imagine that fun is fun and seriousness is seriousness, that only proves you do not really understand either.

* * *

The "liberty" that most men clamor for is merely the right to remain enslaved to the prejudices they have grown comfortable with; genuine liberty—to become who you are — is more feared than coveted.

Lewis Finds Mine Cold, Damp, Desolate

WAWA, Ont. (CP) — New Democratic Party Leader Stephen Lewis donned a safety helmet Wednesday and descended 1,800 feet into the Algoma Steel Corp. iron mine.

The NDP leader emerged to describe his experience as "intensively claustrophobic."

"It's so cold and damp and desolate and lonely," he commented later in the Steelworkers' hall of this mining community about 100 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie.

The descent was arranged by the Algoma NDP riding association which has nominated Paul St. Jacques to contest the riding, held by Progressive Conservative Bernt Gilbertson in the last house, in the Oct. 21 provincial election.

Reporters and cameramen were barred from entering the mine by J. E. Warley, mine general superintendent. A company spokesman said the tour was intended only as an educational experience for Mr. Lewis, and that the company was "not campaigning for him."

Earlier, Mr. Lewis addressed what he later described as a "cool, reserved and detached" audience at a service club luncheon.

He told them that under an NDP government they could expect a five-per-cent, instead of a two-per-cent, tax on resource industries such as mining, and possibly a Crown corporation for the mining and pulp and paper industries.

Mr. Lewis criticized the government for using only a fraction of the $2 million it has budgeted since 1970 for loans to tourist operators. He said that in 1970-71, six tourist operators received a total of $151,500 while this year another six borrowed $279,800.

"I ask you who have a vested interest in the North to compare that with the Equalization of Industrial Opportunities loans which have seen $20 million go to vast multi-national corporations in the last four years.

He said an NDP government would transfer the tourist loan fund from the Ontario Development Corporation, increase its capital and lower its interest rates.

The NDP also would expand provincial park facilities by taking funds from the $20 million land bank announced in the April budget "which has not been used."

Mr. Lewis visits Welland, Port Colborne, Niagara Falls and St. Catharines today.

Davis Offers to Lift Ceiling on Loans

CORNWALL (CP) — Premier William Davis said Wednesday night he would seriously consider lifting the ceiling on Ontario Development Corporation loans if a major industry showed interest in locating in this economically-depressed city.

He told a news conference that both the federal and provincial governments are trying to establish incentives to attract industry to Cornwall, which has an unemployment rate of more than 7.8 per cent.

"But you must realize that we cannot manufacture industry," he said. "We are working on incentives and we have made an effort but we can't tell industry where to locate."

In promising he would consider lifting the ceiling on ODC loans to industry in relation to the local situation, Mr. Davis noted that Liberal Leader Robert Nixon has made this suggestion on a province-wide basis.

The premier said other areas of the province also require incentives, and that the government is trying to take an overall approach to the problem.

He also partially detailed for the first time his charges that proposals made by the opposition parties during the campaign would cost the taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars.

He said his remarks on this line in recent days were directed at the Liberal party promises to abolish health insurance premiums and pay 80 per cent of education costs.

Those promises, and other Liberal proposals he promised to detail later, would cost up to $1 billion, the premier said. The New Democratic Party's program to abolish health insurance premiums would cost the taxpayers up to $400 million, he said.

The premier spent most of the day mainstreeting in Kingston, Gananoque, Brockville, Prescott, Morrisburg and Cornwall, winding up with a speech to a nominating meeting at Alexandria in which he continued to blast the opposition parties' campaign promises.

The premier walked hand-in-hand with his wife, Kathleen, through the sunny main streets of these towns in the Tory heart of Ontario. The Progressive Conservatives hold 22 of the 25 legislature seats in eastern Ontario.

Labor Issues Nixon Theme

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Wednesday he wants to "upgrade the conciliation procedure" so it will have more effect on labor-management relations.

Labor issues were the main theme throughout the day as Mr. Nixon confined his campaign for the Oct. 21 provincial election with visits to Brantford, Toronto and this community north of Toronto.

At Brantford, he visited the strikebound Texpack Ltd. plant, where he told picketers "it is the people who come in from the outside who cause the trouble." There have been several violent incidents on the picket line.

In Toronto, he told public school teachers they should strive for more independence from government officials and should "get together to form one potent, professional organization."

Speaking to supporters at Liberal campaign headquarters in Mississauga, he said there have been too many cases where labor and management have disregarded the conciliation procedure because it didn't have enough meaning.

"I don't believe, however, that we can legislate so there will never be another strike," h said.

He said strikes are bad not only for management and labor, but also have an adverse affect on Canada in "these difficult times."

The Liberal leader has said on numerous occasions during his campaign that the province and the country are in for two or three tough years economically.

Mr. Nixon said the Ontario government "must provide more substantial leadership" in the area of conciliation procedures to avoid unnecessary strikes.

He illustrated his point by mentioning the situation at Texpack where, he said, the province is faced with a situation where there is more violence on one hand and irresponsibility by the company on the other hand saying "we're an American company and we're just going to pull out."

UN Rumors Numerous

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — A little rumor can go a long way in this world organization.

This week rumors have been more than usually thick as the 130-country General Assembly opened.

Rumors, some based on published speculative reports, include:

President Nixon is going to China after meeting Emperor Hirohito of Japan in Alaska Monday. He wants to get to China before there is a chance of his having to meet Premier Kosygin of the Soviet Union. The White House denied the report Wednesday.

There are variations to the theme of China joining the UN.

A current rumor is that the Chinese embassy in Ottawa has been strengthened so that a delegation will be ready to attend the General Assembly after Peking is voted in.

Surtax Stays Until Money Rates 'Fair'

DETROIT (CP) — President Nixon bluntly told trading partners of the United States Thursday night that his 10-per-cent additional tax on duty-paying imports will remain in effect until there is an overhaul of international exchanges rates.

Employing the strongest language he has used so far, Nixon said the U.S. is not going to be belligerent or declare a trade war.

But it will not be satisfied until its manufacturers got a better deal in foreign markets, through fair rates of exchange and removal of trade impediments.

The president, speaking only four days before the International Monetary Fund annual meeting in Washington, said the U.S. is going to be strong and firm in pressing its demands before the 118-member monetary group.

Canada's Role Not Realized

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will have to reassess its basic position in relations with the United States if the U.S. makes it impossible for Canada to defend itself against American trade policies, Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday night.

In an interview on the CBC television program Encounter, Mr. Trudeau said several times he believed the U.S. did not know how seriously it was damaging Canada when President Nixon introduced new economic policies aimed primarily at Japan and Europe.

Canada was attempting to soften the impact of the American import surcharge on Canadian plants whose workers were primarily turning out products for the American market.

If the U.S. tried to prevent this, by imposing countervailing duties on Canadian goods, Canada would "begin to assess our basic position."

Mr. Trudeau said Canada had a number of alternative courses, ranging from integration with the U.S. economy to "total war," but he would not say what action Canada would in fact take.

"I really don't think I can pursue this line of speculation much further," he said.

The American economic moves are expected to face heavy criticism today at the opening here of the North Atlantic Assembly, a meeting of parliamentary representatives from 13 NATO countries.

The assembly meetings will be closed for the first two days, then opened on Monday. The U.S. is represented by senators and congressmen.

Mr. Trudeau said he did not think the Americans realize what they are doing to Canada.

"If they are really trying to rearrange the North American continent so that we are just a supplier of natural resources and so that we won't be able to find jobs for our growing labor force and we won't be able to have an advanced technological society that we can manage ourselves, that is a very, very serious hypothesis."

Bahamas Parley Is Staged

NASSAU, Bahamas (Reuter) — Commonwealth finance ministers end a two-day meeting today amid calls for swift settlement of world monetary uncertainties through negotiation within the International Monetary Fund.

A communique to be drafted later today will emphasize the concern of Commonwealth countries that negotiation on a settlement of the international economic crisis has been deadlocked within the Group of Ten leading industrial nations, informed sources said.

Australian Treasurer Billy Snedden said Thursday the current impasse must be solved quickly without waiting for agreement on the supplementary issues of trade relations, defence spending or on a reform of the exchange system.

Snedden said the current economic absurdity was "preventing traders and financiers from going about their normal business."

Cement Firm To Co-operate

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — James Taylor, Progressive Conservative candidate for the riding of Prince Edward-Lennox yesterday announced the province of Ontario plans to acquire for "public purposes," a land parcel owned by the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. at the Sandbanks.

At a press conference in his committee rooms here Mr. Taylor added: "It is my view that a quarrying type of operation contiguous to a provincial park is not compatible with the use of the park as a facility by the public."

The candidate stressed it remains of "paramount importance" to ensure no jobs will be placed in jeopardy through transfer of the property.

Mr. Taylor remarked he has obtained background information concerning the cement company's land at the provincial park and has spoken with George Kerr, minister of the environment, James Auld, minister of public works, and Rene Brunelle, minister of lands and forests.

Earlier this week Mr. Taylor also met with Toronto officials of the Lake Ontario Cement Co. Ltd. at the quarrying site and talked with them about the intention of the province to acquire the lands for public purposes.

"I am satisfied," observed Mr. Taylor, "after discussions with cabinet ministers, that the province will proceed to acquire the lands of the Lake Ontario Cement Co. Ltd. I believe that the company will co-operate so that the price can be negotiated in an amicable way."

He said the land will be valued by two independent appraisers and negotiations will proceed through the department of public works.

When questioned by a reporter Mr. Taylor admitted the transfer of the land parcel would not necessarily be made through expropriation but by "expropriation if necessary."

He emphasized he is convinced the company will co-operate with the province in the sale of the lands and has assured company officials the province will assist them in finding an alternate economic

Ninety Soviet Officials Told to Leave Britain

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain has asked the Soviet embassy to arrange for 90 Soviet officials, all of whom have been concerned in intelligence activities, to leave the country within two weeks, the foreign office announced today.

Another 15 Soviet officials, not resident in Britain but holding still valid re-entry visas, will not be permitted to return to Britain.

The number of Soviet officials in the embassy, trade delegations and other organizations in Britain totals 550.

It was said a high Soviet intelligence official has defected to the West and a British official described him today as extremely valuable.

The unidentified defector is reported to be in a secret hideaway in the London area.

The official said no details would be disclosed at this stage, but he would describe the Russian as far more valuable than Soviet electronics engineer Anatoly Fedoseyev who defected from the Paris air show last June.

London evening newspapers broke the story of the defection. One, The Evening Standard, described him as a fairly senior member in the KGB, the Soviet secret police. Another said he was a top intelligence officer.

The Foreign office also declined to comment any further on the event saying it was a security matter.

When Fedoseyev defected, there was widespread British speculation that he was a top spece official. The disclosure later that he was much lower down in the scientific scale tended to increase caution among observers that the new defector may not be as important as immediate reports suggested.

However, the official, who cannot be named, said it can be taken that the man involved is far more important and more valuable than Fedoseyev.

A newspaper report that the defector may have been in London under interrogation, for as long as three months should be treated cautiously, the official added.

The evening news said interrogation has produced material of high importance.

Catholics May Take Ulster House Role

LONDON (CP) — The way appeared open today for conditional Roman Catholic participation in the Northern Ireland government for the first time since partition 50 years ago.

The concession by Northern Ireland's main opposition Catholic party came as the House of Commons ended a two-day emergency debate on Ireland Thursday night.

Shortly before the debate ended, a man and a woman were killed in a bomb explosion in a Catholic area of Belfast, bringing the death toll to 44 in the last six weeks of intensified "troubles" in the North.

The possibility of entry by the Catholic minority into the wholly-Protestant Belfast government was unveiled in an exchange in the Commons between Labor member James Callaghan and Catholic member, Gerry Fitt, leader of the Northern Ireland Parliament's largest opposition group.

Fitt, who sits in both parliaments, said his party would participate in a Northern Ireland government if there were adequate guarantees for the minority and a satisfactory settlement of internment.

This was a reference to a policy introduced Aug. 9 under which 219 suspected men are currently in prison without trials and further suspects are still being sought by security forces.

Princess Margaret Visits Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon were whisked through Winnipeg's supper hour traffic Thursday as they began a four-day Manitoba visit.

More than 150 passengers and spectators crowded the balconies at Winnipeg International Airport but got only a brief glimpse. About the same number, in isolated groups, were along the four-mile route from the airport to Government House.

Today the royal pair may be faced with placard-waving pickets as a result of labor disputes involving the $14 million Winnipeg Art Gallery which the princess is scheduled to officially open.

Striking bricklayers and electricians have been picketing the art gallery for weeks, and in a separate dispute technicians on strike against a television station are threatening to put picket lines on every entrance to the gallery.

A tour spokesman said the princess is unlikely to cross picket lines.

Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon were to visit the gallery early today for a private viewing.

The 41-year-old sister of the Queen, and her husband, were greeted briefly at the airport by Lt.-Gov. W. J. McKeag and other dignitaries while surrounded by nearly 50 policemen.

The royal couple arrived in Winnipeg on a regular Air Canada flight from Toronto. They were alone in the first-class section of the stretch DC-8 aircraft, but several other passengers said Lord Snowdon made several visits back through the economy section.

"He's a spiffy dresser," said one Toronto businessman who declined to give his name," for the most part of the trip he was dressed in slacks and a tee-shirt."

Mohawk Fair Enriches Council House Fund

The Tyendinaga Reserve's Council House Fund grew substantially after last Saturday's Mohawk Fair.

It now stands at $12,450, Chief Earl Hill reported today. Target figure for construction of a new building to replace the one destroyed by fire early in the summer is $50,000.

The chief sold cement blocks at the fair at 45 cents apiece and raised $143. Don Foster of Belleville donated $63 he raised by running a bicycle ride concession at the fair. And winners of the 50-50 draw in aid of the Council House Fund turned back part of their prizes to the cause.

First prize of $1,022 in the draw was won by Jean Stevens of Kingston. Bruce James Brant, who sold the winning ticket, contributed $75 of his bonus to the fund. Dr. H. W. Burns of Belleville, who won the second prize of $337, donated $100 to the fund and Mrs. Norway Maracle, who sold Dr. Burns his ticket, donated her winnings of $25. Mrs. Maracle sold 333 tickets at the fair.

The Mohawk Fair drew a record crowd of about 2,500 people and gate receipts were reported to be up 25 per cent over last year.

One of the fair's big attractions, Indian corn soup, ran out by 4 p.m., to the disappointment of many late comers.

Next fund - raising event planned by the band for their Council House Fund is a walkathon. Chief Hill will announce the date, expected to be sometime in October, following a meeting this week to complete arrangements.

$8 Million Is Needed For County Road Work

An expenditure of more than $8 million would be required if all road deficiencies in Hastings county were brought up to recommended standards.

And in another five years another $2 million will be required bringing the total for needed road reconstruction to $10.5 million.

These are the figures contained in a county roads needs study by consulting engineers Totten Sims and Hubicki, which was presented to Hastings county council this week.

There was little discussion on the 100-page report which contained a mass of statistics ranging all the way from road requirements to assessment figures and possible cost sharing between the county and the province.

The report showed there were 235 miles of road in the county road system, including 149 miles of suburban road which is maintained on a cost sharing basis between the county and the city of Belleville.

The county roads and bridges committee report read by Huntingdon Reeve Russell Sills, showed that the gravel top contract on County Road 5 from Foxboro easterly to Highway 37 was completed and that the paving and seeding contracts had been let. McFarland Construction will do the 30¢ mix paving at a cost of $46,225 and Royel Paving on Lindsay the seeding at $,911.

Reconstruction of county road 13 from Highway 37 to Spaces is well under way and the road is expected to be back in use by Nov. 15. A new bridge over the west branch of the Moira River is included in the contract.

All of the prestressed concrete girders for the new bridge over the Trent River at Glen Miller have now been placed and hopes are that the new structure will be open for traffic this fall.

Girls Keeping Babies, Fewer for Adoption

The increasing practice of young girls keeping their babies born out of wedlock is creating a shortage of infants and young children for adoption.

This is stated in the report of the Children's Service of Hastings County presented this week to county council.

The CAS director, Bruce Kerr in his report said that with few children available for adoption there at the same time appeared to be an increasing number of couples seeking to adopt and as a result long waiting lists are forming in some areas.

For a variety of unrelated reasons, Mr. Kerr said the intake of children by the society increased substantially during the latter part of last year and the early part of this year. In March, for example, 21 children were admitted — the largest number in one month for some time. The number of children in care climbed from a low of 126 at Jan. 1, 1970 to a high of 175 at the end of April this year, but there are indications the peak has been reached and that a return to normal can be expected.

Many of the children taken into care were older children it was stated.

At the end of June there were 165 children in care with 56 admitted since the beginning of the year.

The report of the social services committee, read by Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen showed that while there had been a gradual decrease since Jan. 1 in the number of cases receiving general welfare assistance, the case load at the end of June was still 694 over that in June last year. The case load at Jan. 1 was 1,250 over the corresponding period in 1970.

The forecast increase in this area has been maintained and indeed appears to have reached a plateau from which, hopefully, there can be only one direction — downward," read the report.

source of material. The candidate expressed confidence that another source can be obtained at a suitable location and said he has been assured there will be no job losses among personnel in the present operation.

Mr. Taylor disagreed with Liberal candidate Barry Young's recommendation of subsidies or grants to the company and warned that it is essential to be "very conscious of government spending".

He said he had not discussed a subsidy or outright grants with the company in his talks with officials.

The Conservative candidate remarked Mr. Young has suggested a public inquiry which will spend "unnecessary monies to get nowhere" and termed this a futile approach.

"There has been an attempt to make a political issue out of what is basically an environmental problem which transcends all party lines," asserted Mr Taylor.

He said the best interests of all persons in the province should be of first concern.

He said the question of quarrying at the Deseronto is "a simple issue with a simple solution" and commented it is unnecessary to go back to the 1920's to find answers.

Mr. Taylor stated trucks carrying 33-ton loads of sand make ten trips daily to the Sandhurst Trailer Park" noise and vibration in a recreation area.

"This is the issue, not whether somebody planted a tree on somebody else's property," he said.

Collision Claims Woman's Life

TWEED (Special) — An unidentified woman believed to be from the Ottawa area, was killed late Thursday afternoon when her car was in collision with a school bus on Highway 7 near Madoc.

The woman was pronounced dead at the scene, while a 16-year-old school girl, Karen Geen, one of 33 students on the school bus, was taken to Belleville General Hospital for treatment.

She was allowed to go home after treatment for a chin abrasion.

Provincial police said the school bus, driven by Don Boldrick of Tweed, was on its way back to Tweed from the School at Madoc, when shortly before 5 p.m. it was in collision with the westbound car. The force of the impact knocked one of the front wheels off the bus and caused about $6,000 property damage.

The bus was later than normally would have been the case as some of the students had taken part in sports activities following school hours.

The day's visit to the St. Lawrence Parks area was concluded with a stop at the Upper Canada Village guest house where a steak barbecue was enjoyed.

Student Walkout Closes BCI

While Belleville Collegiate Institute Principal William MacKay looks on, Tom Prewer (left), leader of a walkout by 300 students, tells the crowd assembled on the front lawn to abide by the school constitution and reserve action on their right to vote in today's parliamentary election. Party candidates Randy Rossetti and Bev Parcells (right of Prewer) also spoke. The issue which provoked Thursday's protest concerns a $2 identification fee which the school constitution requires students to pay in order to be eligible to vote.

Identity Card at Issue

BCI Students Protest Constitution With Mid-afternoon Walkout

Three hundred BCI students walked out of classes yesterday afternoon and staged a noisy demonstration on the front campus to protest clauses in their student parliament's constitution.

Their beef centred on the necessity to pay a $2 student parliament identity card before being allowed a vote in today's election for a prime minister.

The 40-minute walkout ended when spokesmen for the protesters and candidates for prime minister addressed the students and told them about the mechanism for changing the constitution.

But before the protest ended someone pulled the school fire alarm, sending the entire student body of 1,000 and the staff out of the building for a brief interval.

Dissent began Wednesday at an assembly, when a student raised the question of why a parliament card was necessary for voting in the election for student leaders.

Thursday morning the dissenting group handed out leaflets calling for an "organized walkout" at 1:22 that afternoon. The protesters were headed by Tom Prewer and a group of six students.

Promptly on schedule the 300 supporters on the dissenting faction poured out the doors and stood on the front campus chanting "We want free votes" and raising clenched fists to shouts of "power".

Eventually two flags were brought from the auditorium and raised to half staff on the campus flag pole. Things went on as usual during the walkout but many students leaned out the windows to watch proceedings below.

Principal William MacKay emerged to call the protesters spokesman to a meeting with the two student parliament candidates.

Crux of the students' dissent, said Tom Prewer, is the student parliament card, required before any student can take part in school activities. The card states that the holder is entitled to "full participation in school activities, to usual school rules, lockers at cost, reduction on yearbook (of 50 cents from the $3 cost) and admittance to dances".

In former years, said students, they weren't asked for their cards before participating in student events, but organizers have tightened up this year. The immediate issue is the student parliament election, in which all voters must first show their cards before being given a ballot.

"Our parents pay taxes for these things and we're fed up with having to pay more for these things and we're fed up with having to pay more for these things and we're fed up," said the identity card is in universal use in county high schools and on most playfields across the province. In other centres, including Kingston and Peterborough, it costs $5. By yesterday it was estimated that 60 per cent of the student body had bought cards.

Students who disagreed with the dissenters were resentful of the presence of the press at the demonstration.

"You're just blowing it up," charged one. "We have to raise money some way for graduation and dances. They (the protesters) shouldn't get a vote if they don't care about the school. It's like the federal government — if you don't pay taxes you don't get a vote."

Most of the students out shouting on the front campus weren't concerned about the issues, the student added. "they're just out for thrills."

Another student, concerned that both sides of the story were presented, visited The Intelligencer office to put the case for student parliament cards.

"Those who didn't buy them didn't want to take part in the school," he said. "Parliament's only power is over student activities — all other powers belong to the administration."

The protesters, he said want a say in the students' organization but don't want to support it by buying a card.

"Very few out there were sincere," he said. "They just wanted to get out of class."

When the leaders of the two factions appeared with Mr. MacKay to address the crowd, Randy Rossetti, one of the two candidates for prime minister in today's ele ction, said the necessity of holding a card before voting was written into the student parliament constitution.

Chants of "change it, change it," rose from the crowd.

Mr. MacKay took over at this point and explained the way to change the constitution, by a two-thirds majority vote at a student parliament meeting.

"It's your constitution," he reminded the students, "If you have something to bring up, bring it up in parliament."

Later, Mr. MacKay told the press that the constitution was changed by students three years ago and is up for review this year.

According to the constitution, an independent candidate can get his name on the ballot by presenting a petition with 75 student signatures. But the protest gathered momentum too late for the petition to be circulated and Mr. Prewer was disqualified anyway because he does not have the necessary two years' experience on student parliament, a student said.

The identity card question will be the first issue debated by student parliament when it meets next week, both candidates promised. In the meantime, no disciplinary action will be taken against the protesters, Mr. MacKay said.

Liberal Candidate Challenges Davis

PICTON (Staff) — Barry Young, Liberal candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox has challenged statements criticizing his party's platform reportedly made by Ontario Premier William Davis during a recent visit to Cornwall.

Mr. Young said yesterday the premier has suggested the Liberals are offering "a billion dollars worth of promises" through government programs.

He contradicted Mr. Davis' alleged contention that the Liberals will eliminate medical and hospital insurance premiums at a cost of $400 million a year, declaring "his party will not spend any more money but will collect it more efficiently.

Mr. Young stated that the Conservative government, in the past two-and-a-half years, has realized $91.5 million in surplus funds from medicare payments. He added that Ontario residents are overcharged by approximately $25 per cent on individual premiums.

A surplus remaining after medical costs are paid out is used to provide teaching grants for medical hospitals, for example, or, to guarantee the salaries of doctors willing to practice in northern Canada.

Mr. Young stated he does not object to these expenditures but feels "it's a shabby way to try to collect."

"We don't know what we're paying for; I feel the way of raising the money is a bit deceitful," he remarked.

Mr. Young noted Ontario pays the highest medicare premiums of any province in Canada.

He said his party plans to combine the two health insurance programs to eliminate dual administration costs and to abolish premiums completely, funding the program from the province's general tax revenue.

The cost of collecting the premium payments is $15 million annually according to Mr. Young, who supports elimination of this expenditure by including medical insurance in the general tax structure.

Mr. Davis also was said to have criticized the Liberals for their commitment to assume 80 per cent of education costs at a cost of $200 million to $400 million a year.

This criticism prompted Mr. Young to reply that the Conservatives already are spending the money for education through "a maze of taxation."

"Blueprint for Government" a booklet outlining Liberal party policy states that a Nixon government would transfer 80 per cent of education costs away from land assessment.

"Twenty per cent of 1.5 billion (the expenditure demanded by the current budget) is quite enough for municipalities to raise from land assessment; provincial revenues must pay for the rest," asserts the policy booklet.

Lifeline Is Now Telecare

Lifeline, an agency that has been operating in the city for the past four years, has changed its name to Telecare Canada.

Affiliated with Lifeline International, Sydney Australia, Telecare will provide same service as under the name of Lifeline, giving over-the-telephone counselling to anyone who calls, free of charge, 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

"The counsellors," said one volunteer representative of the organization, "are trained over 16 weeks to listen to a caller's problem, and then, if necessary, give the caller a referral to one of the community agencies in the city such as Alcoholics Anonymous."

"Most of the people who call just want someone to talk to for a while," said one high school student, trained as a counsellor.

A spokesman for the agency claims, "already we have 50 applicants to enroll in the counselling course coming up in October."

Telecare will be providing something new this year.

"It has extended its reach," said one spokesman, "so that it can have face to face interviews concerning family and marriage counselling.

The telephone number remains 962-4111.

Madoc's Fair Starts Today

MADOC (Special) — Madoc's annual fall fair will start this Friday evening when some of the best draught horses in the county arrive for the drawing match, scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. at the grounds. There will be two classes of these horses, competing for a total of $310 in awards.

Saturday is the big day, when the 4-H championship shows will take place and and many of the 4-H clubs will hold their achievement days to mark the completion of their projects. The livestock, poultry and cheese shows will be bigger and better than ever this year and the ladies' display of home baking, flowers, needlework and crafts will prove interesting to the many visitors in the exhibit building. School projects, prepared by the students, always prove a popular attraction. Road races, chariot races and a pony drawing match will be held on the tracks that day, also. Prizes, totalling $10,000, will be awarded to the various competitors during the course of the day.

As usual, professional and amateur entertaining and a variety of contests will be seen on the platform.

A completely new and special attraction will be the display of Kerry cattle, a dairy breed imported direct from Ireland by Dr. Russell Scott and James Spry. Of course, the midway will be in operation all day long to delight the youngsters with rides, cotton candy, taffy apples and games. The many refreshment booths will be situated at strategic positions on the grounds, as well.

Parking Problem Solved

Parking lot problems are almost universal these days and as far as Hastings county council is concerned it is no exception.

In fact an automatic gate is going to be placed on the county administration's north parking lot which is reserved for use of county councillors and county staff.

Each councillor and staff member will be issued cards which will automatically admit him to the parking lot.

The area formerly occupied by the old county court house and jail yard has been levelled and paved and contracts have been let for cement curbing, sidewalks and lighting. Ultimately the remaining unpaved area will be landscaped.

Nixon May Have More Economic Moves Up His Sleeve

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President Nixon has in effect won the first round—and perhaps even scored a major overall victory—in his struggle to give the United States an artificial edge in the continuing battle for world markets.

As the roar of international protest against the Nixon measures still reverberates, the one point standing out clearly amid the economic sabre-rattling is that none of the major industrial competitors has dared impose equivalent counter-measures against the U.S.

While some countries, such as Canada and members of the European Common Market, introduce or consider methods of compensating industries hit by the American 10-per-cent supplementary duty on imports, the underlying fear that seems to have permeated through recent events is that the U.S. might be stirred into still tougher measures.

Hope that Nixon might be persuaded to remove the 10-per-cent import tariff quickly under concerted world pressure gradually gave way to spreading realism, confirmed by Nixon himself, that no early removal is likely.

Initial American hints that the president might shift his position once the major competing countries, such as West Germany and Japan, pushed up their currency exchange rates have been succeeded by new hints that the U.S. wants much more than just currency revisions.

There must be greater overseas acceptance of American goods and increased overseas sharing of the cost of defending the free world.

The impression left by these various demands is that the U.S. simply is seeking ways of ensuring that the 10-per-cent duty remains intact at least until there is a substantial and dramatic swing in the American foreign payments account, from the current deficit into a major surplus. That may take a year or two—or more.

The question that remains is whether Nixon's decisions will be sufficient to achieve his goals without some hefty upward movements in overseas currency exchange rates, particularly in Japan. Floating rates have moved up but governments and central banks are intervening, determined that the rates should not go too high, thereby still further hurting exports.

While a number of countries talk of the urgent need of returning to fixed rates in the interest of world monetary stability, the floating may continue for many months partly through the countries' sheer inability to agree on what the new rate levels should be.

Some expect fear that this period of instability may continue until after the next U.S. presidential elections in November, 1972. By that time they hope that the U.S. might be persuaded to make a small token increase in the official gold price, to share the task of devaluing the U.S. dollar which many countries feel lies at the heart of the current crisis.

Election Shots

Premier Davis and Liberal leader Nixon have come and gone in the Quinte area. They added a lively chapter to the history of local and provincial politics and ranged over a variety of issues in the process. Among them; aid for the separate schools, natural resources (mentioned in this context were The Sandbanks), and the U.S. 10 per cent surtax.

While Quinte was receiving the conservative and Liberal leaders the NDP's Stephen Lewis was putting his party's case in Kitchener. As with Mr. Nixon in his campaign (he says for one thing that a Liberal government would establish a service program for students during vacations) the NDP leader, of necessity, must cast himself in the role of ideas man and innovator. The NDP, he says, would set up a prices review board with power to turn back unjustified price increases in some areas, a suggestion sparked by recent increases in milk prices. Inherent in such a step would be left-wing theories of control over the economy which in Britain, for instance, has led to throttling of initiative and private enterprise.

We can sympathize with Mr. Lewis in one respect. Visiting the strikebound Texpack Ltd. plant at Brantford he exclaimed "this is incredible" as a police car followed his bus to the plant and company security guards took pictures of him along with his entourage. Shades indeed of the police state.

For Messrs. Nixon and Lewis the Conservative government of William Davis is a hard nut to crack, for when the premier refers the electorate to his administration's record of accomplishments it is no idle boast. It may be that with many new voters on the rolls there will be inroads this time in the Conservative party's long-term hold on Ontario. In no fewer than six elections in other provinces the winds of change have upset established patterns. But this is not to say an upset is in the offing in Ontario, only that the vote may reflect by one degree or another these trends. We still need stability without stagnation and the Davis administration is providing just that, along with necessary legislation in many vital sectors.

Thieu-way race

The TV Scene

Well the fall television season is under way and many of the faces are familiar; you know, Glen Campbell, Carol Burnett, Mary Tyler Moore and all but it is very much the same as before. It was rather heavy going on the Glen Campbell show the other night, even with the presence of Bob Hope who in any event seems to be getting too much exposure these days and one wonders if he might be better calling it a day like Sinatra.

Carol Burnett is so good at her best, together with supporting cast, that there is virtually nowhere for her show to go but down; certainly thus far this season it has not quite achieved the old sparkle.

Mary Tyler Moore and company similarly seem to be battling for laughs although Tuesday night's effort was an improvement on last week's opener and since the show has good writers we may look forward to some neat comedy from this Minneapolis comedy locale.

There is a great deal else of course, drama, melodrama, the soap operas and so on, but we see little of them so no comment

Another program in the lighter vein which we caught a couple of times before running its summer course was Hee Haw and Cher, the little man with the dark mustache and laughing eyes and his slim, dazzling wife and they sing and kid each other around in what has been described as "country-haunting" fashion. On the road now they are appearing this week at the Royal York in Toronto.

Which brings us also to the fact that Cher is one of the great beauties of the entertainment business today, at a time when there seem to be few who might be deserving of such an accolade, and when the film world's Elizabeth Taylor and Ava Gardner belong to an earlier era of fame in this regard

Sonny and Cher were on the cover of a TV magazine recently and Cher's radiance was apparent here. A Globe and Mail columnist watched their act in Toronto enthused that she was "unbelievably gorgeous," and quoted one woman as saying, in the perverse manner of her sex in such circumstances, "There isn't a woman in the place who doesn't hate her."

So much for human nature . . . and television, now socking it to its millions of advertents. There is the good as ever on TV, as well as the bad and the indifferent. And as ever the critical faculties of the public have to be brought into play.

U.S. Census Shows Birthrate Is Down

Hamilton Spectator

A study based on the 1970 U.S. census has shown a steep decline in the number of American children under five years of age. In fact, there has never been such a sharp drop in this particular age group since the nation started gathering statistics 130 years ago.

The present decline is almost twice as steep as a similar one which took place in the Great Depression of the 1930s and which provoked all sorts of gloomy prognostications from people who should, perhaps, have known better.

The obvious cause of this sharp reduction in the number of under - fives is the Pill. At the end of its first decade, it is having a significant impact on the birth rate. But the real reasons are the ones that lie behind the popularity of the Pill. These are to be found, no doubt, in the sociological conditions in the U.S.

By now the Vietnam war has been cursed so often and blamed for so many American ills that it seems a little superfluous to blame it for one more — a record decline in birth rate. Yet there is no doubt that the war and the social unrest it has produced have made many young married couples hesitate to establish a family, or perhaps to have more than one child. That has the constant threat of the draft helped.

There is a possibility that the constant pounding in the media about the population explosion may be having an effect, though not, alas, on Africa, where it is more needed than in the U.S.

The first effects of this sudden decline in the number of under - fives are already being felt by toy manufacturers, and makers of such essential articles as baby buggies and children's clothing. Some gaps are appearing in kindergarten classrooms. As the years pass, these gaps are bound to appear in elementary schools, then in high schools and finally in universities.

There are limits to the possibilities of statistical projections. Things should not be carried too far into the future. If they are, they can easily be made to look ridiculous by changing conditions or unforeseen events.

In 1940, for example, after nearly a decade of declining birth rates, there were people who were predicting a levelling off for the U.S., not only economically, but also in population. That year births exceeded deaths by about 18 to 11, and, based on recent past experience, the gap promised to narrow. That year a U.S. Census Bureau senior officer predicted that the American population would reach a peak of 135 million and then slowly decline until it reached 126 million in 1990.

How far wrong this official was can be judged by the present population of the U.S., which is about 207 million. A projection for 1980 now estimates the population will be 232 million.

So many changes take place in human attitudes in ways which are not predictable. Some people feel that constantly increasing population creates critical pressures on the quality of life. For, after all, when all the shouting dies away, it is people that are polluted. And in the final analysis, there will only be less of that in the world when there are fewer people.

Cabinet Ministers and the Election

From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau
By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — Since the Conservatives entered power in 1943 there have been very few sitting members of the government defeated in an election. Cabinet ministers have tended to win quite easily.

The only notable exceptions that come to mind are George Drew who in 1948 when premier was personally defeated in Toronto High Park and former Municipal Affairs Minister Winfrid Spooner who was beaten in Cochrane South in 1967, along with Mines Minister George Wardrope in Port Arthur.

There is some chance that the pattern may not completely apply in the current elections.

Most of the ministers are considered safe enough but there are one or two who reportedly could be in real trouble.

One of these is Minister of Family and Social Services, Tom Wells. This young minister had a plurality of 1,527 votes in 1967 in his riding of Scarborough North, but the NDP was a strong second and the party has been coming on fast in this section of Toronto.

A second minister said to be in some danger is a real surprise. This is Agriculture Minister W. A. Stewart. Mr. Stewart is a veteran who always held his riding of Middlesex North quite comfortably. But this time the Liberals are said to be fielding an outstanding candidate in Adrian Aerts, Mayor of Parkhill and both bright and colorful. He is expected to give Mr. Stewart his best fight since he entered the House in 1937.

One veteran outside the cabinet, Elia Morningstar of Haliburtland, is said to be facing a strong test from the NDP but the bulk of the party's sitting members are regarded as reasonably safe.

The big question regarding P.C. chances is the large number of seats opening up through members retiring. Retirements often can mean a new ball game.

On the opposition side a good core of both Liberal and NDP members are expected to be safe, but with each party there are some seats that are hazardous.

For the Liberals young Jim Breithaupt of Kitchener had a plurality of only 32 votes in 1967. However, his opposition is said not to be as strong this time and he is reported to be carrying on a more effective campaign. Ray Haggerty of Welland South is said to be in a close fight and any of the party's seven Toronto area members could possibly be upset.

Out of the NDP ranks the member you hear mentioned most often as being in trouble is Mac Makarachuk of Brantford. This former newspaperman was something of a surprise winner in '67 and is being strongly opposed. However, thanks to the federal by-election, there is a strong party organization in the riding.

Then Mr. Spooner in Cochrane South has been campaigning hard for a year to regain his seat and Rev. Bill Ferrier will be hard put to hold on.

Mrs. Margaret Renwick also has a battle in Scarborough Centre, but the balance of the other sitting members appear to be in reasonably good shape.

The Sandbanks Controversy

Letters in The Globe and Mail

Being of the senior citizen generation I can remember driving from Belleville to the Prince Edward County Sandbanks and seeing the hundreds of horses (some 28 miles each way, I think) more than once, in fact, one of the main events of summer.

There was time for a rest for the horses, a climb up the high dunes, a wade through the sand, a picnic meal, and then back home, slow, but happy drive homeward.

We would pass the Evergreen House and note how it was slowly but surely being sand blasted by Shore Lodge stood as it does now.

The motor car came into common use, horses were spared, we had more time on the dunes and the fact that the wind blew most any day without much planning.

The years since then there have been many changes, partly due to reforestration, the opening of Sandbanks Provincial Park. These seemed good in that they were to provide the greatest good for the greatest number of people.

We have been shocked, however, recently to find it is high, easily accessible dunes disappearing and to learn that this has been contracted for by our provincial Government in the so-called interest of providing another wonderful sand beach for the people of 2015. There are already several excellent beaches in the area.

Is lying on the sand the only summer recreation for young people? What about the happy, healthful joys of climbing, jumping, running, etc.? Will future generations be able to indulge in such only in school gyms, in camps or hotels?

The Prince Edward County Sandbanks were unique. May the Ontario Government not act quickly to preserve what is left of them for future generations.

(Miss) L. J. Tickell,
Belleville

The deluge of outraged letters you have published condemning the irrevocable tampering with one of nature's phenomena, followed by your feature article and editorial presenting a more objective observation of the area, brought the name of Sandbanks Provincial Park to the attention of this particular family.

We made a hasty trip to the area, stayed at the park motel at stake and now we join the chorus of pleas to preserve the beauty of this property as it is.

Even as newcomers to the area and as unsophisticated dunes, we were outraged by this vivid display of the natural interplay and cool results of sand carved by wind, water, and most elusive of all, time.

The cut across the base of the phrase "underdevelopment" to describe this area in current recreation maps and pamphlets! The development took place long ago and by means of a power more divine than that of misguided humans on a planning board.

Those Initiation Hijinks

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

In my knowledge, participation in initiation "hijinks" is neither compulsory nor a prerequisite for admission to any educational institution in Canada. The unfortunate occurrence at Sunnybrook Farm sure was exactly that. No doubt the initiation was arduous by design and dangerous only by accident. The same type of injury could be experienced at any time on the streets by anyone at any time. There is an element of risk in crossing the street, taking a bath or even in the ordinary but vital act of eating or drinking. To stop using everything that could injure or kill seems ridiculous, and to abandon all sport or fun activities to preserve one's safety is equally silly. While the injur; suffered by the young student is regrettable, it should be looked on as the accident it was.

And what is wrong with having just plain fun once in a while, not as a counter-revolture to better the community— but just simply for the fun of it!

MARION ANDREWS

Wine Company Publicist Is A Real Enthusiast

PICTON (Staff) — "A jug of wine, a chunk of cheese, and Wow," paraphrases Omar Khayam to illustrate the relationship between poetry and wines.

W. J. M. "Will" Mogan, director of public relations for Bright's Wines Ltd., yesterday explained to Picton Rotarians the popular wine and cheese party may have had its origins in this Persian tentmaker's quatrains.

Mr. Mogan said "bread" which he paraphrased with "cheese" was not considered a staple in the diet of the nomadic Persian. For this reason he suggested his translation of Khayam's verse could explain the wine and cheese party.

He commented that the "glory of wine" known as no place in today's writing and conversation as it did once long ago.

Mr. Mogan stressed poetry does live today, however, through slang used in everyday conversation.

Byron's invitation to Sappho to "come with me to the isle of Greece" has become an invitation, perhaps to go skiing after picking up a bottle of wine and a pretty girl.

"All of might like to linger over Byron's words; none of us would like to live them," ventured the speaker.

The isle of Greece, for example, may be the dreamer's drinking place but the average man prefers to drink a suitably chilled bottle of wine in his own living room.

Mr. Mogan recalled the first wine flasks were made of goat skin and screwcaps had not been invented in those "romantic days." Consequently, pitch or resin was used as a stopper for flagon. This fact probably blunted the delights of sipping the wine.

"A little over-eager in a relatively new found culture, we've been conned into believing continental wines are superior to our own," said Mr. Mogan.

He added our taste in wines has been "carefully calculated and thrust down our throats by connoisseurs from other countries. "We aren't children to be spoon fed into knowledge," countered the speaker. Canadian wines are establishing their popularity, however.

Mr. Mogan said the public relations department of his company has organized and conducted blind taste tests during the past five years.

Seven of the company's own wines and seven others of comparable varieties are placed in unmarked bottles and sampled by a cross section of the general public.

A ballot is provided for tasters to identify which of the seven wines in the seven different qualifications is preferred in color, bouquet and taste. "You don't make wines, you grow them, it's a natural process," continued Mr. Mogan.

Mr. Mogan stated the public attempts to mold its life with the philosophies preached by the poets and urged this relationship to a more contemporary level.

He joined agreement with a line from one of Thackeray's poems which contends that "He who loves not wine, women and song is a fool."

Mr. Mogan, guest speaker a yesterday's regular meeting of the Picton Rotary club was born and educated in Toronto.

He holds a degree in Arts from the University of Toronto and attended Osgoode Hall for one year.

He has been employed with Bright's Wines Ltd., since 1936 and has held numerous positions with the company including retail manager, district representative, and managing editor of the company paper. Mr. Mogan is now director of public relations.

Outsiders Renting Our Land to Us

By GEORGE H. CARVER

Strong opposition to the acquisition of Ontario parcels of land by outside interests for sale of hunting privileges was voiced at the opening fall-winter meeting of the Belleville District Fish and Game Club Tuesday night.

Club president, George Hammett read a letter from Quebec interests offering hunting privileges for sale in the Centre Hastings north of No. 7 Highway.

The writers stated they owned a parcel of land of 2,500 acres containing a large deer yard and facilities for duck and upland game hunting.

Arrangements could be made for hides and hunting cabins, the letter stated. It asked the club to forward offers of rental amounts.

"The directors are quite put out about this," the president told members. "Here is a Quebec organization offering to sell us hunting rights on Ontario land. It seems odd that we in Ontario have to purchase these rights from outsiders.

"We can sit by and see this happen," the president said. "The first thing we know Northern Ontario for Ontarions will be a thing of the past."

"We have sent a letter to the Chief Ranger, Napanee branch, Lands and Forests asking for information regarding this group" president Hammett said.

The club was requested by letter from a Brighton hinter to aid in protesting governmental action in completely sealing off a duck hunting island near Presqu'ile Point.

"Last year," the letter stated "the government rented 40 duck hides at $4. each with the majority of the Island hunting facilities free.

"This year we have been notified it will take over the whole property for rental fides. We are asking district game clubs to take up the cudgels".

The meeting viewed several hunting and fishing films. Fred Ellis, Bayside School won the main prize of the evening.

also gave a clearer indication of what he has in mind when his three-month wage-price freeze expires Nov. 13.

He said it will be necessary to have continued controls with teeth to them, backed up by the government. The post-freeze measures will "cover the whole economy," he said, while concentrating on major industries where wage and price increases are most damaging to the anti-inflation drive.

Nixon was questioned by a 10-man panel made up mainly of leading members of Detroit's Industrial - mercantile-financial community, and the questions reflected business concerns and viewpoints.

Nixon re-emphasized his commitment to freer trade and said it would be disastrous if the American 10 - per-cent import levy became permanent. But he said "we will not give up the surcharge to placate our friends."

He said U.S. producers simply wanted an equal chance to compete in foreign markets.

"We need a new approach to the problem of exchange rates," the president said. "We need a new system. The date one was crisis prone and that is one of the reasons why the surcharge will not be removed until we get action on that front."

On the steps that will follow his 90-day wage-price freeze, Nixon said these would remain in effect as long as necessary to deal with the country's domestic economic problems.

He re-emphasized his confidence in free market forces as the most effective way to economic progress.

But he said "until we can deal with the problem of inflation, we'll deal with the problem of wages and prices as they force up the cost of living for all Americans and deal with it effectively, we believe that it is necessary to have controls with teeth, backed up by government."

Belleville Television Bid Opposed By Kingston

TORONTO (CP) — Television station CKWS of Kingston attempted Thursday to fend off moves by three groups to set up a new station in the Kingston-Belleville area.

D. R. Lawrie, director of broadcasting operations for CKWS, told the Canadian Radio-Television Commission that CKWS would lose 46 per cent of its annual revenue if a new station were licensed in the Kingston region.

He suggested the commission could allow CHEX-TV in Peterborough, a sister station of CKWS, to set up a rebroadcasting station in Belleville.

CKWS could switch from the CBC to the CTV network with CHEX remaining a CBC affiliate. The region could then receive both networks' services, Belleville is 46 miles west of Kingston.

Mr. Lawrie was opposing applications by Bushnell Communications Ltd. of Ottawa, Belleville Broadcasting Ltd. of Belleville, and County Broadcasting Ltd. of Belleville for a new station to serve the region.

Baton Broadcasting Ltd., owner of CFTO-TV Toronto, holds a controlling interest in Belleville Broadcasting.

County Broadcasting stressed that it is a locally-owned company which would concentrate in local programs. None of the seven shareholders has a controlling interest.

County Broadcasting expects to draw much of its advertising revenue from advertisers who now use the Watertown, N.Y., station, the CRTC was told.

Among the shareholders of the County group are Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott, Gerald Weaver, Howard Booth, John O'Flynn, Joel Marer and Charles Murphy. They had planned on CTV affiliation but CTV through Baton Broadcasting is itself involved in one of the four bids, holding a controlling interest in Belleville Broadcasting.

However, the Belleville Broadcasting interest also includes Quinte residents Peter Wills Louis Maraskas and Robert Temple.

Belleville Broadcasting said it would provide some local programming although it would be primarily a rebroadcasting station for CFTO Toronto.

The company said a local station providing a full range of local programming cannot operate economically in the Belleville area.

Stewart Griffiths, president of Bushnell Communications, said the Kingston-Belleville region is more closely allied to Ottawa than to Toronto, his company would establish a rebroadcasting station in the Kingston region that would carry programs from CJOH-TV Ottawa.

He said Bushnell needs the larger viewing audience that Kingston would provide to bring in more advertising revenue. This revenue was needed to support Bushnell's independent programming operation.

Murray Chercover, president of the CTV Television Network Ltd., supported the applications of both Bushnell and Baton. Both companies operate CTV affiliates.

Mr. Chercover said a locally-owned station in Belleville would have to be subsidized by the CTV network because it could not operate economically.

TV Giants Come Out Against Third Network

TORONTO (CP) — The big guns of Canadian television fired broadsides Thursday at a proposal to set up a third English-language TV network.

The CBC told the Canadian Radio-Television Commission that an application by Global TV Canada to set up a network in southern Ontario would reduce corporation advertising revenues by 12 to 20 per cent and would endanger the existence of the existing private affiliates of the network.

The CTV Television Network Ltd. said Global's bid would financially damage the CTV network and lower the quality of Canadian programming of the existing networks.

The CRTC heard a Global application to establish transmitters at seven Ontario centres with program studios at Toronto and Ottawa.

The commission will rule on the proposal later.

Global said its TV stations will generate new advertising revenue.

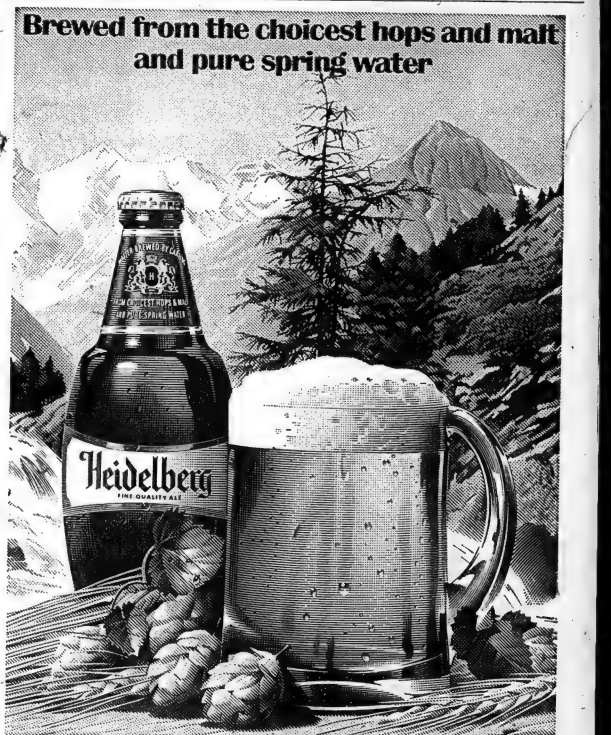
Eugene Hallman, a CBC vice-president, said the CBC draws a major proportion of its revenue from the Ontario market.

This helped to pay for smaller stations in other parts of Canada that were largely neglected by national advertisers.

Murray Chercover, CTV president, said the network has been reorganized to free smaller stations from financial responsibilities in operating the network. These stations also would receive a basic minimum income from the network to help them continue.

He said if the Global application is approved, CTV will have to increase the subsidy to these stations and perhaps others will be added to the list.

The Global network would be "disruptive and destructive with respect to all of the priorities for an orderly and rapid development of the national system."



The Ontario Educational Communications Authority, a provincial agency, told the commission it opposes Global's intention to use Channel 6 at Paris, Ont., and Ottawa.

The authority said it intends to apply for use of the channel in both areas.

T. R. Ide, OECA chairman, said if the authority can use Channel 6 in both areas, it will reach an additional 1.8 million viewers. The authority uses Channel 19 in Toronto and its programs are seen on some CBC and private television stations.

The applicants for Channel 6 in the Belleville-Kingston area also opposed Global because they said Global's use of that channel would interfere with their proposed stations.

Davis Appeals to Young To Make Vote Exciting

By JOE DUPUIS

GALT, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis made a plea Thursday night to the young people of Ontario to involve themselves actively in the Oct. 21 provincial election.

"You can add a degree of excitement, a degree of enthusiasm, which was lacking in the last election," he told a rally at a civic centre attended by 600 persons, about 100 of them young people.

He said the government's decision this summer to lower the age of majority to 18 from 21—giving teen-agers the right to vote—was not universally acclaimed.

But he said he has confidence in the ability of young people to "involve themselves in a way which will be totally acceptable, no matter how they vote, as citizens of Ontario."

"We have given you certain rights but we have also given you responsibilities and I say to the young people that I expect you will involve yourselves in the election," Mr. Davis added. "You can contribute a great deal."

The premier's short speech also contained further criticism of what he terms the expensive campaign promises made by the opposition parties. This has been a favorite theme since the premier officially opened his campaign.

The civic centre rally was held in honor of Allan Reuter, who has held Waterloo South riding for the Progressive Conservatives for the last eight years. Also on the platform was Treasury Minister Darcy McKeough.

Premier Davis started the day's campaigning Thursday with a pancake breakfast on the steps of the Toronto-Dominion Centre in downtown Toronto.

A lively band kept pace with the festivities as Attorney General Allan Lawrence, whose St. George riding encompasses the centre, accompanied the premier in shaking hands with office workers.

Mr. Davis then boarded his campaign bus and headed for the Kensington street market, where he was joined by Mrs. Davis and Allan Grossman, trade minister, for a stroll through the narrow streets.

It was back to the Toronto Dominion Centre for a round of hand-shaking with lunch-time crowds and a walk through the underground mall and lunch in a department store.

An hour off for government business and it was time to go on to Honest Ed's, Toronto's garish bargain-basement store, where he got a bargain in imported cheese.

Mr. Davis took advantage of the store's special for the day: a five-pound package of European cheese, normally worth $2.29, for 99 cents.

Lewis Says Davis Copying Trudeau

By LILLIAN NEWBERY

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — New Democratic Party Leader Stephen Lewis said Thursday that Premier William Davis is electioneering in exactly the style of Prime Minister Trudeau in 1968.

"He (Trudeau) made no promises said he wouldn't deliver anything and lived up to it," Mr. Lewis said.

"If "Pierre Elliott Davis" gets away with his "no promises" campaign for the Oct. 21 provincial election, Ontario can expect a government that will adopt the same "indifferent, casual and vague stance" as that of the federal Liberals, the NDP leader said.

It was Mr. Lewis' first direct attack on Mr. Davis' campaign.

In all previous public appearances the NDP leader has concentrated on outlining his party's position on economic issues.

NDP organizers said his remarks Thursday, to an audience of more than 800 students at Niagara College, were aimed deliberately at forcing Mr. Davis to respond with his position.

Mr. Davis has accused the opposition parties of making costly promises they will be unable to keep.

Mr. Lewis described the Davis campaign as a "presidential" tour of the province in which he described Mr. Davis as "indifferent, casual and vague stance" as that of the federal Liberals, the NDP leader said.

It was Mr. Lewis' first direct attack on Mr. Davis' campaign.

Permissive Sex Attitude Said Dangerous

HAMILTON (CP) — Curbing the rate of venereal disease among young people would take more than finding and treating those infected or disseminating facts through sex education, the city's associate medical officer of health said Thursday.

"If venereal disease is to be controlled, permissiveness must everywhere be vigorously opposed; and those infected, particularly young people, must be helped wherever possible to establish healthy standards of conduct," Dr. John Wells told the Ontario chapter of the Canadian Institute of Public Health Inspectors.

Stowaway Refugee Is Held

VANCOUVER (CP) — Immigration officials here have been holding an 18-year-old Czechoslovakian refugee since the weekend, it was disclosed Thursday.

Ivo Sorn apparently fled from Prague and made his way to Copenhagen, where he boarded a CP Air DC-8 charter jet.

He was discovered without proper documents at Vancouver International Airport and has been held since Monday in city jail cells.

Lyall Hawkins, regional director of immigration, said the youth is seeking political asylum.

Asked whether the case will be handled in Ottawa, Mr. Hawkins said: "There has been no decision at this level."

'Exercise' Planned

QUEBEC (CP) — Soldiers at Canadian Forces Base Valcartier are reported to be ready for a "troop movement as part of a NATO exercise," but a spokesman at the base declined to say if the exercise was a protective measure against a possible strike Sunday by provincial policemen.

A spokesman at the base said the exercise will include most personnel of the Petawawa base near Ottawa. It will be held near Gagetown, N.B.

In Montreal, The Gazette said Justice Minister Jerome Choquette affirmed the army "may" have been warned to be ready to step in if Quebec's 3,000 provincial policemen go on strike.

End to Welfare Urged If Drink, Drugs Bought

By ALLAN DICKIE

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — It is time Ontario "took a decisive step away" from paying welfare to people who don't really need it, Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Thursday.

He said he would "without hesitation" cut off welfare payments to those who could be proved to be spending the money on drugs or over indulgence in alcohol.

He said governments would have to pay hospital bills for those welfare cases treated for drug overdoses, but after that he would cut them off.

"You can't keep helping basket cases forever," Mr. Nixon told a news conference as he continued his campaign for the Oct. 21 provincial election.

He said Quebec had interesting legislation planned which would provide family allowances only to those who need it.

He said it is a good idea and will cut down on costs of various departments.

"It's time we took a decisive step away from paying welfare to people who don't really need it, to paying to those who do," he said.

Later in the day, Mr. Nixon promised Ontario Indians that if he were elected premier he would set up a select committee of the legislature to visit the province's reserves and discuss local problems.

In turn, Indian chiefs from southwestern Ontario told Mr. Nixon during a meeting of Ossen Sound that they want a provincial government as an ally in pushing their claims for aboriginal rights.

Lyle Riley, vice-president of the Ontario Union of Indians, told Mr. Nixon that the Indians do not want any more federal government grants until the issue of Indian rights is settled.

Mr. Nixon promised to set up an Indian claims committee composed of Indians and government members which would discuss Indian claims in the province.

Mr. Nixon told the meeting at the community hall on the Sagine reserve that it is time governments and say "lets talk."

Comments sit down with the Indians. "There ought to be a select committee of the legislature whose responsibility would be to travel to Indian reserves to discuss local problems," he said.

Chief James Masse of the Saugeen Band, which has 700 people living on the Owen Sound reserve, charged that under the Ontario Municipal Act, townships in southwestern Ontario are unjustly taxing non-Indians who live on the reserve and keeping taxes for themselves.

Mr. Nixon said he was unfamiliar with the situation but that if the Indians' claims are correct "it certainly is not right."

"We must sit down and talk and come to an agreement on what we can do in the next 10 years—even the next 30 years," the Liberal leader said.

Ann Landers

Some Wise Advice For Unfortunate Ones

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope you will print this. It might help some unfortunate girl get wise to her situation, a very interesting reason, one which most mistresses do not understand. She is, of course, loath to believe that if it were only possible, the man would leave his wife and marry her so the whole world could know of their great love.

But usually the truth is he will not divorce his wife and marry her because it would defeat his purpose. If he married her, she would then be a part of the real world, which is exactly what he is trying to escape. She would be no different from his present wife. The excitement would vanish. The man who takes a mistress, does so not because she is the love of his life, who he met too late, but because he wants to flee from the demands of everyday living which have become too heavy. The first of the matter is, if he had the guts to stand up to life, he wouldn't need her. — STANDING UP IN WILMINGTON, N.C.

DEAR STANDING: You sound like a guy who has been there. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell me what to do about our 13-year-old daughter. Several months ago, Lisa started to hang around the service station a few blocks from here. When we discovered she had a crush on a 19-year-old boy who works the night shift, we checked into the boy's background and found out he is no good.

We told Lisa she was not to see the boy again. For several days she was quiet and sullen but seemed to be behaving. On a hunch, I checked her bed at 11:30 one night and she was not in it. I sent my husband down to the service station and sure enough, she was there. He brought her home.

Last week the boy's picture was in the paper in connection with a holdup. We are relieved because now he is in jail and Lisa knows he's a bad actor. But she is taking it so hard we don't know how to deal with her. The girl will not eat with the family and she looks like the wrath of God. I discovered that she's been sleeping in the dress she was wearing when she was last with him "because it smells like him." (Gasoline.) She wants to go see him in jail and we will not allow it. Are we wrong? Please, Ann, suggest something to get our daughter back on the track.—DISTRAUGHT PARENTS IN SHOMOKIN.

* * *

DEAR PARENTS: Your daughter needs more than a suggestion from me. She needs professional counseling and I urge you to see that she gets it. It sounds as if the girl's been out of control for quite some time. Get going.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You outsmarted yourself when you told the man who wrote about going steady with the same girl for 32 years to quit bothering you with phony letters. Again you made a point of the fact that the letter came from New Haven and accused the Yalies of playing games. Don't you think anybody in New Haven has real problems? I used to live in that town and I can tell you that there are plenty of mixed-up people there.

Do you actually think it's possible for a couple to go together for 32 years? If so, you've got a lot to learn. My personal opinion is that anyone who writes to you from anywhere has got to be nuts. — GREEN BAY.

DEAR G.B.: You wrote, didn't you? I don't think you're nuts. But then I live in Chicago. What do I know?

Couple Goes to Dances; Wife Sits Alone

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: When my friend and I go to an social evening of dancing, he leaves me alone sitting at a table watching everyone else dancing, while he dances with all his sisters-in-law and some of their friends. "Courtesy dances" he calls them.

Their husbands stand around talking and doing very little dancing, and I sit unasked by them, when their wives are being taken care of by my friend.

I am a good dancer and enjoy it very much and resent this treatment. The sisters-in-law are his dead wife's sisters.

We have gone together now about four years — and he has the idea I am jealous, possessive, lack understanding. — Right or Wrong?

Dear R. or W.: If a dance is being hosted by his dead wife's sister, then the label "courtesy dances" does apply. I suspect that the truth is, these people are old friends, belonging to an era you do not share.

He is being unfair to label you as possessive when you ask not to be left alone. Any mannerly escort provides company for his girl before he leaves her to dance with someone else. If these gentlemen do not come to you, then your friend should be taking you to where others are sitting and talking.

If he takes you for granted now, to the extent of leaving you sitting alone for long periods, in company, what will happen if you should ever marry the guy?

* * *

Dear Doris: What chores should my 11-year-old grand daughter and her older brother do as a daily requirement when they visit me for several days? I must say I am very disgusted at these children as they are very self assured, but I think children should have some real responsibility.—Granny

Dear Granny: And so they should. Yet because their visit with you is a visit, they need to feel special — and not to see themselves as here expected to work every minute.

They can both help with dishes — which they themselves have shared the use of. They can keep their rooms tidy and clean, and a special do when you teach your girl to bake a cake, prepare a meal or — as you are doing — make a quilt. The boy might take care of the grass cutting and small manual service jobs.

The prospect of an occasional visit from grandchildren can drive a picnic, a play, or they will romp light hearted through their chores.

General Brock High School Butter Tarts

By MARY MOORE

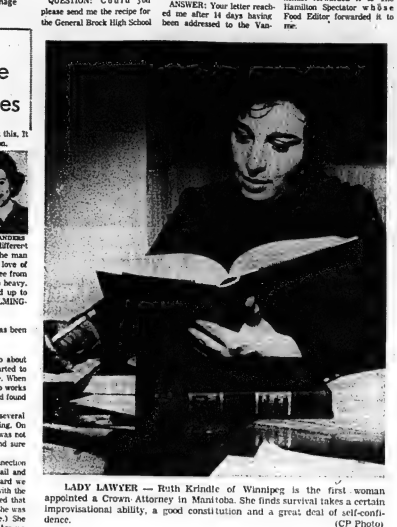
QUESTION: Could you please send me the recipe for the General Brock High School Butter Tarts? — Mrs. F. J. B., Nelson, BC.

ANSWER: Your letter reached me after 14 days having been addressed to the Vancouver Sun. Their Home Economist forwarded it to The Hamilton Spectator whose Food Editor forwarded it to me.

GENERAL BROCK HIGH SCHOOL BUTTER TARTS
(2 doz. — 2½" diameter)
Pastry: (Tart Dough) . . .
½ cup plus 2 tbsps. shortening
¼ cup plus 2 tbsps. lard
1¼ cups plus 1 tbsp. unsifted all-purpose or pastry flour (4½ lb.)
2 cups less 1 tbsp. unsifted cake flour (4½ lb.)
1-3 cup plus 1 tbsp. skim milk powder (⅞ oz.)
¾ tsp. salt
⅓ cup less 1 tbsp. light brown sugar (3½ oz.)
1 large egg
⅓ cup less 1 tbsp. water (1⅜ oz.)
Scant ½ tsp. vanilla
4 drops yellow food coloring (optional)
FILLING:
2¼ cups light brown sugar (1 lb.)
¼ cup soft shortening (2 oz.)
2 tbsp. soft butter . . .
¼ tsp. salt
1½ tbsps. golden corn syrup
4 eggs
½ tsp. vanilla
Approximately 1 cup raisins or walnuts

To make pastry combine in large mixing bowl the shortening, lard, flours, milk powder and salt and mix well. Combine in a small bowl the brown sugar, egg, water, vanilla and coloring (if used) and add to mixed dry ingredients and mix to a smooth dough, by hand if necessary. Now you can roll and cut out tart shells to fit 2¼" tart pans but I found it much faster to break off a piece of dough, roll into a 1½" diameter ball between my palms and press it into the tart pans — it is soft and pliable and will shape up exactly as you press it. 24 2¼" tart tins with this pastry. (If you have a little leftover it freezes perfectly.) Measure 1 tsp. raisins or nuts into each shell.

Combine all filling ingredients and beat until blended. Neatly spoon 2 tbsps. (¼ cup each unbaked shell to fill to brim. Bake at 350 deg. F. for 18 to 20 minutes until risen and golden.



Let stand in pans 5 min. before carefully removing to rack to cool. Professional Butter Tarts par excellence.

One Learns Best from Mistakes Says Woman Crown Attorney

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ruth Krindle says she's pleased to be the first woman appointed a Crown attorney in Manitoba and hopes soon to improve on her ad libbing.

The ad libbing comes when Miss Krindle, a bright-eyed Winnipegger in her late 20s, is faced with prosecuting cases that she hasn't had time to prepare.

Recently, for example, she went to the small town of Morris knowing about three cases.

"When I got there, I discovered 12 cases were ready and had to be heard—I had no time at all to prepare myself. But you learn best from your mistakes."

Miss Krindle's previous courtroom experience was mostly with a client, divorce and labor court claims. Now she deals almost exclusively with criminal and provincial law.

She says that to survive as a novice Crown attorney takes a certain improvisational ability, a good constitution and a great deal of self-confidence.

Miss Krindle worked with two law firms for a total of four years after graduation and has found more personal freedom since assuming her new position at the start of August.

In private practice, she was under more pressure and clients often expected her to look somehow different, "not that I ever did discover what a female lawyer should look like."

Pathologist Addresses WHA

An interesting and informative address was given to the Women's Hospital Auxiliary by Dr. Robert Smith, pathologist at Belleville General Hospital on the topic — "The Blood Bank". Introduced by Mrs. N. K. Manning, Dr. Smith explained how essential blood is to life, as there are patients every week who need transfusions.

He stated one of the major advances in medicine is the place in the past 20 years other great advance took intelligent use of blood. Also with discovery of plastic bags into which blood is drawn. Dr. Smith explained it is not only the transfusion of blood, but the ability to separate blood into fractions of properties for treating patients in many fields of cancer, hemophilia and albumin, where research is going on all the time. Several cases were projected on the screen and detailed means of treatment was passed on to the members.

Dr. Smith stated the Red Cross take blood from the districts back to Toronto, where the central team work enables this hospital to secure blood needed in about 99 per cent of all occasions.

The appreciation of the members was expressed to Dr. Smith by Mrs. F. Beeby. She remarked in her experience, many donors have had some personal experience to remind them of the need of donating blood and the felt many more could assist in this important project.

The president, Mrs. J. Nelles welcomed several new members. She mentioned the recognition of vice-President Mrs. S. B. Bochnek who was selected to receive an award for her many hours of service as a convener of Volunteer Hospital Services.

The president expressed regret on receiving the resignation of Mrs. F. Bebe as a co-convener of the Opportunity Shop, also nominating committee chairman.

Mrs. Bochnek reported that everyone enjoyed the recent Hospital Auxiliary dance held at the Four Seasons Hotel and remarked that several had expressed the desire that the dance would be an annual affair. She wished to thank her committee for their assistance in making it a success.

Recording secretary, Mrs. N. K. Manning reported on a Job Description Book she is compiling, which will enable new people taking office to refer to the information clearly outlined with respect to the new office.

In a report from the Opportunity Shop, Mrs. F. Bowler said they have had a busy time since the September opening and was pleased to present a cheque for $1100 to the president.

Mrs. J. B. Durrant, chairman of Volunteer Hospital Services stated 216 volunteers had donated 1205 hours of service during the summer months. She thanked the junior volunteers and several who assisted in this activity during the holiday season and extended a special thanks to Mrs. Stokmans and Mrs. Twigg.

Auditory members and guests enjoyed refreshments served by Mrs. M. Tretina, social convener and committee.

Say in Pricing Sought

Union Says GM Avoids Fighting Overseas Cars

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — The United Auto Workers union dug in Thursday for a fight with General Motors over what the union contends is GM's unwillingness to compete with overseas manufacturers.

Dennis McDermott, Canadian UAW leader, said the North American auto manufacturers are not competing because they find it more profitable to enter into joint production agreements with overseas producers.

He suggested the union may want a say in pricing.

Mr. McDermott and union leaders from GM plants in Ontario and Quebec met here Thursday to plan strategy to counter GM plans to cut 1,825 jobs during the winter at five Ontario plants and one at Ste. Therese, Que.

After the three-hour meeting, he said the union will:

1. Propose that GM stop requiring overtime in favor of retaining as many workers as possible;

2. Demand that GM review its car prices to make them more competitive with imports;

3. Ask the company to allow voluntary retirement for men after 30 years and for women after 25 years;

4. Suggest that GM build a car designed specifically to compete in the inexpensive, small-car field which now is left entirely to Japanese and European manufacturers; and

5. Recommend "in a very forceful fashion" that the government repeal the 12-per-cent excise tax on automobiles, a major factor in the $200-$400 differential between United States and Canadian car prices.

At a news conference after the meeting, Mr. McDermott predicted "a revolt on the part of the employees" if GM demands overtime be worked while layoffs are in progress. The three-year contract signed last year does not give employees the right to refuse to work overtime.

"And we give you a very, very frank admission that we're going to encourage that kind of conduct."

Mr McDermott said the union in the U.S. is having similar problems with GM and he plans to propose to Leonard Woodcock, UAW president, that the leaders from both countries demand that GM compete in the small-car field.

He said the North American companies have the ability to compete but will not because they find that joint agreements with overseas companies are more profitable. The GM announcement of layoffs said Japanese competition was the main problem.

"In fact, they are not competing because they may well be competing with themselves."

He said Chrysler now builds at overseas plants about one-third of the vehicles it sells in North America. He added that Chrysler expects the proportion to increase to about one-half in six or seven years.

The UAW will seek to have GM produce a "clean, competitive, economic set of wheels" to compete with cars smaller than the Vega, now the smallest model made by GM in North America.

"It's about time that the whole realm of prices fell within collective bargaining. If we're going to be blamed for price increases, we should have a say in pricing."

Mr. McDermott accused GM of operating on a pure profit motive without regard to human factors or to Canada's economy.

"We're talking about the gradual erosion of one of the basic industries in Canada.

"When they establish in a commodity such as Oshawa and in a country such as Canada, damn it, they ought to have a social responsibility."

Public Employees Union Is in Spat

EDMONTON (CP) — The four-day convention of the Canadian Union of Public Employees ended Thursday after a fight with the union's big brother and a reconciliation with its sisters.

A split between CUPE and the Canadian Labor Congress could result from a dispute about who has jurisdiction over provincial government employees.

The CUPE delegates did, however, express a unanimous determination to give women in the union equal wages and job opportunities.

Delegates representing the union's 136,000 members voted Wednesday to allow their executive to withhold contributions to the CLC if the jurisdictional dispute was not settled.

Under the congress charter, CUPE would be automatically expelled from the CLC if it withheld its contributions for three months.

In their resolution on women, delegates unanimously supported a national executive report on the status of women which recommended equal wage-and job opportunities for them.

The report acknowledged that discrimination against women existed within CUPE and recommended that women should be represented on the union executive and committees according to their members. It also recommended maternity leave with pay and union supported day care centres.

Dennison Loses Tax Appeal

TORONTO (CP) — The Exchequer Court of Canada has dismissed an appeal by Dennison Mines Ltd. of Toronto concerning a tax reassessment by both the federal and provincial governments for the years 1961 to 1963.

In its 1970 annual report the company showed tax reassessments totalling $6,273,722 plus interest.

"Certain assets of the company have been assigned to the tax authorities as security for the outstanding reassessments pending settlement," the report said.

E. B. McCoskey, vice president, said Thursday the company has not received reasons for the dismissal of the appeal.

When these are received the company may appeal in the Supreme Court of Canada, he said.

Lang Ultimatum

Vote on Bill Or It Dies

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield pledged Thursday that the opposition will fight the government's refusal to make legally-required payments to the Canadian wheat board "until we succeed or until this government goes down the drain where it belongs."

But Otto Lang, minister responsible for the wheat board, came right back, saying that if the opposition did not allow the government's Prairie income stabilization bill to come to a vote "in a reasonable period," the government would withdraw it as a dead issue and blame it all on opposition MPs.

That set the tone for an eyeball-to-eyeball Commons debate on a Conservative motion calling on the House to condemn the government for what it termed a deliberate flouting of the Temporary Wheat Reserves Act.

The reserves act requires the government to make payments every month to the wheat board — later passed on to farmers — for wheat deliveries in storage.

The stabilization bill would repeal the reserves act, make $100 million payable to farmers in lieu of reserves act payments this year, and set up a government farmer fund from which farmers could draw when grains-industry income falls below previous five-year averages.

In anticipation of passage of that bill, the government has not made payments under the reserves act since July, 1970.

The bill now is in report stage in the Commons—the step before debate on third and final reading.

The Conservative motion was defeated 112 to 73, with all opposition parties standing against the government.

A New Democrat amendment calling on the government to make the required payments immediately was defeated by the same vote.

Standing in the 264-seat House: Liberals 151, Conservatives 72, New Democrats 24, Social Credit 13, Independent 2, Independent Liberal 1, vacant 1.

Mr. Stanfield, introducing the motion, said it was a crime and a tragedy that the government had ignored the law it was sworn to uphold.

"We now have before us a government which is not only acting ineffectively and incompetently in a whole range of economic policies, we also have a government which is acting illegally."

David Lewis, leader of the New Democrats, agreed the government was breaking the law "without conscience and without reason."

Caught in a financial bind for years, farmers now are being denied money legally theirs under the reserves act.

The government was also guilty of blackmail—holding back both the reserves act payments and the proposed $100 million until the Commons passes the whole stabilization bill.

"What is in issue is the very status of Parliament in the eyes of the people of Canada, the very respect for government in the eyes of the people of Canada.

"As conscientious members of Parliament we cannot allow the government to break the law with impunity and to continue to break it without a word from this House of Commons."

Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson said payouts under the reserves act would be about $40 million less than benefits under the proposed bill. The opposition would have to take the blame for disappointing thousands of small farmers.

"You're a damn liar and a crook," yelled Stanley Korchinski (PC—Mackenzie).

Quebec Talks Likely

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is ready to begin negotiations with Quebec representatives to work out a solution to their differences on family allowances and perhaps clear the way for agreement on constitutional division of powers.

Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Thursday he has proposed an early meeting between representatives of the two governments.

In a letter to Premier Robert Bourassa, tabled in the Commons, Mr. Trudeau says it seems possible "to find a legislative and administrative solution to the problems that we have encountered in the constitutional area" regarding family allowances.

The meeting would also discuss the role of manpower centres and adult job training.

Mr. Trudeau's letter says an Ottawa-Quebec agreement would, he hopes, help clear away the uncertainty felt by Quebec government leaders on federal proposals for constitutional revision. Quebec rejected the proposals in June on the grounds the provinces would not have enough control over social security.

The prime minister's letter, dated Sept. 10, was a reply to a Sept. 2 letter from Premier Bourassa.

In that letter, Mr. Bourassa asked federal legislation provide for federal distribution of family allowances conforming with methods of payment prescribed by the provincial government.

End Sought To Injunction

TORONTO (CP) — Counsel for striking workers at the Textpack Ltd. plant in Brantford asked the Ontario Court of Appeal Thursday to lift an injunction which limits the number of pickets to four.

Norman Endicott said the removal of the injunction, which was issued in August, would reduce violence at the plant.

Mr. Endicott, representing the Canadian Textile and Chemical Union, asked the court to consider the actions of both the company and union members before deciding whether to lift the injunction.

False Ad Brings Fine

HAMILTON (CP) — A newspaper advertisement claiming Kenmore detergent was non-pollutant" cost Simpsons-Sears $1,000 in provincial court Thursday.

The company was charged with misleading advertising under the Combines Investigation Act after the ad appeared last year.

Local store officials argued that the non-polluting claim was contained in the United States and that they did not receive a later memorandum from the Toronto head office warning them not to advertise it in that fashion.

Jewish Doctor Tells Probe Hospital Not Discriminatory

TORONTO (CP) — A Jewish specialist told a committee of inquiry into hospital privileges in Ontario Thursday that anti-Semitism and racial discrimination have played no part in the appointment or rejection of doctors as North York General Hospital.

Dr. Harry Paltar, an internist at the city hospital said five of 13 doctors in the hospital's department of medicine are Jewish.

Every department in the hospital has at least one Jewish physician on the staff, he said.

Angus McClaskey, chairman of the board of governors at the hospital, said that as allegations of anti-Semitism had been made to the committee at a private hearing he wished to refute them publicly.

He said one of the founding group of the hospital is Jewish and is vice-president of the board. The acting chairman of the medical administration committee which deals with staff applications was also Jewish.

Mr. McClaskey also told the committee that it was better that Doctors were not told why their applications for hospital privileges were rejected.

He said that if it were necessary to disclose the reasons it would undermine the confidential nature of the process and might lead to resignations of valuable senior staff.

Earlier, two doctors complained to the committee that they had been refused privileges to the hospital and argued that they should be able to practise medicine in a hospital within their own community.

Mr. McClaskey said there must be some control over hospital appointments but "geography cannot be it."

"There must be some limit to the number of doctors in a hospital, simply in the interests of patient care and the medical disciplines involved."

Anti-militarist Hirohito Image Fraudulent Asserts New Book

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

President Nixon meets Emperor Hirohito in Alaska this weekend in a gesture of U.S.-Japanese friendship. A week later, a book will appear in the United States, packing a wallop that does violence to Japan's sensitivity about its ruler.

The book claims that a widely-accepted image of Hirohito as a ruler pushed by militarists into war against his will was created by deliberate fraud as a device to protect the imperial house when defeat in the Second World War was imminent.

The author, seeking to shatter "the devout silence which makes conspirators of all who enter the service of the palace," pictures Hirohito as having a major role in planning all Japanese war moves since the early 1930s and in plotting the 1941 sneak attack on Pearl Harbor which pitarded the United States into the war.

Japan's Imperial Conspiracy, by David Bergamini, a journalist and Rhodes scholar, will be published by William Morrow and Co. The Japanese know about the book but are not commenting on its quarrel with those Japanese historians who insist Hirohito had no part in developing Japanese militarism.

Under a post-war constitution imposed by the U.S. occupation, Hirohito no longer claims divine status and has been reduced from absolute to constitutional monarch. But Japanese regard him with reverence as the religious head and symbol of the nation, and the book seems bound to create a stir.

Bergamini suggests that Hirohito should have topped the list of those tried for war crimes as the chief architect of Japanese aggression since the 1931 invasion of Manchuria.

A Tokyo native and fluent in Japanese, Bergamini searched tons of records to assemble in 1,200 pages a hair-raising story of Japan scheming to dominate the world. It is a story of cruel "fake" wars, staged provocations, purges, spying, palace-inspired assassinations, immensely complicated plots and, above all, of slaughter on a mind-boggling scale.

Presiding over it all, claims Bergamini, was a slim, bespectacled modern day Caesar whose Gaul was "Greater East Asia co-prosperity sphere" intended to stretch from Iran to Hawaii, from Manchuria to Australia. The book is so impressively documented from sources said to have been hitherto inaccessible, and so plausibly laid out, that it seems sure to command an attentive audience.

Bergamini says Hirohito's chief collaborators in the planning were members of an "imperial cabal" who met under heavy security in a building on the palace grounds beginning as far back as 50 years ago.

"Here, in the precincts of the palace, were made the first rough plans for Japan's attempt to conquer half the world," Bergamini writes. "Here studied every one of the Class-A war criminals tried by allied judges in 1946 and 1947. Here, if anywhere, was hatched the 'criminal conspiracy' of which Japan's war leaders, with the exception of Hirohito, were judged guilty. Here only were all the Japanese 'criminals' together in one place at one time to 'conspire.' Yet the indoctrination centre . . . has never until now been mentioned in writing in English except passingly in an unpublished 1946 U.S. Army intelligence report.

"This report was circulated among the Allied judges at the war crimes trials, but information regarding the indoctrination centre was not introduced in evidence, presumably because it implicated the emperor."

Hirohito, says the author, handpicked the army group that planned the conquest of Manchuria, and presided at the planning of a deliberate provocation to give Japan an excuse for total war on China in 1937.

Relying on documents, Bergamini links the imperial family with the calculated rape of Nanking in 1937. He says Hirohito's uncle, Prince Asaka, in command, presided over the slaughter of 140,000 unarmed Chinese. Hirohito later decorated Prince Asaka for his China role.

The U.S. occupation regime under Gen. Douglas MacArthur strictly avoided any action that might involve the emperor, while prosecuting others as war criminals.

Napanee Holds Trojans Up to Final Quarter

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

It was a day of surprises in the Bay of Quinte Senior COSSA football battle between Moira and Napanee yesterday.

Not surprising was the fact that the favored Trojans came out with a victory, but Napanee displayed some unexpected strength despite the 19-6 loss. "It was just a good team effort," said Napanee coach Eric Bartlett, whose defensive squad held Moira to a 6-6 deadlock until the later stages of the fourth quarter. "They had a little more polish than we did. We just took over the coaching last week, so we haven't had much time to work on offensive plays."

Moira head man Hugh Cook admitted to mild displeasure with his team's offensive timing ("Things like our reverses were really working in practice, but they didn't have the timing right today") and considerable unhappiness with the Trojans' kicking game ("It was pathetic.").

On the plus side for the winners, perhaps the "biggest" surprise of the day was the play of 225-pound defensive tackle John Hogle. "I didn't think that he had very much in our practices. In fact I almost cut him," admitted Cook, "but he played really well out there today. He's got a great attitude."

Hogle came through with a key defensive play in the final period, falling on a fumble at the Napanee 25 - yard line to set up a single by Dave Rutherford to give Moira a 7-6 lead.

The fact that fullback Pete Stalikovich came up with a terrific effort in the first half, but were unable to break a scoreless deadlock. A breakaway goal shortly after half time gave Quinte a 1-0 lead, but Jim Lovett converted a pass from Rick Hogge to gain the split for BCI.

strong showing wasn't unexpected, but what was surprising was that his most effective plays were made on defence. The stocky Moira back was inserted into the Trojan defence at corner linebacker in the first half and came up with an outstanding effort at that position.

Stalikovich stopped a fourth quarter run out of punt formation by Napanee which allowed running back Peter Hart to lead a touchdown march to up the score to 13-6. Hart capped the drive with a one-yard plunge for the major.

The fine play of Hart and Rutherford in the Moira back field certainly wasn't surprising. Rutherford swept around end for a three - yard touch down in the first half and added the final Moira major on a 40-yard punt return.

"I think the best part of our game was that we were able to move the ball, even though we didn't score that often," coach Cook analyzed.

Cook also praised the work of the entire defensive unit. The "Animal" squad proved that they've lost none of the toughness that made them one of the top units in the league last season.

Napanee's only touchdown came in the first half when a Moira fumble had given them possession on the Trojan 25-yard line. Murray Van Alstine barged over for the visitors' lone score.

In the junior contest played at Napanee, the defending Bay of Quinte champion junior Trojans came up with a 34-14 win over the hosts.

John Loder paced Moira with a pair of touchdowns, while Bob Berrace, Mike Mc-Clelland and Peter McBride contributed majors. Two-point conversions by Mike Meagher and Brian Calnan rounded out the scoring.

You Gotta Have Hart

Moira Secondary School running back Peter Hart tucks the pigskin away and cuts up field for a long gain in yesterday's Bay of Quinte COSSA senior football contest. Hart's powerful ground thrusts accounted for much of the Trojans' offensive output as they knocked off Napanee 19-6 in the opening game of their high school gridiron schedule.

Thompson Sets Harrier Record

It was the same course, but a lot of other things were subject to change in Centennial Secondary School's Bill Vermilyea Road Race Wednesday.

The race which had been previously held in the spring, proved to be perfectly adaptable to the autumn weather as Jim Thompson stepped off a 15:10.6 performance over the three mile distance to break Tom Wills' 1969 record time.

Ron Brown finished second in the event, followed by Wayne Clapp, John Desmarais and Ron Richardson. Bev Hitchon placed 20th in the field of 51 runners to finish first among the girls entered in the event.

Gals' Golf Fun Starts at 49

Hettie Dyble proved that your golf life can start at 49, by winning the Golden Girls' Golf Tournament at the Bay of Quinte Country Club Thursday.

The tournament is limited to contestants over 49 years of age. The winner carded a net score of 35 for the nine-hole event to capture the Canadian Hotel Cup. Eva Ketcheson was the runner-up with a net 39, while Joy Beaverman's score of 49 was good for low gross honors.

Two Tied for Marysville Lead

John Trendell gained a share of the first round lead for the first annual men's Belleville Golf and Country Club. Trendell turned the par-70 Marysville layout in 79 Wednesday to share the lead with Harold Werkhoven. Betty Kelsey leads the women's field at 87, one stroke ahead of Marg Cousins. All final rounds will be played Sunday.

Collegians Held to Draw

BCI seniors failed to cash in some fine scoring opportunities Thursday as the defending Bay of Quinte COSSA champions were held to a 1-1 deadlock by Quinte Secondary.

The Collegians held a wide territorial edge in the first half, but were unable to break a scoreless deadlock. A breakaway goal shortly after half time gave Quinte a 1-0 lead, but Jim Lovett converted a pass from Rick Hogge to gain the split for BCI.

Farkas Gone too Far To Quit Trying Now

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Les Farkas has come too far to quit now.

So the next stop for the 22-year-old, former defenceman for the Hungarian national hockey club is Dayton Gems of the Eastern League.

"My life is hockey—I just want to play," he says.

Farkas was born in Budapest and laced on his first skates there at the age of 10. By 14, he was a member of the national junior team and at 19 moved up to the seniors.

"I realized when I was very young there was no real opportunity for me to develop as a hockey player in Hungary," he says.

"We have only about 300 players in our system and only four rinks—all in Budapest.

"I wanted very much to play in Canada because everybody in the world knows Canada is Hockey. I was not a big star in Europe, just a simple hockey player. But my life is hockey and I want to be a good hockey player in Canada if that is possible."

The Hungarian national team went to Poland to train for the 1970 world championships, then moved on to East Germany and Copenhagen for exhibition games.

"Being a national player, it was no trouble for me to get a passport."

In Denmark, he defected.

"I was at the hotel in Copenhagen. The rest of the players had gone out to see the city and some of the sights. I just took my skates and a small bag with some clothes in it and went to the Canadian Embassy in a taxi.

"The officials at the embassy put me in touch with the Danish police. They sent me to an emigrant's camp or something, where I stayed for about a month before I was allowed to come to Canada."

In Montreal, he sought a tryout with the American Hockey League gers but they declined. Farkas moved to Quebec City where Philadelphia Flyers of the National League and the Aces of the AHL were holding a joint camp.

Farkas got his tryout, but "they told me they were looking for a John Ferguson type . . . that I wasn't rough enough."

During his travles last year, Farkas stopped off in Belleville and skated at one practice of the Senior A Mohawks. He left after indicating he was looking for a high ar - paying hockey job.

The next stop was Syracuse and a trial with the Blazers of the EHL.

"I felt I was rough enough —I took 16 minutes in penalties the first game, but Mr. Watson (coach Phil Watson) said I wasn't fast enough for him."

Farkas kept trying and won a tryout at the joint camp operated here by Boston Bruins of the NHL, Boston Braves of the AHL and Oklahoma City Blazers of the Central League.

"I don't care about the money. I just want to play."

Milt Schmidt, general manager of the Bruins, suggested he try Dayton Gems of the EHL, whose camp opens Oct. 4.

"He has all the desire," Schmidt said. "He lacks experience."

Brown Jug Upset

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — Even Steve Filion didn't think Nanesmond could upset Albatross in the Little Brown Jug and foil the latter's bid for pacing's Triple Crown.

"To be honest, I didn't believe he could beat Albatross," the rocky little French-Canadian from Angers, Que. said Thursday after he guided Nanesmond to pacing's biggest upset of the season.

Nanesmond, a Tar Heel colt who had been lame nearly two months this summer, lost to Albatross by a nose in the second division, beat him in the raceoff and again in the deciding fourth heat before a crowd of 43,000.

Albatross took the second division in 1:58 1-5 after H. T. Laza had scored in the first division in 1:58 3-5 at the Delaware County Fairgrounds.

Albatross had been such a prohibitive favorite in the second division that track stewards barred him from the pari-mutuel betting.

Nanesmond whipped Albatross by one length in the raceoff in 2:3 and raped home ahead of the first two division victors in the deciding fourth heat in 2:04 2-5.

Both Stan Dancer, the driver of Albatross, and Filion, defending world champion harness driver, wanted the lead in the vital fourth heat.

"I would have died with him and he would have died with me," said Filion, North American leading harness driver with 331 victories.

Dancer, whose horse had piled up 16 straight victories and the first two legs of the Triple Crown coming to this final jewel—the Cane Futurity and Messenger Stakes — acknowledged Nanesmond was the better horse this day.

"It would not have made any difference if I had pulled him sooner," said Dancer. "He just outpaced me in the stretch."

It takes years to determine if one imported vine can flourish in Niagara.

We have tested over 300.

We've had our share of failures. We've had more than our share of almost successful heartbreaks. Of the more than 300 varieties we have tested so far in the thirty-five years since we started our great program of viticultural research, 250 were failures. Nothing. Of the remaining fifty, perhaps 30 showed spirit and even exciting promise, then faded, but the other 20 came through brilliantly and are now flourishing in our growers' and our own vineyards.

From these twenty great varieties come twenty famous grapes from which we are producing not just fine Canadian wines, but excellent universal wines. These are wines that compare in quality, bouquet, body, in taste and in value with the great majority of wines produced anywhere in the world.

Wines like these:

President Champagne — Canada's prize Champagne
President Burgundy — A great dry red table wine.
President Sauterne — A delicate light white wine
President Sherry — Ideal before lunch or dinner
President Extra Dry — A dry white wine of quality
President Port — A distinguished dessert wine

Pickups Paved Way

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Reinforcements from other Pacific Coast Junior A lacrosse league teams played the major role in Richmond Roadrunners' victory in the Canadian Junior lacrosse finals for the Minto Cup.

Walt Weaver of New Westminster Junior Salmonbellies was Richmond's big gun Thursday night, scoring six goals as the Roadrunners defeated Peterborough PCOs 12-11 in overtime to take the best-of-seven series four games to three.

Three of his goals came in the Richmond rally that forced overtime play and two more were in the overtime period. Weaver was the top scorer in western junior lacrosse this year.

"The pickups beat us," Peterborough coach Ben Floyd said. "They seem would have won without that goalie and that guy who scored six goals."

Bob Tasker, one of three brothers in the Richmond lineup, scored four goals, including the final one in overtime into an open net. Brothers Brian and Dave had one each, with Dave adding five assists. Bob Holmes got the other Roadrunner goal.

For the PCOs, John Grant scored four times and Terry Hughes twice. Bob Wasson, Steve Flarkett, Jim Wasson, Johnston and Peter Guerin got the other Peterborough goals.

Thursday's attendance of 4,700 set a record for a junior lacrosse game in the West and boosted the total to 24,482 —a record for Minto Cup play.

The Richmond club had started the series with two wins, then Peterborough evened it in the next two games. Richmond took the fifth game but Peterborough grabbed number six 13-11 to force Thursday's deciding contest.

Richmond goaltender Dave Gernacy, picked up from Burnaby, was named most valuable player of the series. Thursday he stopped 41 shots with the most important one coming in the last minute of overtime as he kept out a tough drive from Peterborough's Jim Johnston.

It was the second Minto Cup series for Gernacy, who was with Burnaby when they lost in the East last year. The cup had been held by eastern teams since 1962.

Richmond coach Ron Philips said:

"Gernacy was absolutely fantastic in the first period when we needed him. He certainly made the difference."

Theismann Gets Chance To Run Argos All Alone

TORONTO (CP) — Head coach Leo Cahill of the Toronto Argonauts has given freshman quarterback Joe Theismann the assignment of leading the club all by himself when they meet Calgary Stampeders in a Canadian Football League game here Saturday night.

Cahill was forced to junk his two-quarterback system because Greg Barton is out with a broken finger.

The Argos, leading the Eastern Conference with a 7-2 won-loss record, were in a relaxed mood when they met their fans at a Playback Club meeting.

What happens if Theismann is injured?

Cahill explained the club would go with Dick Thornton, who started the season as a flanker before moving to the defensive backfield.

"We have every confidence in Tricky Dicky as our backup quarterback," he said. "We just hope to hell we don't have to use him."

Why doesn't Zenon Andrusyshyn run downfield under his punts, another fan asked.

"That's a good question," the coach replied. "I asked him the same thing during the Ottawa game and he told me he had kicked the ball 70 yards.

"I told him, 'well, if you did, it sure was beginner's luck.' From now on, I assure you, he will run down under his punts."

Thornton, who intercepted three passes against Ottawa, said Barton asked him "how come you don't catch my passes like that?"

"I just told him if he'd throw the ball into my hands like the Ottawa quarterback, then I would."

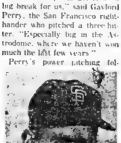
Giants Have Week to Hold Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With just a week to go in the three-way National League West Division race, it appears Los Angeles Dodgers need more than a giant effort to catch San Francisco Giants.

"I don't think Los Angeles can overcome their lead," said Houston manager Harry Walker after the Giants knocked off his Astros 2-1 Thursday night and took a reasonably comfortable three game lead.



In the other NL games, Pittsburgh Pirates bounced St. Louis Cardinals 5-0; New York Mets beat Chicago Cubs 5-4 and Philadelphia Phillies tripped Montreal Expos 6-4.

Chicago White Sox white washed California Angels 3-0 and Oakland Athletics topped Milwaukee Brewers 5-4 in the only American League games.

The Giants and the Dodgers each have six games left and five combinations of four San Francisco victories or Los Angeles defeats will hand the Giants their first title since 1962, when they won the National League pennant.

"This victory has got to be a big break for us," said Gaylord Perry, the San Francisco right-hander who pitched a three-hitter. "Especially big in the Astrodome, where we haven't won much the lift few years."

Perry's power pitching fol-

GAYLORD PERRY

lowed a superlative performance by Juan Marichal who spun a six-hit, one-run job Wednesday night.

"Those two runs are the ones," said manager Charlie Fox of the Giants. "Pitching is the name of the game."

Previously the Giants had won only five of 30 games at Houston before winning two of their three game set.

The two dramatic victories also composed San Francisco's longest winning streak since early September before the Giants started a slide that cost them most of a once commanding 8½ game lead over the Dodgers.

Things are just going the Giants' way now. Gaylord Perry, Things went their way right away Thursday night when, sitting injured Willie McCovey smashed his 18th home run in the fourth inning to give the Giants a 1-0 lead. They scored the winning run when McCovey was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded, forcing in a fifth inning tally.

The Giants now move to Cincinnati for a three game set starting tonight and finish up the regular season with a three game series at San Diego. The Dodgers take on Atlanta today, Saturday and Sunday and wind up with a three game series at home with Houston.

Keeling Going on Injury List

TORONTO (CP) — Jerry Keeling, No. 1 quarterback of Calgary Sampeders, will be placed on the 30-day injury list, Rogers Lehew, general manager of the Western Football Conference club, said Thursday.

Lehew said Keeling suffered "a slight separation of the right shoulder" in Calgary's 26-11 loss to Montreal Alouettes Wednesday.

"We'll probably put him on the injury list Friday or Saturday," Lehew said in an interview Thursday.

"We know Keeling will probably be out for two or three weeks—maybe four—so we don't want to take any chances," Lehew said. "Jim Lindsey will be our No. 1 quarterback Saturday when we play here (against the Argonauts). If he's injured, we'll go with (Bill) Van Burkleo."

When asked whether the Stampeders plan to shop around for a replacement for Keeling, Lehew said there is "nothing we can do now to help us for Saturday."

"What we do after that depends on, what happens in the rest of the league," he added.

Gotta Ponders Pivot Change

OTTAWA (CP) — Coach Jack Gotta of Ottawa Rough Riders said Thursday he will decide by noon today whether to make a quarterback change.

Paul Brothers, former British Columbia Lion, ends his five-day trial with the Eastern Football Conference club today. Gotta must decide to cut him or make room for him by releasing either Gary Wood or Rick Castaia, the two quarterbacks now with the team.

Gotta, discussing the situation on a television program, said he was impressed by the work of Brothers during his trial.

"But he was no Moses with

Ticats Get Rights to Baker

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes announced Thursday that they have given up the rights to defensive end John Baker to Hamilton Tiger-Cats for "future considerations."

Baker left the Eastern Football Conference club two seasons ago and played with New York Giants of the National Football League.

He had been here on a five-day trial after being cut by the Giants.

A Montreal club spokesman said Baker will report to the Ticats immediately.

British Columbia," he said.

The Rider coach said Ottawa must win against Hamilton, 7-3-per-Cats Sunday. They now are in last place two points behind Ticats.

Aside from a possible quarterback change, the Riders will have the same offensive backfield series from Dennis Duncan at fullback with Terry Wellesley and Terry Swom as the halves. Rider end Terry Cole, a former Baltimore Colt and Pittsburgh Steeler fullback, Thursday.

They are looking at another NFL cut—back Dickie Lyons from New Orleans Saints. But even if they decide to keep him, he won't play Sunday.

Racing Lady Not Showing Age

At the advanced age of 12 many of the harness racing "ladies" begin to show their age. But such isn't the case with Gerry Wallis's Roya K Abbey.

The Bay mare has been stepping pretty lively this season recording five wins, two seconds and three placings on Belleville and Kingston tracks this season.

Included in the win total was a personal best time of 2:09.1 stepped off at Fraternity Downs earlier this month. Walsh will be hoping that his mare continues to age gracefully Saturday when she runs in the ninth heat of the Quinte Exhibition Raceway's Fair grounds card.

NHL Veterans Take Training Camp Easy

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League exhibition schedule may be a tough grind for rookies trying to impress their coaches, but the established veterans tend to be relaxed.

Take, for example, all-star netminder Tony Esposito who dozed on the Chicago Black Hawks bench during the first 30 minutes of Wednesday night's game against Toronto Maple Leafs while Gary Smith guarded the Hawk nets.

Or take 31-year old Bobby Hull who found time to joke with team-mates and reporters about his age in the dressing room after the game.

Dennis Hull started the fun when he mentioned a recent magazine article which referred to brother Bobby as "the aging Bobby Hull."

"First I'm the balding Bobby Hull," said the Golden Jet who is fast losing his "Golden".

"Now I'm the aging Bobby Hull. The next thing will be the decrepit Bobby Hull, I suppose. After that, I should be eligible for the comeback of the year."

Besides age and his receding blonde hair, Hull faces the fact that many of the spotlights he once held now have switched to other stars such as Boston Bruins centre Phil Esposito and Bobby Orr, Bruins' all-star defenceman.

Hull was the first to beat Rocket Richard's record of 50 NHL goals in one season, but the Chicago left-winger's 58 goal mark set in 1968-69 lasted only two years before Esposito, a former linemate at Chicago, scored 76 for the Bruins.

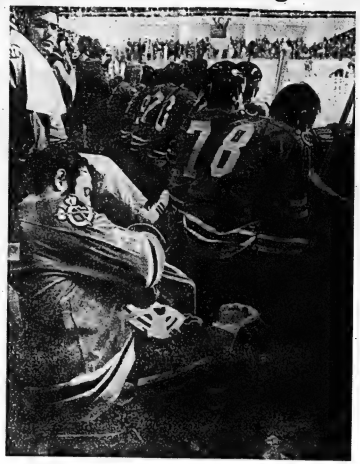
"He might do it again," said Hull, suggesting he holds no resentment for the stars who have grabbed his spotlights.

"Espo is quite a hockey player. When he played on the line with me and Chico (Maki) it really was fun. Any time Espo is on the ice now, Bobby Orr usually is there, too. It doesn't hurt a forward to have a guy like Orr passing him the puck."

As for the Bruin defenceman, Hull said Orr "already is doing things that I couldn't do."

Being a defenceman gives Orr "one advantage that I didn't have."

"I mean that extra 60 or 70 feet in which to manoeuvre. Any time I got the puck, somebody was taking a run at me before I'd gone 10 feet."



Hull believes it would be folly for a player to hope that no others would ever outshine him.

"In this game nobody stands still. The worst mistake a player could make would be to figure his own records will last forever. It doesn't happen that way. When a young player like Orr comes along, everybody benefits because the sport benefits."

Despite all this talk of aging, Hawk coach Billy Reay says:

"Hull is as good as he ever was. There is nothing the guy can't do."

Who's Excited?

Chicago Black Hawks' Tony Esposito really knows how to relax as he watches the bench during Wednesday night's Leaf-Hawk exhibition match in Toronto. However, the goaltender came to life and held the Leafs to a 4-4 tie in the last half of the game. (CP Wirephoto)

Hab Win Over Hawks Nothing Like Cup Final

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens whipped Chicago Black Hawks 10-2 Thursday night in a National Hockey League exhibition game at Halifax, the first meeting of the two teams since last spring's Stanley Cup final.

Canadiens won the cup in a close series that required the maximum seven games. But it was a walkaway Thursday as the Canadiens scored five goals in the first 11 minutes of play and led 6-1 after the first period.

In other pre-season games, Detroit Red Wings handed Boston Bruins their fourth straight exhibition defeat, 6-3, at Hamilton, Ont., and St. Louis Blues downed California Golden Seals 4-1 at Sudbury, Ont.

Line-mates Frank Mahovlich and Guy Lafleur paced Montreal. Left winger Mahovlich counted three goals while Lafleur, the Canadiens' highly-touted centre, had two goals and a pair of assists.

Claude Larose, Phil Roberts, Guy Lapointe, Peter Mahovlich and Jacques Lemaire were the other Montreal scorers.

Rookie defenceman Darryl Maggs and Jim Pappin were the only Hawks to beat Montreal goaltender Rogatien Vachon, who handled 27 shots.

Montreal fired 38 shots at Hawk netminders Tony Esposito and Gilles Meloche, who took over after the first period.

It was the third consecutive victory for the Canadiens', who defeated Boston in their two other pre-season starts.

Wayne Cashman, Ivan Boldirev and Johnny Bucyk tallied for the Bruins.

The Bruin goals were the first scored against Detroit in its two matches. Wings last scoring of the blueline when Vad Nesterenko led place-finishers in the NHL East Division said our St. Louis defenceman Carol Vadnais was selected to the Third Division teams while Philadelphia Flyers and Pittsburgh Penguins, both with three wins and a tie in four starts, are the best in the West.

period for becoming the third player involved in a fight. The combatants, Barclay Plager of the Blues and Seals' Ted Hampson, got into it after Hampson grabbed Mickenheat from behind.

Detroit and Montreal have the best exhibition records of East two matches in the little finger of his right hand.

In other NHL developments, Buffalo Sabres announced that veteran centre Phil Goyette will be out of action for an indefinite period with a broken knuckle in

Tough Battle Seen In UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United States faces the prospect of another battle today in the psychological warfare revolving around the seating of Peking in the United Nations.

The fight could come in the 130-country General Assembly when Albania and its allies attempt to oust the United States' two-China proposals situck from the assembly's agenda.

The two American proposals were put on the agenda by the assembly's 22-country steering committee Wednesday night. The committee gave only a two vote majority to the resolution to include the U.S. item. But it gave a substantial majority to the inscription of the Albanian item calling for the substitution of China for Taiwan in the UN.

The committee also gave the Albanian item priority over the Americans on the agenda, a gesture that had little meaning since both items will be taken up by the assembly next month.

But in an organization where nobody's prestige could mean tomorrow's votes, the committee action was a blow to the American cause.

Meanwhile, some observers are saying the U.S. may have made a strategic error in allowing itself to be drawn into an unnecessary fight in the steering committee.

They said the U.S. had no need to seek inscription of a separate item on the agenda. It could promote its two-China proposals during the debate on the Albanian resolution, or the action of the steering committee now has forced it to do.

In office seems it had nothing to gain by fighting the Albanians in the committee and considerable prestige to lose.

Observers said that the reason for the U.S. action must have been to show sympathizers of Nationalist China at home that the Nixon administration is trying its best to preserve a seat for Taiwan in the UN.

Since President Nixon announced the new China policy of the U.S. and added that he will visit Peking, there have been recurring rumors that he plans to dump Taiwan.

Meanwhile, Britain has maintained a modified China policy. It said here this week that it will oppose any resolutions that will impede the seating of China.

Removed of its diplomatic language that means it will support the Albanian resolution, as it has in the past, and oppose any American efforts to make any China proposal an important question requiring a two-thirds majority for passage.

The position is similar to Canada's.

Reaction to IMF Plan

U.S. Dollar Continues to Slip

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar slipped further on Europe's money markets today, apparently still reacting to a report that the International Monetary Fund is planning to push for a raise in the values of other leading currencies.

In Frankfurt, the dollar slipped at one stage to a second low and would buy only 3.2975 German marks against the official parity of 3.6600.

Then the dollar picked up slightly To lower around 3.3050, putting the value of the mark up 10.74 per cent against the dollar since President Nixon announced Aug. 15 his emergency measures to boost the U. economy.

In Paris, the dollar dipped to 5.345 francs from Thursday's 5.355. That represented a f4noe revaluation of 3.91 per cent.

In London, it cost $2.4830 to buy one pound. The new level was the highest for the pound since the British devaluation of November, 1967, when the official parity was fixed at $2.40.

The price represented an increase of roughly 3.5 per cent in the pound's value against the dollar.

The report Thursday by the Japanese Kyodo news agency that IMF would seek the revisations set off a wave of activity on currency exchanges.

Nixon Will Soon Pick Two Supreme Court Conservatives

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon will move as quickly as possible to pick two new members of the U.S. Supreme Court who will reflect his conservative views.

The president is faced with the task of filling the seats of Justice John Harlan, 72, who resigned Thursday, and Justice Hugo Black, 85, who resigned last Friday.

Both men cited ill health as the reason for leaving the high court and both are in hospitals. Harlan with a cancerous condition of the spine and Black suffering from the effects of a stroke.

Announcing Harlan's resignation, White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler said the president would move with deliberation in seeking two new appointees to the nine member court that dit be painted to act as quickly as possible.

The president said Thursday night he would consider a woman for the Supreme Court.

He told the Detroit Economic Club during a question and answer session he would consider people from all walks of life for the two vacancies—but he jokingly turned aside a suggestion that he might appoint Martha Mitchell, controversial wife of Attorney-General John Mitchell.

Two Nixon appointees already are on the court—Chief Justice Warren Burger and Associate Justice Harry Blackmun, known as "the Minnesota twins" because of their origin and lifelong friendship.

Justice Black was considered an unswerving liberal and Justice Harlan a conservative. Thus Nixon is expected to gain an additional conservative on the court, making its composition four conservatives, three liberals and two considered middle-of-the-road but tending more towards the conservative side.

Prisoners Can Grow Long Hair

OTTAWA (CP) — About the only busy barbers in recent years have been those in federal prisons, where hair must be trimmed to a standard 1½ inches on top and one-half inch on the sides.

Solicitor-General Jean Pierre Goyer ended all that Thursday, announcing that prisoners henceforth may "conform more to the norms existing in the community".

"In a further effort to make the inmates' return to society an easier transition, the men may, during the 20 days prior to their release, have their hair, mustache or beard cut to whatever length they prefer," Mr. Goyer said.

Court Reserves Its Rulings On Two Breathalyzer Appeals

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal reserved judgment Thursday on appeals by the Crown against two recent decisions involving Canada's breath analysis law.

One appeal involves the August decision of Mr. Justice Patrick Galligan of the Supreme Court's trial division, quashed the conviction, ruling that as soon as the police refused to allow Mr. Brownridge to consult his lawyer, the Canadian Bill of Rights was violated.

Crown counsel Harris Manning submitted Thursday that Mr. Justice Galligan was wrong in holding that Mr. Duke had been denied the right to full answer and defence because he had not been given a breath sample.

Mr. Manning said that full answer and defence is given to the trial, not to the collection of evidence. Norman Chalmers, representing the attorney-general of Canada, Justice Minister John Turner, supported Mr. Manning's position.

Harvey Duiter, counsel for Mr. Duke, said the infallibility of the breath analysis machine was at issue, and that no trial on the issue can be held unless Mr. Duke is given a breath sample.

In Mr. Brownridge's case, Mr. Justice Arthur Jessup of the Court of Appeal said Mr. Brownridge was not denied the right to retain and instruct counsel. He did so eventually.

"The question is, how quickly," Mr. Justice Jessup said.

Mr. Justice J. B. Aylesworth said: "Surely the Bill of Rights isn't to be interpreted as meaning that the investigation must be dropped, and held until the man gets his lawyer."

Mr. Justice F. G. MacKay said—"There could be no detriment to the man. His lawyer would have to advise him that he'd have to take the test."

Mr. Justice MacKay said remarks made by Mr. Justice Haines about the coercive and hostile atmosphere in which Mr. Brownridge found himself after being arrested were completely uncalled for.

Mr. Justice Aylesworth said there was no evidence that the police had been hostile to Mr. Brownridge.

"It seems to me that the respondent (Mr. Brownridge) told the newspapers he was treated with every respect by the police," Mr. Justice Aylesworth said.

Ontario Pollution Controls Get Their First Test Soon

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's new Environmental Protection Act, designed to hit hard at the polluter's pocketbook, is to get its first test soon.

Officials say two cases are about ready to go before the courts, both for violations of smoke density regulations.

Under the act, the offenders could be fined up to $5,000 each and, if their violations continue, further fines could cost them $10,000 a day.

But anti-pollution officials are not optimistic. They say the old laws were almost as tough but did not work well because the courts were not as severe as they might have been.

For example, they say, under the old Air Pollution Control Act, a first conviction could have brought a $5,000 fine and a second conviction $10,000. But the courts fined the 16 industries charged under that act this year an average of $500.

In the 14 cases tried this year under sections of the Ontario Water Resources Commission Act, which also carried $5,000 and $10,000 maximum fines, the average fine was $400.

The new law came into effect Aug. 11, replacing the Air Pollution Act of 1967, some sections of the OWRC Act and the Waste Management Act of 1970.

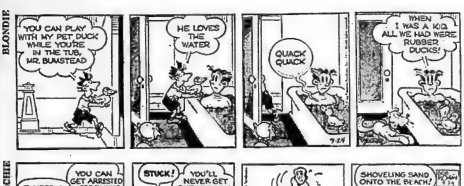
"The problem in prosecutions is convincing judges that alleged offences are in fact invalid," says Environment Minister George Kerr, who believes fines have been too low.

"Some judges are reluctant to convict unless there is substantial corroborative evidence. In cases of low fines, the government gets the blame. We have, in fact, had to appeal some fines."

However, Mr. Kerr says companies don't like being taken to court because it affects their public image.

"Even a $1 fine with their name in the paper is quite upsetting to them," he says. "It says they're completely oblivious to public concern."

Peter Middleton, executive director of Pollution Probe, says fines allowed under the new legislation are meaningless unless the courts are convinced of the necessity to impose the maximum penalties.



"The whole legal system is set up to favor corporations," he says. "At present, the onus is on the citizen to prove that the polluter is polluting when it should be up to the company to prove that it is not polluting."

To which Mr. Kerr replies:

"You can't just use people and have them go to court when you know their defence is going to be: 'We can't do anything about it because the technology to eliminate the problem is just not available.'

"We have to make sure we do things on a sound basis, that when we go to court and charge somebody we can say, 'If that plant did such and such a thing there would not have been that degree of odor'."

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Do you have an hiatal hernia? Ulcer? Gallbladder trouble? Nervousness? Heart disease? Cancer? Are you afraid you will keep seeing your doctor at intervals for many months or years in hope of feeling better?

However, when people have chronic skin disease, it is not unusual to hear me-as-soon-aged too surly and say: "What is the use of a dead" Dr. doctor has tried everything. Nothing seems to help. Why take up his time and spend my money.

This is especially true when patients suffer from ob-stinate psoriasis. After they have tried a few doctors and courses of treatments, discouragement sets in. This is a normal human reaction.

I have often said here that there is no specific cure for psoriasis. But I have never intimated that it cannot be helped with treatment by a competent, efficient skin specialist or family doctor.

I believe that psoriasis patients, especially should not say, "I will never see any doctor for this again." Possibly thousands of such sufferers may be refusing adequate help. Here is an example which seems to prove my promise:

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: This letter is prompted by the one in your column by Miss X who has been plagued by psoriasis to the point where it is ruining her life. I hope my experience will bring her a happy ending.

I have had psoriasis for more than 25 years and have gone to at least 10 doctors, none of whom gave me any definite hope that it could be cured. My skin was so bad that I dreaded going to a beauty parlor. My elbows were a mass of scales halfway down to my wrists. I wore long dresses to cover my knees.

It all had a most demoralizing effect on me. I had given up the thought of ever getting any relief and turned a deaf ear to anyone who suggested a possible cure. I stopped going to doctors.

However, a friend told me about a mutual acquaintance whose case was even worse than mine. She had been helped and the improvement lasted over two years. It was no fly-by-night deal.

At last I consulted her dermatologist and the improvement was almost immediate. Now I see him about once a month. I merely have an occasional scale here and there.

All I can say is that I hope that this doctor outlives me. I know it is a lifelong treatment, but it is a small payment to make for benefit received. I urge Miss X and other like her not to give up. Somewhere, sometime, they will find a doctor who will at least help, if not cure.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 61 and my last blood pressure reading was 140-88. Isn't that still high? My doctor said he does not have to check it again for six months. — Mr. W.

COMMENT: Your pressure is within normal limits. Be thankful for your reprieve from sitting in the waiting room reading those magazines for house wives while you're held up by an emergency call.

* * *

For Mr. X: Loss of memory at the age of 88 is not unusual. I know of no special hormone that will be helpful in restoring the efficiency of the brain circulation, so that good memory returns. It all depends on how well the arteries function. I have seen some 80 year-olds with fine cerebral arteries than those who are in their 60s and 70s.

Skin Diseases Require Attention

Sydney J. Harris Says

No Merit in Parenthood

If we are going to cut down seriously on our population growth — and I think it is an absolute necessity — then we will first have to change our simple-minded attitude toward the parents of large families.

Most people who meet me for the first time ask about my family, and when they find I have five children they emit little murmurs of admiration and respect, as if I had done something notable.

Now I am pleased and proud to have these children, but there was nothing especially meritorious about their conception. Their existence does not testify to my virility, or even to any exceptional fertility, and certainly is no evidence that I am suited for parenthood.

Anybody with the normal equipment can have children; it is no great achievement. Indeed, in most cases it happens during a fit of absent-mindedness. No child should ever be called a "mistake," but some are certainly miscalculations.

Parents with four children are not twice as good or twice as loving or twice as intelligent as parents with only two children. True, they have more experience but as Bismarck said of his donkey, "He has been through nine campaigns with me, and knows no more than he did after the first."

Apart from our population problem, I am convinced that an immense number of people who have children should not have them, and do not particularly want them, except as "symbols" of family life.

What they want are ideal children, not real ones; and as soon as the real ones show no intention of confirming to the ideal in the parent's mind, they are treated as burdens, shipped away to school, or otherwise neglected.

Somebody once said that if many people had not read about romantic love and seen it on the screen, they would never look for it themselves. I believe this, and along with it I believe that if many people were not ashamed to be thought deficient in "family feeling" they would never have children.

Nor have I noticed that the parents of large families exhibit any more proficiency in bringing them up, except in terms of establishing a barracks-room regimen which is necessary for simple survival. Some studies have indicated, in fact, that children coming from large families suffer from a lack of individualized personality and lack a sense of individual identity.

At any rate, we have to begin to recognize that it is the quality of parenthood that is more essential than the quantity. Rousseau, be it remembered wrote a masterly book on education — and then sent his five children to a foundling home. He was more honest than most.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For September 23

Your birthday today: The rough half of this year promises expansion, perhaps too much of a good thing taken on too rapidly. This is followed by a delicate accounting period in which your entire program has to stand or fail on its merits. Today's natives generally are forthright, well-intentioned, often misunderstood.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Take unto yourself burdens and chafing rather than putting them over onto those who don't deserve harassment.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): First impressions are mixed. Let people sort themselves out and settle their differences, then learn and cope with the result.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Most people indicate contrary views, or tease. Your serenity and lack of drastic reaction makes the difference today.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Personal progress is made during the morning; takes the larger tasks first, preferring unfinished business to new problems.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Promises are free, far too easy to make, quite unnecessary to redeem. There's pressure for an early completion time on an unrealistic project.

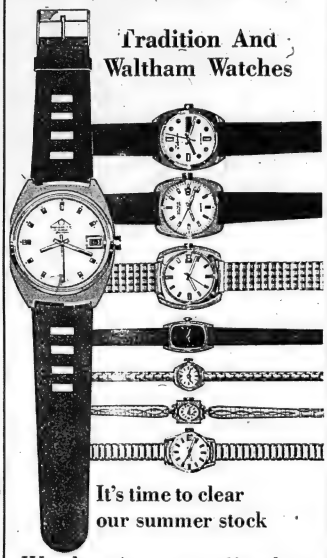
VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Careful attention, good listening and good observation making no sense at first but in time settling to quite useful confidential knowledge.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Stall if you must; this is not yet the moment to spring your plans. Meanwhile clear up neglected chores and projects.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Apparent opposition is mainly a testing effort to make sure of your real intentions. Consolidate your schedule.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Now is the time to call in qualified experts, get extra help and advice. You have put off certain moves too long.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): If you've kept your ducks in a row, so to speak, your career affairs should bring rewarding and dramatic view.



AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Seek tranquility in meditation. Work on what you must in an orderly manner, allowing neither haste nor sloth, and get as much of the job done as possible.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Doddling duties and family encumbrances does not work out now. Ask for help from selected individuals and proceed.

Commando Bank Raid Ends In Wild Shootout

U.S.$ Back Lash Mounts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pressure on the United States to devalue the dollar mounted today as the finance ministers and central bankers of 118 nations gathered in Washington for next week's annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank.

The fund's managing director, Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, scheduled a news conference at which he is expected to assert his view that the U.S. should devalue directly—that is, by raising the official gold price from its $35-an-ounce level.

President Nixon's actions of Aug. 15 were designed to produce much the same result with less embarrassment to his administration.

By suspending the U.S. promise to pay out gold to any government presenting dollars for exchange, he hoped to force other countries to revalue their currencies upward.

That would have an effect comparable to the Schweitzer plan. It would make U.S. goods more competitive in price in world markets, and would help eliminate the huge U.S. deficit in balance of payments.

But in Japan, Britain and the European Common Market — where emergency meetings have been held almost continuously since the Nixon bombshell — strong resentment has built up against Nixon's tactics. Especially fierce criticism has been aimed at the 10 per cent supplementary duty and import switch. Nixon has said, will be removed only when other governments revalue their currencies upwards satisfactorily.

No one has taken a survey, but 18-month-old Sonem Matho is probably the youngest pupil in the Hastings county school system. With her parents she attends classes in Queen Elizabeth School for the Tibetan refugees brought here by the federal government.

Ransom Paid, Not Collected

HULL, Que. (CP) — Police confirmed early today that 10 year old Gilles Leblanc was kidnapped Thursday and a ransom demand made for $3,000.

Inspector Jacques Charron said the father, a supermarket manager, received three calls from the kidnapper Thursday. He was told Gilles would be killed if police were notified. Further calls instructed the father to drop $3,000 in $20 bills in Ottawa.

But the kidnapper didn't show up at the stated spot Thursday night.

Inspector Charron dismissed as unsubstantiated reports that the kidnapper may be a mentally disturbed person.

BELFAST (AP) — The Grand Central Hotel, the second largest in the capital, attempted Friday to re-open permanently because of the crisis in Northern Ireland has razed buildings. The 170 room hotel has been running with an average of only 12 guests, a spokesman said.

Posse Pursuit Wounds Robber

MASCOUCHE, Que. (CP) — A robbery which began like a commando raid and ended like a wild-west shootout in this small town 20 miles north of Montreal left one man in serious condition and a local credit union minus $3,000.

One man of a group which included two women was seriously wounded in a gun battle and chase which followed the robbery.

Provincial police Friday night were still trying to reconstruct events of the robbery and the chase that followed it.

They said the robbers drove into town about 2:30 a.m. and split into two groups of two men and a woman each. One of the groups went to the police station, pounded on the door and, with a shotgun at the police's head, forced the officer on duty to open the door.

There they also cut phone wires outside the building to prevent calls for help being sent and forced the two employees to open the safe.

While this was going on, the second group of two men and a woman, who had accompanied the holdup group outside of the caisse, lay in wait for other employees.

The robbers escaped first on foot, possibly using a third car, and then in a police car which they had taken from the police station.

Some of the bandits were armed with submachine guns and others with shotguns.

The citizens followed the fleeing holdup men in their own cars and some returned what they said were about 50 shots fired at them by the bandits. The citizens' shots apparently shattered the rear windows of the bandits' cars.

The bandits finally eluded the posse on winding country roads but a wounded man was later found in Laval, a Montreal suburb, slumped in a car and bleeding from the head. He was in serious condition in hospital Friday night.

The car in which the wounded man was found contained a briefcase with part of the stolen money, police said. They also discovered two sawed-off shotguns and several revolvers in the vehicle.

Slow Growth Metro Plea

TORONTO (CP) — The mayors of Metropolitan Toronto's six suburban municipalities say they want the area's population growth slowed to about 200,000 persons over the next 25 years.

Albert Campbell, chairman of Metropolitan Toronto council, in a report prepared for Metro council, Mr. Campbell says the stimulation of growth in the suburban fringe of Metro has to be checked as the most direct and immediate measure which can reverse the population pressure on Metro Toronto.

Near 400 Inmates To Study

OTTAWA (CP) — A contract between the federal penitentiaries service and St. Lawrence Community College, Kingston, will enable up to 400 prisoners at Collins Bay Penitentiary to continue their education during the next year.

Solicitor General Jean Pierre Goyer said Friday in a news release that a $110,000 contract with St. Lawrence Community College will enable prisoners to take courses ranging from primary to post-secondary.

The courses may be continued after release. A problem with educational programs in prisons has been that sometimes study is interrupted by the prisoner's release.

Mr. Goyer said one benefit of taking such courses is that the certificates are recognized outside the prison, and there is no suggestion that the courses were taken while the student was a prisoner.

Technicians' Initiation

The new class of laboratory technicians underwent initiation at Belleville's four corners yesterday afternoon, with among other things, a leap-frogging progress around the Front and Bridge Street intersection. Nick Doornios, Vianne Bowerman and Joyce Christie, all of Belleville, are among the 13 students in this year's class at Belleville General Hospital.

Canvassers Clash With Landlords

TORONTO (CP) — New provincial legislation puts political canvassers above magazine salesmen and other door-to-door solicitors—but not, apparently, in the eyes of some Toronto apartment superintendents.

Several party workers have had difficulty this week getting past building superintendents.

Political canvassers are guaranteed the right to enter apartment buildings by the 1970 Ontario Landlord and Tenant Act.

A policeman had to be called to one building this week to explain the new provisions of the act. The superintendent's wife refused shown one canvasser to the door.

The superintendent was told that unless he allowed legitimate political canvassers into his building, he could be fined $1,000.

Despite the law, the man refused to permit canvassing.

"Law or no law, we take orders from the owner," he said.

Spy Ring Affronts British Sense Of Fair Play

By KEVIN DOYLE

LONDON (CP) — The discovery of a large Soviet spy ring here appears to have affronted the British sense of fair play.

An officer of the Soviet secret police blew the whistle on the huge espionage network after defecting in Britain earlier this month. The discovery and defection were announced Friday.

The officer, so far unidentified, told authorities here that at least 105 Russian officials in London, most of them associated with the Soviet embassy, have been active as undercover agents.

"Spying is an acknowledged part of international relations," said an exasperated official on the British foreign ministry.

"But it's going too far when countries start using their diplomatic people for this sort of thing."

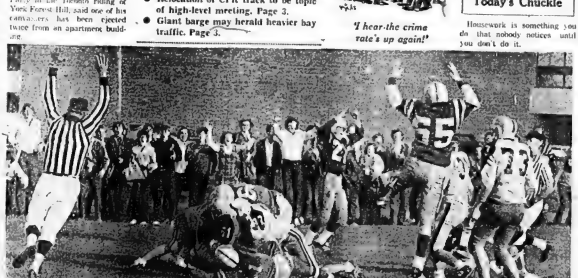
Britain has formally ordered 90 of those named by the defector to leave the country within two weeks. Fifteen others, now abroad, will not be allowed re-entry.

Officials describing the expulsion as the most drastic move by Britain since the Second World War, said Friday they expect Russia to take reprisal measures but most seemed uncertain what forms these will take.

British intelligence officials contended they had been aware of the spy network for some time but did not take action because of a lack of evidence and hope that an international incident could be avoided.

The defector is reported to have brought with him many valuable documents, recalling the 1945 incident when Soviet cipher clerk Igor Gouzenko defected in Ottawa, bringing a suitcase of important papers which exposed an international espionage operation.

British officials said they were forced to take drastic action to break the spy network after Soviet officials ignored two official protests recently from Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home.



British intelligence sources say they have known for some time the large Soviet embassy staff of 530 were "up to something more than normal activity."

The foreign office called in Charge d'Affaires Ivan Ippolotov Friday to lodge an official stiff protest and a firm warning that spying must stop.

The discovery of spies in Britain since the war has become so common, observers say, that the most recent incident is unlikely to attract much public interest.

But commentators added that disclosures by the defector that the latest spying attempts were "for the purpose of sabotage" adds a new dimension to the espionage pattern.

Officials said they do not expect the expulsions will cause any substantial damage to U.K.-Soviet relations. Sir Alec is expected to visit Russia later this year.

Bob Had Them Up in the Air

Beneath that pile of high school football players lies Bob Vanderwater, the hero of Friday's Bay of Quinte western conference game between Centennial and Trenton. The Centennials back plunged into the Trenton end zone for the game's only touchdown with 15 seconds to play. The converted major gave the Chargers a 7-1 win, their first-ever against Trenton senior opposition. Story on page 11.

Drug Survey Reveals Pattern Of Use

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

To plot a pattern of the drug use in the city of Belleville, including incidence of use, reasons for use, and the physical and mental effects of these drugs on the user was the prime objective of a survey conducted over the summer by 12 area youths.

Sponsored through the federal Opportunities for Youth Program, survey teams canvassed over 2,000 Belleville residents, between the ages of 12 and 21 to gather the needed information.

"We felt that it was important that a survey of this kind be conducted so that its findings could serve as an incentive to other larger organizations to conduct a similar, more in-depth survey," said one youthful member of the team.

Across the board for the 12-year-olds, 10.2 per cent used tobacco at least once in the past three months, 14.3 alcohol, 1.4 marijuana, 7 used glue, while none used any forms of barbiturate.

Under similar testing conditions for the 21 year-old, 68.9 per cent used tobacco, 11.6 used alcohol, 22.4 used marijuana or hashish, none used glue and 5.4 used barbiturates (either abusively or for medical reasons).

Included in these statistics were 6.7 per cent of 21-year-olds who used stimulants of some type, the same percentage used tranquilizers, 2.7 per cent used opiates, 8.1 per cent used LSD and 10.8 per cent used other hallucinogens.

"It should be mentioned," said one member of the team that, "in many cases, the user used the specific drug once or twice on an experimental basis."

The survey includes in its findings that there "is a sharp increase in the use of drugs between the ages of 12 to 16".

The survey also concludes "the use of drugs is much more prevalent in males than in females."

Out of the people interviewed, 9.3 per cent used marijuana at least once a week and this usage went hand-in-hand with the usage of tobacco and alcohol. The report states that "these figures seem to show that these three drug types are the most socially acceptable among the 12-to-21 set."

"The questionnaire was set into three specific areas and each area went after a separate, well-defined area of information," said a spokesman for the group.

The first and most intensive of the three sections was designed to determine the most commonly available drugs in the city. How these drugs are acquired and used.

The second portion dealt with the environment of the person being interviewed. Questions on relationship with parents, income, free time and other personal matters were involved in this section.

The last of the three sections called for opinion of the drug situation. How do you feel about the legalities of drug use? How do you feel ?about the person in court for the first time on charges of possession of marijuana?

While few of the youths involved in the interviewing had practical experience, members of the team felt "it is better to have young people conducting a survey of this kind." Other young people will find it easier or talk to us about their personal experiences with drugs."

The interviewers worked in teams of two so that in the event friends were involved as interviewer and person interviewed, the other member of the team would take over the questioning.

"This is a safeguard to keep the responss as efactual as possible," said one spokesman.

Out of the total number of people interviewed, 42.5 per cent claimed they had suffered ill effects from the use of tobacco, alcohol or drugs. This includes "bang-overs."

"Surprisingly," said one spokesman, "it was the 12 to 15 category who complained it was alcohol for the bad ex perience while the 16 to 21 group complained of LSD causing the most problems.

"We received standard reactions to what drugs are to be considered harmful," said one spokesman. "Most considered alcohol an acceptable drug if not abused. That is if not too much is consumed at once. Cancer of the lungs was the typical reaction to smoking and most felt that marijuana and its derivatives (hash ish) were not harmful."

The report concluded that harmlessness of a drug depends on three factors including the quality of the drug, amount and frequency of use and the mental state of the user.

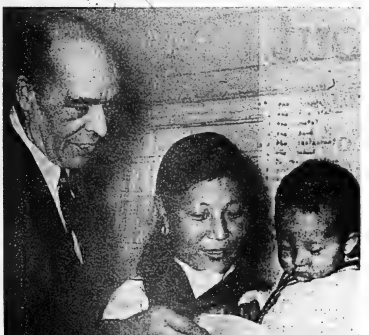
"A stable mind can handle a greater variety of drugs than an unstable one," said one team member.

From the survey, it was also shown that deciding factor in why a person continues using drugs or stops is not because of what he reads in his personal experiences with drug.

Of the total number of males interviewed, 34.3 per cent confirmed their drug taking because of personal experiences and 28.5 per cent from personal suffered through the news media.

For females 22.9 per cent used their own experiences and 33.0 per cent stopped through information gathered from personal sources.

In both sexes, other sources of information and school system displayed a low average age of 8.2 per cent.



"The desire for more information was displayed, shown as a result from this survey," said George Wilson, organizer of the questionnaire in early stages. "Almost 74 per cent of the people felt that drug education displayed by the school system by at least grade seven."

The survey also reports that 82 per cent of the people want a 21 hour drug help centre in the area.

Members of the team offered to make no evaluation of the material gathered but have made all the information available to area doctors, and counsellors in the city.

"It was disgusted," said the spokesman, "to show what the drugs and reactions were like in the summer of 1971."

The paper will be submitted for final evaluation to the federal government in the coming weeks.

Custodians Come Through

The group of Tibetans now living in Belleville will visit some of their countrymen settled southwest of Montreal, thanks to a donation from Local 1022 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees. Through the interest of Clayton Wilson of Queen Elizabeth School, where the Tibetans have been sent a classroom for English instruction, the CUPE local collected $100 and presented it to the group yesterday afternoon. Ed Sherwood, president of the local, handed over the cheque.

Consultants To Be Hired

Totten, Sims Hubsch Associates Ltd. consulting engineers, will be retained by the Belleville Parks Board to prepare plans for a proposed garden and supply centre to be erected on recently acquired park property on the west bank of the Moira north of College Street.

The consultants will prepare drawings and specifications for the parks board garden centre, similar to that being on the property and provide construction supervision.

The plans are for a building of approximately [illegible] square feet to be ready for occupancy by June 1 of next year.

The matter was referred to the parks board meeting of Mr. McGinnis and Mr. Smith on College Street.

Home for Aged Will Have Polling Booth

BOTHA (Staff) — Electors in Sidney township will have a polling booth in the Bayside Nursing Home for the first time in the history of the township when they go to the polls on October 20.

A spokesman for the Progressive Conservative party here said yesterday proposals for a polling booth were made to the last federal election at a meeting held up for that time.

Both parties in this area are in the process of choosing candidates for the October election.

In the last federal election in 1968 Bayside was established as a polling station for the first time, with the result that only a few votes were cast.

The "attorney" can be a member of the person's family, any supervisor qualified person of his choosing.

Before an individual is permitted to vote in this manner he must obtain a doctor's certificate confirming that he is unable to vote personally.

The Prince Edward County Home for the Aged will have a polling booth because it has a sufficient number of real electors to justify this service.

Home Ransacked

COLBORNE (Staff) — A provincial police identification team from Peterborough has been called in today to examine a large old residence here for any traces of fingerprints following a complete ransacking of the premises.

Brighton detachment Ontario Provincial Police has learned of the suspicious image incident, although they say it may have occurred any time since September 15.

CN Fares Increase October 1

Railway passengers travelling between Belleville and Toronto or Belleville and Montreal will have to pay just a little deeper to fly for their fares commencing Oct. 1.

That is when increased passenger fares on Canadian National Railways go into effect.

The increase — as much as 15 per cent — are necessary to meet the cost of higher operating costs, according to company president Norman J. MacMillan of Montreal.

Rail fares between Belleville and Toronto will jump from the present $14.65 to $16.90, while will go from $4.40 to $5 and bring from $4.85 to $5.50 one-way fares from here to Montreal will jump from $7.30 to $8.10 for red, from $8.50 to $9.40 for coach and from $9.20 to $10.10 for first.

Mr. Max Millen said Friday that the new CN fares would still be lower than those on the Canadian Pacific Railway.

A one-way coach fare to Winnipeg from Montreal under the new schedule will be a low of $33 and $47 while it is $40 with CP Rail.

He denied that increased passenger fares are enough to force travellers to choose other means of transportation leaving the railways to the more lucrative freight operations.

"I can only speak for our selves. It's not true in our case."

Robin Russell To Try Again

COBOURG (Staff) — Robin Russell, defeated by Glenn Cole in the contest for the Liberal provincial nomination in Northumberland was chosen this week by Durham riding Liberals to lead them into the October 21 election.

Russell had been party standard bearer for the Lib. in Durham riding in 1967 but failed to muster support from local Liberals to try again in this home riding.

Marching Along Together

Up and down Front Street marched the freshmen of Albert College, yesterday, singing at the top of their lungs and garbed in garbage bags. City police cautioned the students not to be too exhuberant in their singing, and frowned on the practice of lying face-up on the sidewalk and kicking their feet as if riding an imaginary bicycle. About 25 students were involved in the demonstration yesterday afternoon.

Apple Pickers Needed

As we enter the first week of Autumn all those persons concerned with employment and the local economy are endeavouring to discern any trends indicating what the immediate and the winter months hold in store for us. It is realized of course that no community is an island unto itself.

The employment picture locally during past two weeks has reflected a continued labor demand for additional workers, with job vacancies of interest in men some 28 per cent stronger than for our women clients seeking work

Time to Plant

Spring flowering bulbs should go into the ground at least six weeks before freezing, Belleville Horticultural Society members learned at the September meeting.

Murray M. Ostiet from the National Capital Commission in Ottawa discussed bulb planting and cultivation at the gathering at Harry J. Clarke School and showed slides of displays of spring flowers in Ottawa.

No one area of employment dominated this labor demand, although the manufacturing industry as potential employment for a large number of construction workers.

The report issues statistics for the week ending September 17 which are expanded to cover the week Labor Day. Of the total number of persons registered, possessing varied skills the facilities were available to make this year-to-year trend statistical area.

Giant Barge's Trip May Start Traffic

TRENTON (Staff) — A large industry here may lead the way in opening up the Bay of Quinte, if an experiment now being conducted is successful.

Domtar Chemicals has hired the services of a gigantic barge and ocean-going tug to ship a load of 12,000 railway ties out of the largely recessional port of Trenton to Port Cartier, Que.

Long thought to be the answer to utilizing the Bay of Quinte as part of the seaway, barges are now having their first practical trials.

The barge was loaded in Trenton Thursday from Sorel, Que., for loading operations further down the bay traffic.

at the foot side of the old Dundas bridge. A Flakie rental ane was used for the job.

Cne of the tug Yvon Simard-navigating the bay was relatively easy, with the only problem bringing the huge barge into dock here. Scheduled to depart Trenton for the downstream trip to Quebec City at St. Lawrence destination is expected to take a days and may bring considerable savings in shipping costs to Domtar.

Domtar officials say if the trial run with the tug and barge is successful financially the company will initiate further down-the-bay traffic.

Who's Responsible For Windshields?

When more than 50 motorists got their windshields broken as the result of gravel stones following road resurfacing treatment, who is responsible?

That is what Hastings-Prince Edward Bay Shortt would like to know and he is looking for the answer to the county or the county's liability insurance company.

This week at county council Reeve Shortt said that one day in August "over 100" windshields had been broken on the Campbellcroft between Stirling and Mount Pleasant after resurfacing had been put on the road.

Motorists with comprehensive insurance had their windshields replaced and had to pay the first $25 involved and the Rawdon people doesn't feel this should have been.

County clerk administrator Carl Bateman said that for motorists to collect it would have to be proved that the county was liable.

He suggested the only way to settle would be for the claimants to sue the county or the road contractor.

But Reeve Shortt didn't see it exactly that way.

He said he was getting "damned sick" of being told he would have to hire a solicitor to collect from the insurance company.

"You are a great fellow as long as you are paying premiums."

Road engineer Peter Anderson said he had received many letters regarding the broken windshields.

Youth Sentenced For Vandalism

PICTON (Staff) — Two Belleville youths convicted of malicious damage and breaking and entering Kente and Massassaga public schools in July were sentenced in provincial court last Wednesday.

Craig Martin, 19, was sentenced to seven definite and one year indefinite in an Ontario Reformatory, concurrent on two charges. Ronald Duetta, 16, was given three months in jail placed on two years probation concurrent on both charges and 14 days concurrent on the theft charges.

Judge T. Wills said a substantial terror was called for in the case of Martin, who has been on probation twice before and also been sentenced for breaking and entering offens. Judge Wills remarked that the charges Martin faced were serious ones. But in sentencing Duetta, Judge Wills said he took into consideration his age and lack of record.

Identity Revealed

MADOC — Ontario Provincial Police here have released the identity of a woman instantly killed Tuesday evening in the collision of a car and a school bus short distance east of here, Highway 7.

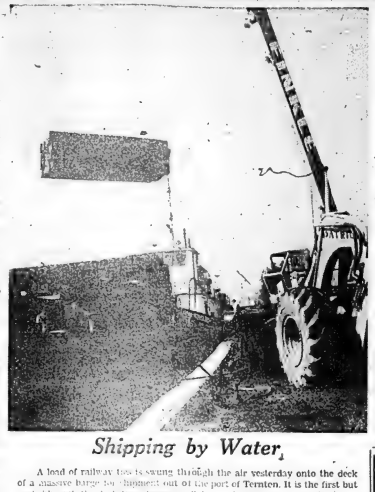
Miss Ann Zinkhan, 39, of Ottawa was the driver and sole occupant of the car that came into collision with a bus from Centre Hastings Secondary School, driveby Donald Boldrick.

"It is a proper and reasonable basis for discriminating between you and Martin," said Judge Wills.

The two Prince Edward County schools were damaged to the extent of $2,000 when windows were smashed, tiles removed, a television and transmitter damaged and desks overturned.

She Has Party Line

PICTON (Staff) — A Prince Edward County housewife this week discovered the Progressive Conservative party has a campaign service that is a real bell ringer.



Through an error in the local newspaper her telephone number was printed as that of the committee rooms of Prince Edward - Lennox candidate James Taylor.

The business telephone has rung and rung until she no longer questioned "for whom the bell tolls."

Recently she has answered her calls by asking if the caller would mind dialing information for the correct number.

One by-stander learning of the mixup in the Taylor committee rooms surmised if the harassed housewife is not a Liberal party supporter she will probably become one.

Asked if she was a Conservative party member she was man-simply replied, "Well, ..."

Shipping by Water

A load of railway ties is swung through the air yesterday onto the deck of a massive barge by shipment out of the port of Trenton. It is the first but probably not the first time barges will be used to transport goods out of the Bay of Quinte town.

Meanwhile, in Trenton, the town's campaign headquarters on Dundas Street next to the Gilbert Hotel will be open daily under the direction of Mrs. Betty Henley.

Meeting Will Discuss CP Track Relocation

Possible relocation of the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks from their present location across the south end of Belleville will be discussed at a special meeting in Belleville next week.

The meeting, called by C. W. Rump, secretary, Railway Transport Committee of the Canadian Transport Commission will be held at city Jail next Thursday commencing at 7 p.m.

Invited to attend the meeting are Hon. Donald Jamieson minister of transport, Robert Andras, minister of urban affairs; Charles MacNaughton, Ontario minister of transportation and communications; local provincial members Dr. R. T. Potter and Clarke T. Robins, members of Sidney and Thurlow councils, members of Quinte and Hastings Planning Board, representatives from the Belleville Real Estate Board and Quinte Home Builders and Allan Brass, representing Proctor, Redfern, Bousfield and Bacon, consulting engineers who prepared the Belleville urban renewal study.

Mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott will act as chairman of the meeting.

Possible relocation of the CP tracks has been a topic of discussion in city council for a number of years with Alderman Arthur Keegan taking a leading role.

Alderman Keegan says that relocation of the tracks would make costly overpass structures on Highway 2 east and west of the city unnecessary and would open way for the development south of the tracks in Foster Ward which he says has been held back by the presence of the tracks.

He admits that track relocation would be costly (estimates of up to $25 million have been heard) but points out that it has been done in other centres.

Athol Township To Receive Grant

ATHOL (Staff) — Athol township council has received notification it will be paid a government grant in lieu of taxes for property developed at Outlet Provincial Park.

The park land has not been assessed for taxation since it was opened to the public approximately 12 years ago.

A government-owned beach concession also has operated without paying a business tax to the township.

Athol township councillor Harry Evans said yesterday the sum of the grant will be roughly $300, and added it is based on acreage with $5 to be paid on the first hundred acres and $2 to be granted for each remaining acre. "It should be retroactive in my opinion," declared Mr. Evans.

He pointed out the park acreage would have been prime development land for any private enterprise.

Former Athol councillor Bessie Dulmage was authoress of the first motion seeking a grant in lieu of taxes.

On at least two occasions in the past this motion was approved at annual meetings of the Ontario Association of Mayors and Reeves.

The Youth Vote

To be sure the voting age has been lowered to 18, but just how interested in the coming provincial election are the young people? Premier Davis has been talking on this theme and in Peterborough a visit from the three candidates there has sparked the dormant interest of nurses of the civic hospital.

The candidates talked for an hour and answered questions. Then, in a show of hands, all of the more than 100 nursing students present, many of them between 18 and 21, indicated they intended to vote. It was a booster shot of dramatic proportions, as witness the observations of Dr. William Erreus, a Trent sociology teacher and a part-time teacher at the Civic.

Said Dr. Erreus: "I found out only one in ten of them eligible to vote intended to do so. They didn't think it had anything to do with them. I suggested things that might touch them, like the idea to join the school of nursing to community colleges."

The girls were interested in such issues as American influence on Canada's economy and aid to the separate schools. But disappointing, in our view, was the response they got from the candidates on the subject of drugs. Soft or hard, we see the use of drugs as symptoms of a permissive and even degenerate society, yet all three men said their parties had no definite stand on their legalization or otherwise. One even told the girls he had many acquaintances who used marijuana and hashish and they seemed perfectly normal. How does he know? We do not profess to know the precise impact on the human system of these drugs either, but we do know they produce a kind of euphoria which in the case of some soldiers in Vietnam, for instance, has led to murder. There was that recent case in Montreal too in which a young man and admitted marijuana user was arrested in connection with the death of a co-worker at Man and His World.

So much for our vaunted western society If drugs are so readily available and in such widespread use. Consider the Communist world upon which we are prone to look with such disfavor. Hungary for one has no drug problem and long hair, beards and jeans are rarely seen. That is the word from United Press International writer K. C. Thaler in Budapest. He says the regime treats drugs as offer alternative means of relaxation and leisure to the young people, as in political and sports clubs, and dancing places where rock is popular. Again, there is the emphasis on sport and such offshoots as eatitheries which are characteristic of life everywhere in the Communist world.

Having said that, life nevertheless is much harder on the whole in the Communist orbit than it is for the likes of these young nurses in Peterborough: scarcity of consumer goods for one thing, low wages and high costs Nor would Communist youth have the voting privileges, not to mention the free choice, of the voter here. Still we can learn from them in this matter of self-discipline and a lifestyle apparently free of the kind of corruption faced by some segments of society here.

Rumor Mill

The rumor from Geneva is acknowledged as a wild one, or as one UN official put it, an example of how silly rumors can get. We refer to the mention of Prime Minister Trudeau as being in the running for the job of UN secretary-general in succession to Burma's U Thant.

Not that we think Mr. Trudeau unsuitable for the job. No, we just feel he would miss the rough-and-tumble of parliamentary life here, the joshing of George Hees and all, not to mention those interesting little fence-mending trips where he gets to meet the people and before the occasional kiss.

As head of the world organization Mr Trudeau might satisfy his penchant for travel, but he would see little of his wife and the baby he came. He would be in a political straitjacket and stultified by the demands of neutrality. After ten years of it, as with U Thant, he might find that the pressures of the job were affecting even his hardy constitution.

No, Pierre Trudeau belongs in Ottawa, Belleville and Picton, with the odd flight away from it all of course to exotic places, not in the glass canyons of the United Nations and New York.

Party Strategists Busy

Anatomy of an Election—or How to Bend the Voter's Mind

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Did you ever see such a coming and going in and out of the National Capital by the party leaders in these recent opening parliamentary — and supposedly non- election campaign — weeks?

Prime Minister Trudeau up up and away every Friday, home in it again Sunday to Parliament Hill.

Conservative Leader Stanfield and David Lewis of the New Democrats off and running just as fast, although the official word, until just the other day, was that the election, if official, the campaign strategists at party headquarters here are in the same continuous process of preparing for the next race.

Long ago — back as far as the time "Fighting Joe" Diefenbaker, as he initially was known in his first campaign as Conservative Leader, thrashed the Liberal father figure "Uncle Louie" St. Laurent — the experts in the election business have had a consensus.

It is that a savvy rides to power as the toll of the comet of leadership and plunges into defeat as the afterburn of a leader's falling star.

Politics?

Yeah, they are important too but —

Candidates?

Sure, you can't do without them although, except for the talented, self starting, go go few of real brilliance, their only essential requirement, and it is a must, is that they have to identify with the leader.

So the leader is everything. It all begins and wins or loses with him.

He has to come across, in the flesh, in the television image, and in a disembodied voice on radio as being a good guy.

The impression he gives of concern for you, personally and individually as a voter, is the prime requisite

He has to look and sound as if he really cares about you. He must make you feel that you and people like you are number One.

It is not easy.

And it is just a bit gimmicky.

Strikingly different as they are — but in many characteristics, so alike — John Diefenbaker and Pierre Trudeau mastered the technique of appearing to talk to you alone among the crowd.

Both pulled it off by grabbing onto any chance remark — even a shall — from the crowd.

Both could turn around the heckler, disarm the heckler, even, with luck, enlist his understanding, and hopefully, sympathy and support.

Correction: both could, still can, and likely will do it skillfully as ever.

The response to the question from the crowd — either a friendly "planted" enquiry carefully worded to bring a strong positive answer, or an openly hostile query, just as carefully prepared to draw a weak, negative reply — makes it all the easier for the leader to project personality and reflect an image calculated to elicit confidence.

The leader, practised, the art and cunning with bits of words, can employ the same remark or question from the crowd in such a way as to involve you, in a sense of identification with him, in the ess

"Yeah, the guy is right," I says to yourself, and he has I back pocket.

Robert Stanfield, lending it still uncertain Conservative has an entirely different technique of involving you with you. And in its own way it is as good, and who knows — until after the next election's votes are counted — it could be better.

Cleverly, with a self-deprecating grin and just the hint of a half-wink, he puts himself down. Turning the laugh against himself he enlists your sympathy and understanding, and without being fully aware of what is happening, you find yourself warming to him — he is so like you, full of faults and flaws and humanly aware of them.

So he on your guard, the leaders are soon coming at you — and they are a clear crew of 'em.

Rich Brew

The Globe and Mail

To those who have not been privileged to observe it at close quarters, the English custom of drinking tea at approximate times of day fixed in some classes, wholly unappropriate times may seem to be myth original, or at least exaggerated.

There are, to be sure, two aspects to this established approach to drinking tea. One is the image of the older upper turbability that its sanction embodied in the pouring of tea, whether it takes place in a baronial hall, in an English rose garden or in an underground shelter during a bomb raid.

The other aspect arises over the British workman's unbending insistence on a tea break as a work interruption that has brought employers close to despair.

But, to return to those who might imagine the tea observation to be at least part myth, we should like to call their attention to the bank robbery in London the other day—the one in which the walkie-talkie conversations of the raiders was plainly overheard.

Tense, dramatic stuff; particularly when the robbers were heard to agree that it was time for a nice cuppa. Thus chaps was the Yard able to run out the blokes. Next clue.

More on Separate School Issue

Editor,
The Intelligencer

It seems to me that the letter from Mr. Bernard J. [illegible] in Monday's paper is a splendid [illegible] Premier Davis discussion to extend further and to the separate school system from [illegible] Roman Catholic [illegible] that it begs for comment.

Mr. Fitzgibbon states: "In fact Newfoundland, Quebec, Saskatchewan and Alberta support Separate School systems. Grades 11 12 with full effects". His list of provinces is exactly 28 percent correct and 50 per cent incorrect. Alberta and Saskatchewan do, indeed, have separate school systems from Grades 1 to 12 but neither Newfoundland nor Quebec has "separate or public school systems. In both these provinces the schools are all religious based ones, with the children segregated on the basis of the parents' religion. The difference is an important one, for the public system is open to all, regardless of color or creed.

Christian Labor Association Is Making Its Presence Felt

TORONTO (CP) — A small religiously-oriented labor movement has been making its presence felt in labor circles. Leaders of the major unions have been forced to notice the Christian Labor Association of Canada.

The association is headed by 37-year-old Gerald Vandezande, executive secretary and tireless promoter of Christian involvement in the turbulent labor scene. Friends and critics would agree that CLAC is no namby-pamby paper organization. Nor is it merely another church committee.

The Christian Labor Association, which was organized in 1952, now has about 3,300 members in Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta, and British Columbia. Despite its numerical weakness when compared, to the 1,250,000-member Canadian Labor Congress, the CLAC has influenced legislation and, in the process, has incensed labor officialdom.

Last year, for instance, the Ontario government passed an amendment to the Labor Act which permitted a worker to be exempt from joining a union or from paying union dues if he objected on conscientious grounds to membership in the particular union. The religious objector was to be permitted to pay the equivalent of union dues to a recognized charity.

Despite the overwhelming objection of organized labor, the legislation passed.

The first test of the amendment came in July of this year, and it was a clear victory for CLAC member Klaas Stel, who opted out of the Canadian Union of Public Employees on the grounds that membership in the union to which he had paid dues for 16 years violated his religious convictions.

His appeal was granted, and three other similar decisions were handed down in quick succession. But the Canadian Union of Public Employees reacted with an appeal to quash the Labor Board's decision.

Stan Little, president of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, blasted CLAC in a public statement. He attacked members of the association as "pawns of a group with tentacles extending to the right-wing John Birch Society of America."

He added that the Christian Labor Association of Canada is "a right-wing reactionary association which, if permitted, will destroy industrial unions as we know them in Canada."

Vandezande dismisses Little's charge that CLAC is related to the John Birch Society as "smear". "If anything," he snaps, "Mr. Little's near-hebelious accusation remarkably resembles the kind of totally unfounded statement the Birchers are so fond of making, and therefore does not deserve an answer."

As to the charge that he's anti-union, Vandezande becomes impatient. "That's foolish," he says. "We're not anti-union; we are a labor union and want to co-operate with other unions. And furthermore the contracts we negotiate will bear comparison with any equivalent contract negotiated by a secular union."

Critics have charged that the CLAC is pro-management and is only a tool of employers. "Anyone who says that has never bothered to examine our public statements, listen to us or our record," Vandezande states.

He does reject the Marxist concept of class struggle. But he is quick to add: "Most of modern capitalism with its racism and depersonalization is an expression of man's sel fish propensity to sin."

"It's high time for a genuine showdown," he feels "and

Involvement Stressed By Catholic Women

REGINA (CP) — Participating, and involvement were key words for the 1,250 delegates to the annual meeting of the Catholic Women's League of Canada Wednesday.

All seven members of a panel used these words in telling delegates how they could best employ the theme message of the convention "Women of hope."

"You challenged us to bring hope to change the course of the world," said Angela Lucas of Saskatoon, former provincial president.

Meg Bernier of St. Louis Sask., urged that young people be welcomed into the league. She also urged league members to go out and work with young people's groups.

Mary Dobell of Toronto, national church life convenor, said that she was excited by the use of four-letter words in the discussions such as work, pray, love and hope.

"These are the words we live by," she said.

The delegates, who represent 390,000 women across Canada, began business sessions.

Twenty - two resolutions, calling for action against liberalization of the abortion laws for stronger legislation to prevent child maltreatment and beating, for reforms in some television programs and advertising have been prepared by the executive for discussion.

During Wednesday's sessions, President Iphigenie Normandi of Charlottetown asked all members who had not yet written a letter to the prime minister as part of Project 100,000 to do so.

Project 100,000 seeks to have all those who agree that abortion is murder of the unborn child, to write letters which are to be presented by a league delegation to the federal government in October.
